Business Notices.

Don't Make War on the Stomach.

If you are billious, dyspeptic and constipated don't make war on the stomach by successively swallowing blue pills, strong purgatives and powerful astringments. Such a procedure damages digestion and weakens the bowels, leaving stomach, liver and intestines, after the immediate effect, in a condition of greater disorder than before. That complete relief which remedies of the above description signally fail to afford is obtained by using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. And for the best of reasons. Billousness is the result of inactivity of the liver, dyspepsia of weakness of the digestive organs, and constipation is produced by the above causes operating together. The Bitters, being a powerful stomachic, overcome indigestion by stimulating the secretion of gastric juice, relieve billousness by promoting greater activity of the liver, and thus enablej the bowels to act with renewed regularity.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and aldermen, cause the marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, ever either of the mill ponds in this city, or place that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked shown by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself it left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of strident spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 8, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

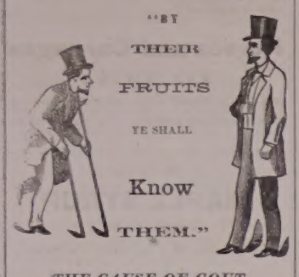
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions sest properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquilin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to obtain a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents exhibit showed by scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses or vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by a number of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the agency of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

BOOK AGENTS wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 685 pages, over 250 illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight, who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, makes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books, say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages, as since commencing the sale of my work. For terms and territory, address (inclosing two postage stamps and stating experience) R. V. Pierce, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y. Note.—Mark envelope "For Publishing Dep't."

IMPORTANT

TO MOTHERS,

NURSES AND INVALIDS.

and persons of impaired digestion. DR. RIDGE'S FOOD is very agreeable, and from the nature of its composition, is exactly adapted to all conditions of the stomach. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

For the terrible diseases engendered by the flinty, trying climate of New England,

Relieve Your Lungs.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SUBMISSION.

BY CELIA THAXTER.

The sparrow sits and sings, and sings;
Softly the sunset's lingering light
Lies rosy over rock and turf,
And reddens where the restless surf
Tosses on high its plumes of white.

Gently and clear the sparrow sings,
While twilight steals across the sea,
And still and bright the evening-star
Twinkles above the golden bar
That in the west lies quietly.

Oh, steadfastly the sparrow sings,
And sweet the sound; and sweet the touch
Of wooing winds; and sweet the sight
Of happy Nature's deep delight
In her fair spring, desired so much!

But while so clear the sparrow sings
A cry of death is in my ear;
The crashing of the riven wreck
Breakers that sweep the shuddering deck,
And sounds of agony and fear.

How is it that the birds can sing?
Life is so full of bitter pain;
Hearts are so wrung with hopeless grief;
Woe is so long and joy so brief;
Nor shall the lost return again.

Though rapturously the sparrow sings,
No bliss of Nature can restore
The friends whose hands I clasped so warm,
Sweet souls that through the night and storm
Fled from the earth for evermore.

Yet still the sparrow sits and sings,
Till longing, mourning, sorrowing love,
Groping to find what hope may be Within death's awful mystery,
Reaches its empty arms above;

And, listening, while the sparrow sings,
And soft the evening shadows fall,
Sees, through the crowding tears that blind,
A little light, and seems to find
And clasp God's hand, who wrought it all.

Bold Bank Robbery at Winthrop, Me.

Friday morning, between 2 and 3 o'clock, the National Bank of Winthrop and the Winthrop Savings Bank, both in the town of Winthrop, about ten miles from Augusta, Me., and both in the same building, were entered by burglars, and the safe broken open and rifled of its contents. The first intimation of the robbery was a terrific explosion which startled a number of the townspeople, who immediately rushed out doors to ascertain what was the matter. Among the number was Henry Woodward, who lived close by, and who on hearing the explosion suspected that the bank had been entered, and fearing that it was another case of gagging the cashier, he aroused his partner. Mr. Woodward saw three men passing his house on going to the window. Hastily dressing himself, he and his partner proceeded to the house of the cashier, J. M. Benjamin, which was but a short distance. Mr. Benjamin had also been aroused by the explosion, and was up. Mr. Levi Jones, one of the Directors of the bank was also aroused, and the party went to the bank, where a large crowd had already assembled.

An examination of the premises was at once made and everything was found in the most disordered condition. The two windows fronting the street were completely blown out, and the floor was covered with the wreck of the front of the large safe and its contents, one of the doors being literally blown to pieces. On the floor was also found the implements which the burglars had left behind them, consisting of two big iron bars, one railroad spike sledge, which they had stolen from the Maine Central Railroad depot, one combination jimmy, two steel wedges, one punch, one steel-pointed hammer, a coil of common fuse and a dark lantern.

Three men came into the town in the afternoon, two by the cars, and a third by some unknown route. They were seen walking near the depot. They moved at a rapid gait along the track, all carrying carpet-bags. They were met in a field by a fourth man, and were not seen again till about nine o'clock in the evening by a lady, the four passing by her house. They were not seen again till after the explosion took place, when three men answering the same description were perceived walking rapidly in the direction of a shed attached to the Methodist meeting-house, where they had a team in waiting. When driving away with this team they dropped a whip, which the officers of the bank have in their possession.

The losses are variously estimated. Current rumor sets it at $50,000. The solvency of the bank is assured, and also the October dividends. The capital stock of the National Bank is $100,000. The total amount of deposits of the Savings Bank was about $100,000. The news of the robbery was promptly telegraphed in all directions and about noon, Sheriff Carr at Winthrop received a despatch from Bethel stating that three men, named Lewis Lewis, Thomas H. Clarke and and George B. Levi, had been arrested. Carr went down, and a despatch from him said no money or other valuables were found on their persons; still the belief was that they were the guilty parties, and they would be held for examination.

Important.

We have received from the Netherlands' Legation in Washington a communication which is very important and most interesting to the navigation and commerce with the Netherlands. Since the 1st of July last the tax of beaconage, tonnage and lighthouse fees has been abolished at all the ports of the Netherlands by the law of June 3d, 1875. Until that time these duties amounted, according to countries and destination, on arrival to 8c and on sailing to 4c per Netherlands ton. Consequently by this said abolition the commerce has the benefit of saving the considerable amount of 12c per Netherlands ton. The Netherlands Government intends to introduce on the 1st of January next the gauging regulations of "Moorsom" and the "regles de jaugeage" of the International Commission of Constantinople.

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, JULY 26, 1875.

The Outlook.

Many of our friends among the working classes are inclined to take a gloomy view of the coming cold season; and not without a considerable show of reason, too. For, with no market for his labor—the only commodity the poor man has to trade upon—the prospect does, indeed, look dark and discouraging, and may justly provoke a dread of the ordeal of a New England winter. It is not with him, as with the comfortably rich, whose chief care consist in the disposal of the value of their scissored coupons, and whose daily prayer is on a par with Sambo's in a steamboat explosion, who prayed that the Lord would take care of him, sure, and if He had any spare time He might pick up the odds and ends! With the latter, (the odds and ends of life) it is no question of pleasant choice between toil and pleasure, but it is simply a life and death struggle with grim poverty, whose strength is the victim's weakness, and whose approach is more to be dreaded than death itself. In our larger cities, cases of destitution—even thus early in the season—are multiplying, and the country outside is overrun with stalwart tramps begging their bread.

One of our exchanges regards it as a singular fact that while factories and machine shops are closed, farmers find it difficult to obtain field hands for haying. The problem is a very simple one. Farming is a trade as well as the construction of a house, or the building of a locomotive, and the sensible machinist or carpenter will not expect to get his first class pay at farm labor, for the reason that he knows nothing about it, and will not apply. It has come to be believed that any ignoramus can till the soil, the only requisite being a failure to obtain a livelihood elsewhere and an extremity wherein the party involved is driven to desperation to keep his head above water. As well, however, might the farmer, failing to realize a living on his farm, say that he would leave it and publish a newspaper and expect to succeed, as for a born and bred mechanic to hope for immediate success in the labors of farm life.

There is no question, however, in regard to the necessity of more farmers and intelligent farm laborers, but unless our sons are trained and educated with this vocation in view we might as well look for grapes among thorns or figs upon thistles as for good farmers among mechanics. And while there are many causes, of a main and incidental character, for the present dull times the chief reason is, there is but one producer to a hundred or more consumers. That is, there are too few of the former and the disproportion is much too large. The silly desire to dress fashionably, the more reasonable craving for an easier occupation than that which the drudgery of farm life presents, the illusory chances of becoming rich, tempt the young farmer away from his task—the story has been too often told to need repeating. But there is an effect following every cause. The result of this transfer of labor from a normal to an abnormal field is so apparent that the dullest may note the overrunning of every department of industry in the mechanical branches, and the consequent surplus of labor in the market.

The only solution of this problem of the unequal distribution of labor is the encouragement of agriculture by new school facilities in this direction. A good work is being prosecuted in the Agricultural department of Dartmouth College, and there is ample room for more schools of the same class.

Farming, properly conducted, will pay. Physical training that will bravely confront hardships and discomforts is required. Intelligence and patience and hope is needed, but with these, and a determination to succeed, will come forth a far more independent life and a better return than falls to the lot of the tradesman or the mechanic. We have unintentionally drawn out at considerable length a hackneyed topic; but nevertheless one that merits discussion as one of the stern realities of life that must sooner or later be met and disposed of somehow or other. The present season thus far, is one well calculated to encourage us in the project of farming. Never was weather so propitious for the growth of crops as that of the present season, and while the lugubrious farmer will tell us of a half crop of hay and prophesy a light yield of corn, the potato rot, &c., the truth is, there is everything in abundance this year, save, perhaps apples, and there is not a scarcity even of these. Hay is fully up to last year in quantity and quality, potatoes never looked better and corn never grew faster. In addition to this, berries of all kinds abound, peaches, pears, grapes and plums promise a plentiful yield, and even the squash, that coquettish esculent that has refused to thrive in this locality for a number of seasons, gives assurance of a goodly crop. Now who does not want to farm it? Don't all speak at once, but still let us have more producers.

A Remarkable Suicide.

The suicide of Mr. George Fredricks is one of the most remarkable for deliberation and persistency that has been brought to public notice for some time. On Wednesday evening his brother, Mr. L. D. Fredricks, of Brooklyn, received a package from him, in which was a letter asking his brother to dispose of his property as he had directed, as he was going to kill himself, and for that purpose had already taken thirty-two morphine pills of two and a half grains each. The reason he assigned was inability to get money due him from the American Fire Detective Company, of which he was Secretary, and his brother, Charles D. Fredricks, the Broadway photographer, is President. The letter concluded: "And now I will say good-by. When I left home this morning it was too early for me to kiss my dear little twin daughters good-bye. Kiss them for me. You cannot give them the same kiss, for mine would come from the heart. May success crown all your efforts." Mr. L. D. Fredricks and his son William started for the office of the company, but too late, for his brother was dying, and he sent for his wife at once, but before she reached there he was unconscious. He had prepared the following note for the Coroner: "I do this thing with my eyes wide open and all my senses about me. I do it simply to avoid starvation, which I believe is inevitable if I stay in the world. Since Monday noon I have eaten but one meal. I have taken nearly — grains of morphine in the shape of pills, made by myself some years ago. Let no one persuade you that I am insane: on the contrary I never had my senses more perfectly in my life. I do this act for the purpose of pleasing my oldest brother, who, as President and Treasurer of this company, owes me a large amount of money which he does not wish to pay. There need be no post-mortem, as I have fully explained the cause of my death." The testimony of the widow was that for some time he had been moody and flighty, but had never talked of taking his life. His family had never wanted for the necessaries or even luxuries of life. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from an overdose of morphine, taken while laboring under mental aberration. Mr. Charles D. Fredricks was shocked when he read the letter to the Coroner. "God knows I have done what I could for him," he said. "Since I have been President and Treasurer of the company we have been doing very little and money has been scarce. I have just been able to pay the mechanics, and I gave George all the money I could spare. Last Saturday I paid him $10, and he wanted to know why I didn't pay him in full when I paid the rest of the men. I told him I couldn't pay him what I didn't have. Yesterday he came to the photographic rooms and gave him the key to the safe and another key, saying he shouldn't want them any more. I asked him why, and he said he wasn't going to the office any more. I asked him if he had got another place, and said that if he hadn't he had better think over the matter before he left for good, for we needed him there. His only answer was that he wasn't going there any more. The company owed him about $600, which would probably have been paid within a month." George Fredricks was born forty-nine years ago in this city, the son of one of the richest men of the day. When he was a child he had the scarlet fever, and the mercury which he took affected his knee joints, so that both legs were drawn up at the knee and stiff. One day while wheeling himself on the sidewalk in his little wagon, the famous Dr. Detmore saw him and offered to cure him. He performed the first operation of the kind in this city, and George Fredricks' legs were made straight, though never very strong. "He was always a very sensitive man," said Charles Fredricks; "sensitive about his lameness, and quick to resent a slight. He married against the wishes of the family. He did not succeed in business. He had a family of seven children, and just when they were helping him one of his sons married, the other went to California, and two others were thrown out of employment by the failure of the firm for which they worked. These causes more than anything else, I think, led to his insanity and death."

News and Notes.

Hon. George H. Pendleton opened the campaign in Ohio for the democrats, and spoke at length on the financial question. He was in favor of a cessation of the contraction of sound and sufficient currency and the promotion of industries, as the surest road to the appreciation of paper to par with gold; greenbacks, instead of National bank notes, and greenbacks for customs, to the extent that the necessities of the Government will permit. These principles, he said, constitute the democratic faith; to this the democratic party is pledged, and upon this it asks your concurrence in giving it power in the State and general Government. We are not and never have been in favor of an unlimited issue of greenbacks; we are not now and never have been in favor of repudiation in any form; we do believe it is our highest duty to fulfil all our country's obligations according to the spirit and letter of our promises; we are not now and never have been in favor of a volume of currency, changing or fluctuating according to the whims or parties or the interest of bankers or the demands of reckless speculators, but sufficient for the easy, active, economical, profitable interchange of commodities, and as fixed and stable as the nature of the case will allow; and so long as we must have a Government paper currency we prefer greenbacks, which are sound, cheap and good, to National Bank notes, which at the outset, cost the people six per cent., and are, at last, only redeemable in greenbacks.

A correspondent of the New York Times tells a story about Ellis Ward, the celebrated oarsman, that is hardly to his credit if true. For some time prior to June 28, great preparations were made at Red Wing, Minn., for an amateur regatta, which was to be rowed on that day. In May a stranger appeared, who gave his name as John Fox, and said he was in search of employment. He said he had rowed a little once on the Susquehanna river, and the Red Wing Club, seeing he was a better oarsmen than any in the crew, prevailed upon him to join them and participate in the coming regatta. On the day of the contest, several boat clubs took part, but the Red Wing Club, though not the best, won everything under the direction and management of their bow-oarsman Fox. A single-scull race between Fox and Norman Wright, the champion of Minnesota, was won with the greatest ease by the former. A few men who had backed the Red Wing Club against all odds won heavily, and a number of St. Paul people began the cry that Fox was not an amateur but a professional in disguise. They pursued their investigation so diligently, that they discovered evidence that left no doubt in their minds that Fox was none other than the celebrated Ellis Ward, A photograph of the latter obtained in New York settled the matter beyond a doubt. The Red Wing Club claimed that they were entirely ignorant of the fact that the stranger was Ward, and that he was undoubtedly put upon them by "betting sharps" for their own gain. Thousands of dollars were won in this way, and the feeling in St. Paul and other places against Ward is said to be one of intense indignation.

Forney has called upon the Empress Eugenie, and is evidently smitten, for he says: "It is impossible to convey an idea of the winning grace and candor of this lovely woman. I should rather say cordiality than candor; nor would the word "dignity" fairly typify the peculiar charm alike of her manner and her conversation. She talks fluently, articulates her words clearly, and surprised me by her stores of information, showing that she was a close reader and thinker.

Advices from Middletown, Del., the centre of the peach-growing district, say that there are fully 10,000,000 baskets of peaches maturing on the peninsula. The preparation of the railroads for the shipment to Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and the West of this tremendous quantity of freight are being made on a scale more extensive than those made for the shipment of any other one commodity in the country. The season will continue over forty days, and during that time there will be an average of 250 car-loads of peaches, or 125,000 baskets, shipped each day.

—Mr. Schroeder, of Baltimore, who leads the van of trans-Atlantic balloon theorists, inasmuch as the practical value of his ideas has yet to be tested, was recently in New York exhibiting his models and drawings, and consulting with engineers. His machine is in the form of a life-boat, sixty-five feet in length. Its ribs are of three-quarter inch wire, each capable of sustaining a strain of 8400 pounds. The strength of the balloon is insured by an aggregate of 8 3-4 miles of netting capable of bearing a strain of 25,000 pounds, with which arrangement, even should the balloon burst, the bottom of it will float upward and form a parachute the buoyancy of which will cause a slow descent in a spiral direction. The wings work like a bird's wings, and, under full speed, will give 160 or 170 strokes a minute. The machinery will be operated by a very light, strong hydraulic engine of about eight-horse power, to be built especially for the purpose. The balloon will hold about 80,000 cubic feet of gas, and still allow all needed room for expansion. In a still air it is claimed that a speed of fully 70 miles an hour can be obtained, while a far greater velocity can be reached with a favorable wind. The whole air vessel will weigh 2800 pounds, and freight to the amount of 12,000 pounds can be carried under ordinary conditions. Immediately after Mr. Schroeder's return to Baltimore the contract will be let by him. It is expected that the vessel will be ready by Aug. 15, at a cost of $5000 to $6000. The inventor will go first to Washington, and thence in turn to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, when, if he has had the success of which he is now confident, he will make proposals to the Government to carry mails to Europe.

—The Detroit Post vouches for a feat of endurance recently accomplished that puts all the walking, swimming or flying matches of modern times in the shade. A colored man named Bob Blackhawk arrived in Detroit recently, and while along the docks claimed that he was able to stand upon the head of an ordinary barrel and constantly turn round for twenty-four hours without drink, food or sleep. He asserted that he had performed the feat in Eastern cities, and talked so confidently that at last he succeeded in exciting the interest of a few speculative parties, who determined to test his powers of endurance. A common liquor barrel was placed in a small room and two reliable men were appointed to watch Blackhawk, relieving each other every six hours. He commenced his task last Friday evening, and on the Saturday evening following his judges made an affidavit that the feat was squarely and honestly accomplished. Blackhawk complained of a slight soreness in his lower limbs and in the back, the result of his cramped position, but otherwise felt no fatigue or inconvenience. It must be remembered that he was without food or drink during the entire time that he was upon the barrel. When Blackhawk completed his feat he claimed that he could just as well have remained up twelve hours longer, but the parties who proposed to back him expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with what he had done. Blackhawk is about six feet high, very stalwart, and as the test shows possessed of extraordinary powers of endurance.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

The Ocean Race.

We are indebted to the Boston Sunday Herald for the following detailed account of the Regatta of Saturday:

The final preparations for the race were completed at about 11:30, when the judges boarded the U S. Steamer Verbena, but before leaving the island issued an order that all the yachts carrying spectators should be ruled out of the race if such persons assisted the crew in any way. The invited guests boarded the judges' boat at about noon, and precisely at 12:11 the signal gun for the start of the first-class was fired. The boats, which had been lying off Appledore, were soon under weigh. The first to cross the line was the Wivern, with all but fore gaff set. She was followed by the Ray, which unfortunately lost her wind before crossing the line. This boat failed in a second start, but in the third and last chance she got away with a good send-off. Fearless of Swampscott bore past in fine style, with all sail set, and was followed by the Tempest and Foam, the two latter coming down almost side by side. The former lost a little ground by the Foam standing on her starboard and taking the wind out of her sails. The Rambler, followed by the Resolute and Gracie, came next. The last two boats made a mistake in leaving, they passing outside of the stake boat and the Verbena, between which they were required to pass. The America was rather late, a fact which was probably due to the late arrival of her owner, General Butler, who came down from Portsmouth in a steamer, and was put on board with the aid of a sailboat. Uncle Ben's craft was among the last three boats to start, the Gracie, which had previously been bothered by the Resolute, standing out after him.

The race of this class, which unfortunately was attended by an accident of miscalculation, for the first ten miles was fine, The course for the first buoy was on a line west by sou' west, and the yachts got the full benefit of the breeze. All of them kept in a direct line, with almost every square inch of canvas set. On nearing the first buoy, they were obliged to tack, which they did in good style, the Halcyon leading, with the other boats well up. For the first five miles on the course to the second buoy, which was in a direction southeast by half east, the yachts became scattered. The Halcyon and Tempest stood at an angle toward the shore, eagerly in search of the second buoy, which, to their surprise was nowhere to be seen.

The Halcyon continued to sail until within a short distance of Cape Ann. The General's boat followed her, but after sailing about several miles hunting for the buoy, turned back and pursued the course laid down in the programme for the homestretch, several boats being a long way in advance. The yachts, in coming in, ran before the strong west wind, several of them showing to good advantage. The first boat in was the Halcyon, with the others in the following order: Coming, Fearless, America, Tempest and Resolute. The Foam passed to the stern of the judge's boat, which at this time had been changed to the Dallas, by the Verbena being obliged to go to Boston, and her time was not taken. All except the Rambler reported that they could not find the buoy; but Master Thomas of the last named boat claimed to have found it, and that where he turned it there was not a boat within a distance of eight miles of him. The universal feeling entertained by the masters of the yachts that were unable to find it was that the buoy had been set adrift by some mischievous persons, or got adrift in the storm of Friday. Mr. Thomas gave a description of the buoy, which consisted of a two-masted whaling boat, with the name "Mars" upon it. Furthermore, Capt. Choate of the Kittery navy yard steam launch, testified to anchoring the buoys in their proper places on Thursday. The race is undecided as yet. The winning boat, if determined by the best time, will undoubtedly be the Halcyon, while, if Capt. Thomas's statement should be verified, the Rambler will be decided the winner, on the ground of being the only boat that turned the second stake.

The race for the second class was the most successful of the regatta. The signal to prepare for the start was given precisely at 12:41, and a few minutes after, during which several boats passed the line and were recalled, the signal to get under weigh was given. The yachts numbered about 35, many of the names of which could not be ascertained, owing to their masters preferring a good start to making themselves known. The boats carried all their heavy sails, and the first to get away was the Mariquita, and the others in "Schools." The course, although but fifteen miles, was in the form of a triangle, laid out inside the large course. The yachts, after proceeding some three miles close-hauled, hoisted their kites and balloon gibs. The leading boats over the first line were the Shadow, Violet, Saxon and Mariquita, which turned the first stake in the order named. In standing for the second or extreme eastern stake the boats made several tacks, and some of them turned by jibing. The course home was dead against the wind, the Shadow holding her own all the way home, followed by the Violet. The Saxon did well coming home, but lost considerable in coming round so as to pass the judges' boat. During the race the numerous excursion boats from various places, went over the course, and offered those on board a fine opportunity to witness the race.

The winners in the keels and centreboards were not decided by the judges after the regatta, on account of the allowances, not being at hand on which to base the corrected time. Mr. D. J. Lawler, the official measurer and time-keeper, proposed solving the problem last night, and it is very probable the names of the winning boats will be known on Monday. Considerable anxiety is felt by the majority of the boats, who think it probable they won a triumph on the strength of their allowance.

The number of boats in the race was about 49, of which 14 were in the first-class, and the remainder in the second. The number of entries were 79, which was 12 in excess of last year (67,) when the number of boats that sailed was 44. The other boats entered, however, went over the course with parties on board, as did also the large schooner Island City, of Harwich, which, with the schooner Rebecca, arrived at the Shoals during the day.

The prizes were for the first-class sloops and schooners measuring 40 feet and upwards. For schooners, first and second prizes; for sloops, first and second prizes. Second class, for centreboards and keel sloops and schooners measuring 23 feet and less than 40 feet; for centreboard sloops, a first and second prize; for schooners, a first and second prize. These prizes consist of silver plate, a description of which has already been published.

The sweepstake race for the silver cup, valued at $300, has been declared off, the required number of entries (ten) not having been obtained. This race was open to all boats, the first over the course of 30 miles to be declared the winner. The postponement of the regatta from Friday undoubtedly made it impossible for many to enter who would have otherwise done so. The entries made numbered five, the boats being the Resolute, America, Halcyon, Fearless and one other.

The departure of Yachtmen and visitors began soon after the arrival of the boats over the course. Several yachts left for home and a large number of visitors took passage on the steamer Major, which connected with a special train which left Boston and way stations at 8:30.

THE RAMBLER TAKES THE CUP.

Since the above was in type we have received the following, which is claimed to be the true version of the result of the first race:

The course as originally planned was a triangle with a stake boat at each point, and the directions to be sailed and duly announced. All was plain enough up to the first point, but after turning this the leading boats Halcyon and Rambler both erred in the course they took to find the second stake boat, and the remainder of the fleet followed them of course, also erroneously. The result of this was that after sailing more than the stipulated distance without finding a stakeboat, the leading schooners concluded to make the next course home.

The Halcyon consequently started, but Randall the pilot on board the Rambler had seen in the distance, about seven or eight miles back, a small speck, which he concluded must be the stakeboat for which they had been hunting, and proposed to return and verify it, as there appeared to be no other hope. This was done and after returning some seven miles over the ground first sailed, there lay the stakeboat. This the Rambler then duly turned and started for home, where she arrived shortly after the other yachts had gone in. As no other yacht had turned the two stakeboats, the cup was very properly awarded the Rambler.

What would have been the result had the other yachts found the stakeboat, we are unable to say, but very probably the time allowed the smaller yachts by the Rambler would have given some of them the cup, but as it stands, the credit of winning the race is due to the sharp lookout of the pilot and the good generalship of Capt. Dayton, the sailing master of the Rambler.

It is understood that another race is contemplated in August when it is hoped that a good representation will be present from the New York Yacht Club. COM.

Jottings.

The pretty yacht Coquette, George Morrison, commander, assisted by his faithful mate, cook and others, left Boston last Saturday. Says the Globe, the passengers consisted of eight young men, mostly clerks in stores in Boston (two being from Exeter, N. H.,) all of whom have adopted this method of spending their vacations, ensuring good health and having a good time in a proper way. They will touch at Barnstable, Provincetown, Cotuit Port, Gloucester, en route to Portsmouth, N. H. They will also look in at several places along the coast. All the young men have a nautical uniform, consisting of blue coats and bright buttons. They have a cannon on board so as to tender their compliments wherever they go. Officers have been appointed from among themselves, and each is obeyed accordingly. It is commendable to add that spirituos liquors in any form are not allowed an board.

George Lynch, who stabbed Jerome Conlon, a sailor, was arrested in Boston on Saturday.

Don't Make War on the Stomach.

If you are billious, dyspeptic and constipated-don't make war on the stomach by successively swallowing blue pills, strong purgatives and powerful astringents. Such a procedure damages digestion and weakens the bowels, leaving stomach, liver and intestines, after the immediate effect, in a condition of greater disorder than before. That complete relief which remedies of the above description signally fail to afford is obtained by using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. And for the best of reasons. Billousness is the result of inactivity of the liver, dyspepsin of weakness of the digestive organs, and constipation is produced by the above causes operating together. The Bitters, being a powerful stomachic, overcome indigestion by stimulating the secretion of gastric juice, relieve billousness by promoting greater activity of the liver, and thus enable the bowels to act with renewed regularity.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith; the said health officers may, by authority of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

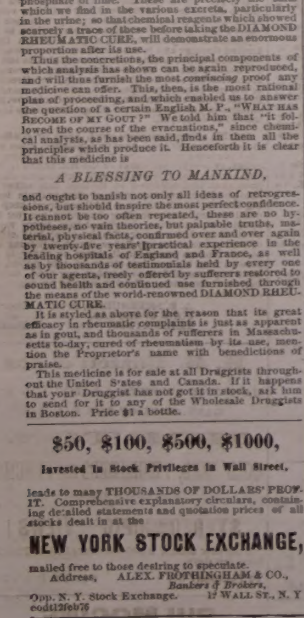
Daily Chronicle.

—This is apparently the season of thrilling balloon ascensions, and New Orleans has contributed her share. Mons. Chevalier was the æronaut who lately undertook to contribute to the entertainment of the populace. He had made about thirty balloon ascensions; mostly in France and England, and was considered very skillful and daring. When the balloon first rose it reached an elevation of about thirty feet, when it ran into some trees, and, careening, turned the car bottom upward. Mons. Chevalier disappointed general expectation, however, by hanging on to the machine until it righted, and the last seen of him he was standing in the car and waving his cap. But untoward adventure pursued him on his voyage. When the balloon broke away from the hose through which the gas was being received, the valve-rope, which extended through the hose, was drawn up into the balloon, utterly beyond reach; and yet, in view of the fact that if he ascended he would be without any means of controlling the movements of his ship, the intrepid Chevalier, urged by a proud determination to ascend at all hazards, boarded the car and gave the command to let go. The balloon pursued its course for about half a mile, and then, sailing northward, began also to descend, all ballast being thrown out, until, at a point near the Fair grounds, it was so low that the rope's anchor caught in a fence near the corner of Long and Soniat streets, and at this the balloon careened fearfully, so that in an instant the car was bottom up, within twelve feet of the ground, when Chevalier was thrown out, but landed upon his left side on the turf. Relieved of his weight the balloon tore the anchor away from its fastening, and, righting itself, sailed away, but it had lost too much gas to go much farther, and accordingly descended in the Matairie Cemetery. Chevalier severely sprained both ankles and bruised his left arm and hip, but he ought to be thankful that his foolhardiness didn't cost him his life.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vauquillin and Barruell—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogression, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM

AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discolouration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.
JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the fluctuating climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all Kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know ing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Novel Hay-Making.

[London Times.]

In a catching season it is common to make reflections upon the large money loss annually suffered in harvesting the hay crop. On something like 6,000,000 acres of meadow hay and about 3,000,000 acres of hay from clover and other artificial grasses, there may be in the United Kingdom a total produce of 12,000,000 tons, which, taking the average value at say £4, would be worth £48,000,000. It is within the mark to say that only a minor proportion of all this acreage of grass and clover gets converted into hay without damage from weather in an average of fine and wet seasons; and over a large area, it may be one-fourth of the whole, the hay actually carried to the rick is probably worth several pounds per acre less than if it were secured without loss from rain. No doubt, in a fine, hot season, with the luck to escape storms, haymaking by exposure in the field is far cheaper than any other process which can be devised, but the deterioration is rapid and so serious under repeated showers that the question arises whether we might not profitably exchange the natural but hazardous method for a safe though more costly hay-curing by artificial heat. In the lately prevailing state of the barometer and hygrometer any number of farmers in the grass districts must have felt, while shaking out, turning, and re-making their sodden and washed hay, what a vast advantage it would be to have at command an apparatus by which they might make absolutely safe their ten or twenty tons per day, catching it between one downfall and another. Nay, at a time when the best hay is worth very nearly the same price as bread, it is an easy matter to lose £2 or £3 per ton in quality; and the grower of fifty or 100 tons of hay could afford a considerable outlay to prevent a sacrifice like this.

No apparatus for the purpose appears in competition at the Royal Agricultural Society's trials of haymaking machinery now being conducted at Taunton, but on Saturday we witnessed the operation of hay-drying by artifficial heat at Gillwell Park, near Chinford, Essex, the residence of the inventor, Mr. William Alfred Gibbs. After some years of practical experimenting Mr. Gibbs has brought his invention into the following form: A portable stove constructed of plate iron is surmounted by a fan, which is driven by a belt from a three-horse power portable steam engine; the fan draws all the heated air and gases from the coke fire together with a volume of warmed air, which passes through a chamber surrounding the inner chamber of the stove, and blows the hot current, at a temperature of 400 degrees Fahrenheit or more, into the drier. This resembles in general shape a straw elevator, consisting of a sheet iron trough 6 feet in breadth, 20 feet long, if mounted on wheels as a portable carriage, or 40 feet, or 50 feet long if a fixture. The trough is raised at one end at a low angle, so that hay fed in at the upper end furthest from the stove shall slowly travel to the lower end near the stove—this being assisted by a slow reciprocating motion given to the bottom of the trough. A ridge of triangular section running along the middle of the trough divides it into two almost semi-circular channels, so that the hay passes down into two streams; the hot air issues through two slit apertures, one on each side the base of the middle ridge, and for the entire length of the machine; and the hay is kept continually stirred and lightened up over the hot blast by a number of small iron stirrers cleverly contrived to imitate the action of forks worked by hand.

We saw partly made but wet hay passed through the machine and converted at once into a thoroughly dry condition for the stack; we saw spoilt and musty hay dried into hay of fair apparent quality and pleasant fragrance; and we saw freshly cut grass, saturated with rain from a very heavy thunder shower which poured down at the time, dried into hay of first-class color, and possessing the rich malt odor peculiar to well-made hay. With a single twenty foot machine the operation is too slow to employ fully one man feeding off a cart and another man removing the dried product; but with two such machines side by side, or with one fixed machine of forty or fifty feet in length, probably one set of carters and stackers could be kept going. From the experiments made under our supervision, it appears that while fresh and wet grass loses seventy to seventy-five per cent. of its original weight in being made into hay, the quantity of moisture in excess in partially made hay, or hay caught by a heavy rain, may be from ten to twenty per cent. To expel this water from partially made hay requires a consumption of coke in the stove and of coal for the engine not exceeding a cost of 1s. 3d. per ton of hay dried. Preserving fresh cut grass may cost in fuel six or seven times more. With outlays for labor and for water and tear of apparatus, the total expense, according to Mr. Gibb's calculations does not exceed 7s. or 8s. per ton, which is, instead, a very moderate disbursement for saving a loss of perhaps pounds per ton. To make fresh cut grass into the finest hay at one stroke costs about £2 per ton of the dried hay.

Now, it is possible that in a wet season it may pay thus to preserve grass entirely by artificial heat; but Mr. Gibbs recommends the general use of the apparatus for completing the process of haymaking after the grass has been withered by some exposure.

and has lost, say, more than half of its original moisture. At this stage it will cost little to clear the field and get the hay safely into stack in the best possible condition, instead of leaving it to the chance of being rained on, involving a great additional expense in the ordinary labor of making, with liability to very great loss in "nose" and color. Another feature is that a small proportion of the artificially dried hay, if mixed with damaged stuff, improves the whole bulk in a manner which could hardly be believed without trial; and another is that a farmer having a drying machine at command is not afraid to open out his hay in dubious weather, and thus no fine hours whatever are wasted in waiting. One neighbor of Mr. Gibbs, a very large hay farmer, testifies that he has had large quantities of hay so spoiled by frequent rains as to be reduced from £6 to £2 in value per load. He dried some of this with the machine, and considered it to be restored in quality as to be worth £6—that is, it regained the value it had lost, though of course, there was still some loss in quantity. To save £4 per load on forty loads would repay the prime cost of the apparatus in a single summer.

Whether large hay-growers may adopt the machine for their own use or two or more small growers may join at a machine, or whether it would be profitable for men who let out steam thrashing-machines to make this hay-drying a part of their business, (seeing that it is wanted only in the season when few cornstacks remain to be thrashed), it will be well that agriculturists should devote some careful attention to this method of dealing with a valuable and precarious crop.

News and Notes.

"Max Adeler," the Philadelphia humorist, is to lecture next year.

Nasby has just returned from the Pacific coast, and thinks of preparing a lecture on Mormonism. He has been making studies in Salt Lake City with that view.

Josh Billings is to make his "fifth annual farewell tour," this year, with his "hily concentrated lektur," on "Sandwitches," "just for fun and $100 thrown in."

Mrs. Livermore, who has been seriously sick, this Spring, has now entirely recovered, and is at work on a new lecture. She has given up her intention of visiting Europe.

Hiram F. Wentworth's shoe manufactory at South Milton was totally destroyed by fire, with its contents, Sunday night. Loss about $30,000; partially insured. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

The woman, Mrs. Merritt, who claims in New York to have been the victim of an outrage on the tug boat Mike Norton, is undoubtedly a well known confidence woman, who was in the New Haven Almshouse for three months four years ago, giving birth to a child there, probably illigitimate. She then went to Albany, where she defrauded a hotel keeper. She went under the name of Averill, but was generally known as Dolly, or Olive Dutton. She succeeded in deceiving every one for a time.

All newspaper men know Mr. W. D. Thomas, press agent of Barnum's Hippodrome, and it is to him that the great showman owes the entire fulfilment of his contract at St. Louis. There being no Donaldson to send up, Mr. Thomas volunteered his services for a balloon ascension. As the undertaking was an experimental one with him, he very properly and considerately refused to allow any one to accompany him, but ventured out into space alone. He ascended to an attitude of 5000 feet, and made quite a trip, though when he got ready to come down he had to trust to luck for a landing place. Fortunes stood his friend, however, and he descended safely in a swampy spot near a settlement of colored persons whose superstitious natures were so worked upon by the unwonted and unexpected apparition, that it was scarcely possible to induce them to touch the balloon or to assist the aeronaut in securing it. Mr. Thomas, however, has a persuasive ttongue, which he used to such good effect that he finally convinced the frightened darkies that he was not a messenger from a better or a worse world, but of the earth earthy, and as mere a mortal as they were. Thus the aerial steed was stabled and safely sheltered from harm, and the daring rider retired to bed to dream of the wonders of the upper air. In the morning he caused the collapsed concern to be conveyed to the railroad and took the first convenient train for St. Louis.

—A funny incident recently took place at a Crystal Palace concert in London. The Liverpool choir had just begun to sing Handel's chorus from Theodora, "He saw the lovely youth," when a side drummer of Colman's Band, who was standing apart from his comrades, lost his drum and his footing, and tumbling down two or three steps of the orchestra, fell on his back, his legs alone being visible. The contretemps led to a burst of laughter from the audience, which nearly unnerved the choir, and was renewed with increased hilarity when, upon the choir arriving at the words "the youth begins to rise," the unfortunate cause of all the merriment picked himself up and resumed his place, no one laughing more heartily than Madame Goldschmidt.

—Dr. Allen of Philadelphia was preaching one day in Tennessee to the freedmen, when an old colored brother came to him after the sermon, and said: "I like to hear you preach, for I understand your preaching." "I am very glad of it," replied the Doctor. "But I understand every word you say." "I hope so, I try to make myself understood." Again the old African came to the charge. "Yes," he said, "I understand you jes as well as if you was a nigger." Dr. Allen acknowledged the compliment.

—A friend in Niagara county sends the following recipe to New York, apropos of the approaching peach season: Take the head from a keg, fill it with the handsomest ripe peaches, put in all the whiskey it will hold, then head it up again. In Winter they will be found beautifully preserved, with the bloom all on, and with a slight soaking and scalding in syrup, they are a delicious accompaniment to ice cream, far superior to any brandied peaches. The peach-whiskey which remains will be found excellent for mince pies and pudding sauce.

—The Shah, while at a London ball, said to the perspiring Prince of Wales, "Why do you not employ servants to dance for you?" M. B. Conway, in the Cincinnati Commercial, surmises that dancing will actually cease ere long, as a few mincing steps are all a fashionably-dressed woman can possibly take, and a young lady was recently heard to say, with a sigh, "What with being tied around above and tied around below, I have not had a good square sit down for three months." When a large ball is given there is an apology for dancing, which ends in music and talk, and admiring each other's dresses; and so dancing bids fair to be a "survival," as the antiquaries say.

—The robbers who plundered the Winthrop Bank have not been discovered.——The married man who eloped with a Fall River girl has been given up to a Massachusetts Sheriff by the New York Court.——Over five hundred infants died in New York city last week.———Nine convicts stampeded from Blackwell's Island Saturday, but five of them were captured after an exciting chase.——The Navy Department has reports of twenty-nine cases of yellow fever at Barrancas, and it is proposed to close the Pensacola Navy Yard.——The bonds of the Postmasters of Boston and other large cities are to be reduced.

—In one week of last month a firm received orders for 445 miles of lead pencils. To make these only 83,000 feet of cedar lumber are required, and after they are made they will load six freight cars. This immense consumption of lead pencils is doubtless caused by the attempts of women to sharpen them with a pair of scissors or a dull case knife. Persons who have witnessed these efforts need no longer wonder at the demand.

—Gratz Brown is going to speak on political subjects in Ohio. Let him beware of water melons.

—Clemenceau, who swings a lively rapier, is after Paul Cassagnac for a duel, but Paul this time asks for coffee without pistols or swords.

—The Emperor William has granted to the African explorer, Dr. Nachital, an annual pension of 6,000 marks ($1,500) from the imperial treasury.

—Ferdie Taylor, a woman of Carson, California, who had contracted an appetite for opium, smoked a hundred pipes of it at one sitting, and died in the ensuing slumber.

—Polonaises have not disappeared entirely. They are used for negligee costumes, and are worn at the watering places at breakfast and for morning walks.

—For travelling costumes, very little trimming is necessary, and no jewels should be worn, other than a watch and chain. Plain lisle-thread gloves should be the glove used.

—The most fashionable veil of the season is white tulle, with large mesh or small mesh with white chenille dot. Sold by the yard. Some get enough to put all round the bonnet and then cover the face.

A Miracle.

[Washington Chronicle.]

Mrs. Lamb, wife of Mr. Francis Lamb, manufacturer of looking-glasses and picture frames, residing at No. 1912 Fourteenth street, northwest, has, for the past thirteen years, been an invalid, and for nearly ten years of that period been confined to her bed and deprived of the use of her limbs. When first taken sick it was supposed that her indisposition would be brief and only a short time would elapse ere she succeeded in recovering her accustomed health; but as the days rolled on, that improvement looked and hoped for failed to appear.

It is true that she would rally and for a while seem to be mending, and her friends would be encouraged at the prospect; then again came a change and she would return to the old condition. Other complaints set in, and finally she suffered with a complication of diseases, and became so much exhausted that she was compelled to seek the bed for rest and comfort. Prominent and eminent physicians were consulted, attended upon her, and, in the early stage of her sickness, their prescriptions proved efficacious and she was able to rise from the bed and move about the house; but she failed to regain her health and strength, and, as a consequence, ere many days expired, she would again become prostrated. Her situation baffled the professionals' knowledge and skill, and several of them confessed being unable to prescribe medicine that would produce a cure. Still they attended upon her, watching for any change that might occur, in the hope of being able to furnish relief and prolong life should death threaten to intervene and take her hence. In this condition, unable to rise from her sick bed, had she passed from year to year, hoping for the good time coming, when, re-endowed with strength and the usefulness of her limbs, she might again become a perfect being of the world. In all this prolonged sickness and prostration the invalid was never known to murmur at her situation or complain of her misfortune. But on the contrary, being a devout Christian, placing her trust and reliance in Him who afflicts as well as relieves, she daily and almost hourly invoked the blessing of the Almighty and that, in His chosen time, He would send relief which she believed could proceed from Him.

Her friends were frequently with her, and mingled their prayers with hers for the desired change. A little more than a week ago she sent a request to the members of the Young Men's Christian Association, asking that they would make her condition the special object of their prayers that she might be raised from a lingering disease, which had confined her in bed nearly ten years, and be restored to health. The request was granted and the prayers made. A few days afterward, while a lady friend was writing, she conversed of her religious feelings, and said that she believed she would soon leave the sick bed; in fact, she believed that she could walk at that time. The lady, while wishing that such would be the case, could not believe it possible for her to accomplish such an undertaking, and so expressed herself. Strange as it may appear, Mrs. Lamb, confident of her ability to walk, rose from her bed, and in her stocking feet, actually walked across the room, and returning sat down in a chair. It was not to be wondered at that her friend should be astonished, and asking how Mrs. Lamb felt, received the reply that she was better. To further questioning as to what caused her sudden and miraculous improvement, the sick lady replied that she sincerely believed it to be the result of constant, faithful prayer to Heaven for the bettering of her condition, and that her prayers must have been answered.

The fact of Mrs. Lamb having got up and walked soon spread, and many friends visited the house to see her and congratulate the family on the happy change. In the evening a prayer-meeting was held, at which she related her feelings before and since walking, and believed that the change was permanent. The following Sunday so much had she improved that she rode in a carriage to the Mount Zion Church, Fifteenth and R streets northwest, Rev. Mr. McKenny, pastor, and attended divine service. Since that time other prayer meetings have been held, and she is unceasing in her devotions, praise and thanksgiving to God for raising her up and making her whole. She believes that it will not be many days ere she has become perfectly sound and healthy. At present she experiences some trouble in walking, her feet being very tender from want of exercise. The case is a strange one, and attracts much consideration and talk among the church people.

What is our Future.

Prof. Parsons of the Harvard University comes to the front and answers an important question, that concerns every one whatever may be his faith or creed. The indistinctness of belief in the future life has wrought the decay of religious faith, and the human spirit needs a revival of its hopes in a clearer form in order to keep its religious footing. "Spiritualism," says Prof. Parsons, in his book on Swedenborg, "constitutes the details that must shock all those who have no other than the common, the nearly universal belief—if belief it be—in a spiritual world. It is not these details which will fill them with incredulity, but it is the assertion that there are any details of such a thing; for their belief is, at its best, only a belief that after this life is over, and men have lost their bodies and are formless essences, they may be provided for somehow."

And Prof. Parsons goes on to say that "there is no help for this. For such minds, the fact that there is a spiritual world is the revelation, the startling and incredible announcement. They may be so accustomed to say they believe in another life that they do not know how dim and uncertain is their belief. The question will not be with them—admitting that there is actual life after death—is it reasonable to suppose that this can be the manner of that life? It may seem to them that here is the difficulty. But it is not here. It is, that belief of any real and actual spiritual life has become in the last degree shadowy and unreal. It is precisely because there is no other belief prevailing but just this, and that even this was dying out, that the divine mercy has now taught that men do live after death, most truly and actually, in bodies, a personal, active and sensational life, with the same organs of sense which while they were here gave life to their material organs of sense, and in an external world that is perfectly adapted to all their senses and all their wants, to all their capacities of activity and enjoyment."

Professor Parsons is a thoroughly cultivated man, and an instructor of law at Harvard University; he writes with profound feeling and from a mind freighted with thought. In the same connection he says further, that "the same force which creates for us, while we are in this world, bodies in which we may live, organs of sense by which we may perceive, and things to be perceived, performs a precisely similar work for us after we go from here and are in the spiritual world. There, too, it gives us bodies in which to live, organs of sense by which we may perceive, and things to be perceived."

Brown, the Wife Murderer.

Here is a story of Bessy Brown, as brought to us in the late Philadelphia papers. Not as pleasant reading, perhaps, as the last fine fancy in poem or novel to take with us to the shady nook or beach, but useful.

Five or six years ago William Brown was a sober, hearty young fellow, well educated for his station, and with a kind heart and pleasant manner, which made him a favorite with all his kinsfolk, and brought him plenty of friends. The friends led him to take a glass or two now and then; the glass or two became naturally steady drink; the drink brought dismissal from his shop, idleness, dissolute habits. Still, Brown was, to his friends "a good fellow," with no fault which sobriety would not cure—nobody's enemy, in short, but his own. About a year and a half ago, going out to the Park one day, he met in a car a neat, pretty young girl, who was introduced to him as Bessy Herschetmer. "From the first moment I saw her I loved her," he says, and there is no reason to doubt that the poor wretch has loved and been faithful to his wife from that day until now. Love, however, never kept a drunken man from abusing his wife or making his home a foretaste of hell. The girl bore with him for some months and then left him, supporting herself by sewing. "Will" she stated, "followed her, drunk or sober," watched her continually, being jealous, naturally enough, as his wife was pretty, and resolutely refused to go back to her life of misery with him. One night two weeks ago he saw her accost a man upon the street, in all innocence, very likely, but it drove him to frenzy. The next day, according to his own account, being sober, he avoided her, but in the evening he went into a saloon for a drink, and shortly afterward met her with another woman. He asked her if she wanted money. She replied by a taunt. "Then," as one of the witnesses testifies, "he threw his arms about her neck, and, I think, kissed her, and the next moment I saw the blood streaming from her throat."

She died almost instantly, and Brown escaped. He went to some of his kinsfolk and told them what he had done. They "liked Will," and hid his bloody clothes, gave him another shirt, and sent him on his way. The man escaped from the police, who were beating the country for him, and reached Reading. There was nothing to bar his way further and came deliberately back, lay secreted for two or three days in the woods near Philadelphia, and then made his way to his wife's grave. The lieutenant of police of the district, knowing what manner of a man he had to deal with, and his morbid affection for the woman he had murdered, had placed a watch about the cemetery, expressing his belief that Brown would come back to his wife even there. When he was arrested a letter to his mother was found on him, which shows his intention of killing himself when he had reached the grave. Nothing in fiction or history—not the agonies of Fagin, nor the face of his victim that pursued Eugene Aram by night and noonday—is more tragic than this letter written by the murderer to his mother from time to time, as he fled through the country, a horror of great darkness pushing him. It is not the gallows that he sees or cares for, but "Bessy's blood running down her neck," or his own hand wet with it. He sees himself dead in his coffin, with a dreadful self-pity, and bids his mother bring people of whom he is fond to look at him, as a warning against liquor. It is not Bessy that he blames; "she is an angel waiting for him to cross the river;" nor himself—the "Will" that his mother knew and he knew; but the liquor—the liquor. "If I had not taken even that last drink, this would not have happened."

—Walt Whitman says: "In my poems, everything revolves around, concentrates in, radiates from myself." That accounts for the recent earthquake shocks in this country.

—No one supposed there was room on Saratoga lake for the immense number of untoward circumstances that prevented the twelve crews from winning the race.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

The Oceanic Regatta.

The decision of the judges awarding the race of the first-class yachts to the Rambler created general dissatisfaction among the spectators and yachtmen. The plain facts of the case are that there was really no race and no justice in the decision. The heavy easterly storm had drifted the second stake boat four miles from its position, and all the yachts but the Rambler failed to find it. The Rambler was not among the first half-dozen yachts in, and the whole affair seemed to be a "boggle." This was no fault of Mr. Poor, but was due to the managers of the race. There was great surprise on learning that the Rambler had been declared the winner, as the time thrown away by her returning on the outside of White Island was deemed sufficient to distance her. She was awarded the prize, not because she made the best time, nor because she had any competitor, but because the drifted stake-boat was found by her four miles from where it had been stationed, the other yachts having sailed the true route by compass.

Below will be found the time of the several vessels so far as known:

A Presentation.

Assistant Superintendent J. W. Hildreth of the Concord Road was the recipient of a fine portrait of himself on Wednesday evening of last week. We copy the following account of the presentation and incidents connected therewith, from the Concord Monitor of Thursday.

A very pleasant affair took place last evening, at parlor No. 5, Phenix Hotel, in which Joseph W. Hildreth, Assistant Superintendent of the Concord Railroad, was the most interested party. The employes of the road, desiring to testify their regard for him in a pleasing and substantial manner, ordered a portrait of him to be painted from a photograph, and unknown to Mr. Hildreth, this order was executed by Mr. Plummer Prescott, an artist now resident in Manchester, but formerly of Louisville, Ky. Mr. Prescott is a native of Franklin, but for several years has resided in the South, where he was engaged in portrait painting. The result is a very fine portrait of Mr. Hildreth which his friends pronounce a speaking likeness. Last evening the portrait, richly framed, was hung in the parlor of the Phenix Hotel, where it was inspected by Mr. Hildreth's friends, and universally commended. Soon after 9 o'clock Mr. Hildreth was escorted to the parlor and introduced to his "counterfeit presentment" by Col. E. C. Bailey, who, in a brief speech, in behalf of the donors, eighty or more in number, presented the elegant portrait to him, as a token of the esteem which the donors entertained for him as an official and a man, and desiring him to hang the same in his home, and to transmit it as an heirloom in is family. Mr. Hildreth responded in a felicitous manner, thanking the donors for this testimonial of their good will toward him and trusted the same kind feelings would continue through the future. He then invited the company to repair to Carroll's dining rooms and partake of ice cream, which many of them did.

The Mill Pond Nuisance.

Editor Chronicle: Your paper states that the City Marshal "has been requested to attend to the nuisances connected with the South Mill Pond." This is well, as far as it goes, but to those who are daily sickened by the pestilential exhalations and stench from that and the North Pond and Puddle Dock, it appears a very mild proceeding.

The only thing which can be done before cold weather, is to shut the water in and keep the ponds full. This can undoubtedly be done at small expense, because the owners of the mill privileges are probably liable for the nuisance. At all events, unless we are willing to have it go abroad that pure air is not to be had in hot weather in this city, which naturally is as healthy a spot for a summer residence as any that the sun shines upon—something must speedily be done. Sickness traceable directly to this cause has already appeared and the discomfort is simply unendurable. To wake up night after night choking with smells which would sicken a Comanche, and be obliged to hermetically close one's house these hot nights in order to get temporary relief, will lead to results not creditable to our prosperity or civilization.

We have unequalled advantages for becoming a favorite watering-place,—we have little else to look to for prosperity,—shall we supinely poison ourselves and drive visitors away, for want of sufficient energy to cleanse these abominable cesspools? This evil was bad twenty years ago, and it has and is constantly growing worse, at high tide there are acres of filthy scum and at low tide, scores of acres of flats of the noisome description. Unless speedy action is taken, better hurry up the Richards Avenue improvements.

SELF-PRESERVATION.

P. S. The writer has just learned that a clergyman, a stranger, who came here to preach yesterday, was made sick from the stench of the South Pond at his lodgings last night.

Jottings.

The well-known pleasure yacht Wm. H. Russell, Capt. Drown, left this city on Monday with a party of young men from Newmarket, for an excursion to Portland and intermediate ports. With such a pleasant and courteous skipper as Capt. Drown and with a good craft they will doubtless have a nice time. We are not surprised that the pleasure boat alluded to is kept in constant employ.

On Sunday evening, just after the close of a sacred concert at the Sea View House, a chandelier in the new hall holding glass lamps filled with naptha, fell and the naptha caught fire. Mr. Gus Lougee extinguished the flames with a fire extinguisher, saving the building. No one was hurt.

The stable keepers had more than they wanted to do on Sunday to supply teams for pleasure drives. We would suggest, however, to the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty that they could easily find a field of observation on such days wherein their humanity might take a wide scope.

Of the ninety-three boys now enlisted in the Government naval service, and serving in the Sabine at Portsmouth, seventeen are from Lowell.

—The public will be delighted to hear that Senator Cameron "was nev er in more amiable humor and experien ces great benefit from the hot sea-baths which he takes regularly."

—The New York Star says that Juryman Jeffreys was not a citizen. If sitting through what he did for eight dollars a week doesn't make a man a citizen how much suffering is necessary?

—Sothern contributed $250 to the Royal Theatrical Fund and the Prince of Wales only $50. But the latter has to economize to eke out that $710,000 recently voted for his travelling expenses.

Don't Make War on the Stomach.

If you are billious, dyspeptic and constipated-don't make war on the stomach by successively swallowing blue pills, strong purgatives and powerful astringments. Such a procedure damages digestion and weakens the bowels, leaving stomach, liver and intestines, after the immediate effect, in a condition of greater disorder than before. That complete relief which remedies of the above description signally fail to afford is obtained by using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. And for the best of reasons. Billousness is the result of inactivity of the liver, dyspepsia of weakness of the digestive organs, and constipation is produced by the above causes operating together. The Bitters, being a powerful stomachic, overcome indigestion by stimulating the secretion of gastric juice, relieve billousness by promoting greater activity of the liver, and thus enable the bowels to act with renewed regularity.

HORSE RAKE.

Farmers are respectfully requested to inspect these Machines before purchasing elsewhere.

They are believed to be the best Mower and Rake in the Market.

The Mower is strong, durable and of the lightest draft.

IT HAS TAKEN ONE HUNDRED PREMIUMS.

The demand has increased from 200 in 1873 to over 7000 in 1875 which is ample proof of their superiority.

The rake for 1875 is perfected so that by a simple centre-trip attachment, three pounds' pressure with the foot will DUMP THE RAKE.

These Machines can be seen at Hayes Farm and will be cheerfully shown to parties whether they purchase or not. We are ready to compare notes with any other machines in a field trial.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars; and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and aldermen and by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping or any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Fashion Notes.

—The knife-plaited linen collars are still popular.

—The fronts of basques are all longer than the backs.

—Laces and fringes are the only trimmings now used for silks.

Knife plaitings are used on all materials, either thick or thin.

—Wattean plaits are coming up again, particularly for party costumes.

—It is said that combination suits will be worn all the next Fall and Winter.

—Bustles are made as narrow as possible, and now very few are worn at all.

—Llama lace sacques and mantles are the only wraps used for Summer weather.

—A linen suit of gray and dark linen is cool, and dressy for morning and street use.

—Striped and plaid collars and cuffs are more stylish when worn for travelling purposes.

—A dressy lingerie to wear with handsome visiting suits is Valenciennes, slightly ruched.

—The Foulard calico suits are very popular and cool, and they are very dressy for breakfast use.

—For Summer ball dresses, white muslin, trimmed with black velvet, are very popular and simple.

—A pretty and simple way to trim a sleeve is to finish it at the wrist with a double cornet-shaped trimming, with a bow in the centre.

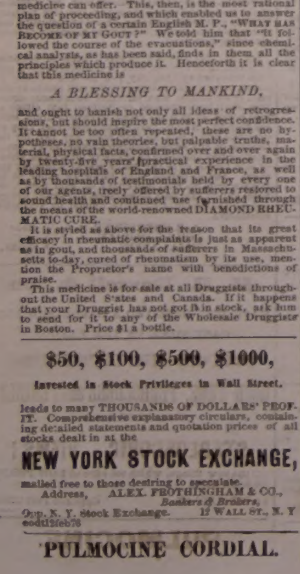
—The newest parasols are those of black or brown gros grain, trimmed with white yak or thread lace, about one and a quarter inches wide.

—Boston needn't feel bad because some of her best ball players are going to Chicago. She should be thankful that she has capital enough to keep Chicago running, now that she has built her up.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourneroy, Vanquillin and Barruell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, died in him, all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogression, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM

AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Mental Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

BOOK AGENTS wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 885 pages, over 200 illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight, who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, causes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books, say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages, as since commencing the sale of my work. For terms and territory, address (inclosing two 3cstage stamps and stating experience) R. V. Pierce, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y. Note.—Mark envelope "For Publishing Dep't."

THE WEEKLY SUN. 8 pages, 56 broad columns, from now to New Year's, post-paid, 60 cts. Address THE SUN, N. Y.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the [illegible] trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

LAWS Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

AN ACT in relation to sidewalks in cities, and in regard to allowance for betterments in assessing damages for property taken in widening, straightening, and laying out streets, and constructing sidewalks in cities.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The mayor and aldermen in any city, upon petition, may grade and construct sidewalks and complete any partially constructed, in any city, with or without edge-stone, as said board shall deem expedient, and may cover them with any appropriate material, and may widen and straighten any street in any city before and preparatory to constructing such sidewalk, upon notice and proceedings as now required in widening and straightening highways, and said notice shall contain a notice that the construction of a sidewalk is contemplated, after such widening and straightening.

SEC. 2. In awarding damages to the owners for any land taken under the preceding section, and by reason of constructing such sidewalks, there shall be allowed by way of set-off the benefit, if any, to the property of the owner by reason thereof, said award to be filed in the office of the clerk of any such city within ten days after said award is made.

SEC. 3. In constructing such sidewalks, said board may assess upon the owners of the property abutting on such street, in just proportions, not exceeding one half of the expense of constructing the same; and all such assessments shall constitute a lien on such abutting land and other property, and shall be committed to and be collected by any collector of taxes for said city, and said lien to continue until the same are paid.

SEC. 4. Whenever upon application to lay out a street or highway in any city, the mayor or aldermen shall consider it expedient, they may lay out the same, upon the condition that a certain portion of the expense of laying out and constructing the same shall be assumed and paid by private persons particularly interested in obtaining such street or highway, which condition shall be fully complied with, and the money paid into the city treasury by such private parties before the construction of said street or highway shall be entered upon, and before any laying out shall be deemed valid or binding.

SEC. 5. Any owner, dissatisfied with any award of damages under the sections preceding, may file an appeal therefrom in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county where such land taken or such sidewalk constructed is situated, at any time within twenty-eight days before the return day of the term of said court next after the filing of said award in the office of said city clerk, and if said award is not filed in said city clerk's office forty days before said return day, then said appeal may be filed in said clerk's office of said court at the term of said court next subsequent to the term herein before designated, and upon such appeal and twenty-eight days' notice thereof, by an attested copy of said appeal and of the order of notice thereon, the question of damages may be tried by a jury, or the court if the parties agree to the latter. And this act shall apply to all cases where there has been no hearing upon a petition.

SEC. 6. Any town, at an annual meeting, after due notice in the warrant for the purpose, may adopt this act, and the same shall thereafter be in force there; and the selectmen of such town shall have the powers and perform the duties above entrusted to the mayors and aldermen of cities.

SEC. 7. This act shall not be in force in any city until adopted by concurrent vote of the councils thereof.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of an act entitled "An act to equalize the appraisal of property for the assessment of taxes," passed June session, 1874.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. In the several cities of the state the mayor and aldermen, in the month of August, 1875, and in the same month in every fourth year thereafter, may appoint three suitable persons, who shall perform all the duties incumbent upon the assessors and selectmen as provided for in the second section of said "Act to equalize the appraisal of property for the assessment of taxes," of which this act is in amendment.

SEC. 2. Such persons shall take and subscribe the same oaths, and in the same manner, and shall be liable to the same penalties and subject to the same laws and receive the same compensation, as assessors in the several cities.

SEC. 3. The time for making the examination and estimate of the value of all the real estate in the several cities, as provided in section two of the act of which this is in amendment, shall be during the months of September and October, 1875, and the same months in every fourth year thereafter.

SEC. 4. The provisions of section one of this act shall take effect and be in force in those cities only, which shall adopt the same by their city council.

SEC. 5. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect on its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in relation to foreign insurance companies, and service of process upon them.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. No insurance company not of this state, nor its agents, shall do business in this state after March 1, 1876, until it has filed with the insurance commissioner of this state a written stipulation, duly authenticated by the company, agreeing that anw legal process affecting the company, served on the insurance commissioner for the time being, shall have the same effect as if served personally on the company within this state.

SEC. 2. In all cases where the commissioner is served with process, it shall be his duty to make a written memorandum of the fact, and to forthwith inform the company by letter, mailed by him to the principal office of the company in this country, and shall on the next subsequent day forward the copy of the process served on him to the company sued in a separate envelope.

SEC. 3. All acts and parts of acts requiring such companies to appoint any other attorney in this State, shall be and hereby are repealed on the 1st day of March, 1876 but all other provisions of existing law relating to foreign insurance companies shall be in full force as heretofore.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to promote the setting out of shade-trees.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Any city by an ordinance of its city council, or the legal voters of any town, school district, or village precinct, at a meeting called for that purpose, may raise money, and expend it for the setting out and taking care of shade and ornamental trees along their streets and highways, and about their school-houses, public buildings, parks, and upon such other public lands as they deem proper.

SEC. 2. The mayor and aldermen of any city, and the selectmen of any town, shall upon application make such abatemen. of taxes to any person who shall set out and protect shade-trees by any street or highway adjoining his land, as the said mayor and aldermen or selectmen shall deem just and equitable, and no such abatement of taxes shall disqualify any person from voting.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT for the preservation of health, and for the assessment of damages in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That whenever the owner of any property occupied by himself or tenants for a homestead shall deem it necessary for the preservation of health to drain such premises, and in so doing it shall become necessary to enter upon or cross land of another not occupied for dwellings, the selectmen, upon petition by the person desiring to construct such drains, may establish, lay out, or authorize the construction of any drain for which there shall be occasion for the accommodation of the public or the person applying.

SEC. 2. Unless the selectmen are clearly of the opinion that the petition ought not to be granted, they shall cause notice of a time and place of hearing to be given to the petitioner first named, and to the owners of the land over or through which such drain may be built, fourteen days prior thereto.

SEC. 3. The damage sustained in the construction of such drains shall be assessed in such manner as is now provided by law in all cases in which lands are taken for public uses; and the damages so assessed shall be paid or tendered to the owners of the lands through which the proposed drain shall pass by the petitioner before he shall enter upon the land to construct the same; and if said damages be not paid or tendered within three months from the time of the assessment thereof, the laying out shall be void.

SEC. 4. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to tax lands in unincorporated places.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. All lands or property, real or personal, in this state, not lying in any town, shall be taxed one half of one per cent. on the reduced value thereof in addition to the state and county taxes, and said tax shall be assessed and collected in the same manner as the state tax is assessed and collected, and held by the treasurer of this state subject to the control of the house and senate.

SEC. 2. All roads not in any town, which are for the public good, shall be repaired out of the money thus raised, except such roads as collect toll of persons or teams going over them.

SEC. 3. All moneys thus collected and not thus expended may be appropriated to defray the just debts of the state.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect on its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to a constitutional convention.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the selectmen of the several towns and places in this state be directed to insert in their several warrants calling town-meetings for the election of governor on the second Tuesday of March next, an article which shall require the sense of the qualified voters to be taken on the following question, viz: Is it expedient that a convention be called to revise the constitution?

Be it further resolved, that the secretary of state furnish the town clerks of the several towns and wards in this state, at least ten days before said second Tuesday of March, a number of tickets equal to twice the number of votes cast for governor at the annual March election of 1875, upon which tickets shall be printed the aforesaid question, with the answer "Yes;" and an equal number of tickets upon which shall be printed the aforessid question, with the answer "No;" all of which tickets said town-clerks shall have at the several places of voting in the state for the use of the voters on the second Tuesday of March, 1876.

Approved July 2, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION of thanks of the state, to several persons named therein.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the thanks of the state of New Hampshire be presented to the following named persons, for their generous gifts to the state, as follows:

To Robert M. Mason, for the portrait of Jeremiah Mason; to Edward Woods, for the portrait of Andrew S. Woods; to Mrs. Anne Atherton, for the portrait of Charles G. Atherton; to George Olcott, Henry Olcott, and Edward Olcott, for the portrait of Simeon Olcott; to the relatives of ex-governor John Taylor Gilman, for the portrait of John Taylor Gilman. And His Excellency the Governor, and the Honorable Council, and the secretary of the state are hereby constituted ex officiis a committee to solicit, in behalf of the state, the portraits and busts of those persons who have been prominently identified with the ecclesiastical, civil, and military history of New Hampshire.

Approved July 3, 1872.,

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the Dixville notch road in Dixville.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of one hundred dollars be and hereby is appropriated for repairing the Dixville notch road in Dixville, to be expended by an agent appointed by the governor and council, and to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the governor is authorized to draw his warrant therefor.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the road from the west line of Bartlett to the Crawford house.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of four hundred dollars be and hereby is appropriated to be laid out on the road between the west line of the town of Bartlett and the Crawford house, to be expended by an agent or agents appointed by the governor and council, and to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant therefor.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in relation to the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of five thousand dollars ($5000) be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose of introducing a supply of water into the buildings of the institution, for draining and finishing the grounds about the building, and for completing the barn upon the experimental farm,—the same to be paid to the treasurer, and expended under the direction of the trustees of the institution; and the governor is authorized to draw his warrant for the same upon any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the road from the Crawford to the Fabyan house.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of one hundred dollars be and hereby is appropriated to be laid out on the road between the Crawford house and the Fabyan house to be expended by an agent appointed by the governor and council, and to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant therefor.

Approved July 3, 1875.

News and Notes.

Wall street had a panic on Tuesday on account of the failure of Duncan, Sherman & Co., a leading firm.

The Nashua Telegraph is responsible for the following: "David Rollins of Newport Centre was set upon by a bull the other day, and gored in nineteen pieces, two ribs being broken; his dog saved his life by coming to his aid and catching the bull by the throat." Wasn't it nineteen "places" instead of "pieces?"

Judge Fisher has tendered his resignation, and it has been forwarded by the Attorney-General to the President.

A famine is threatened in Portugal, and riots against grain exporters are imminent. The cattle are dying of hunger. The local authorities report that it will be impossible to collect taxes in many places, and an attempt to do so would cause an insurrection. Accounts from Algarve show a similar state of affairs in that province. Relief has been afforded by the Portuguese government.

The American naval crew won the boat race at Callao on the 5th of July, beating the Peruvian and English war crews.

One of the guests of the Old Orchard House, which was burned last week, lost $8000, which she had placed under her pillow and forgot in her excitement; another forgot her jewelry case, but some one went back after it and carelessly threw it from the window, scattering the valuables in every direction, and in gathering them up a $1000 diamond ring was not missed till a bystander picked it up and restored it.

New Durham has two wild men, almost naked and not to be caught. They indulge in the pastime of alarming people, and when pursued make off eight or ten feet at a jump.

Commodore Cooper telegraphed on Monday that there were sixty-five cases of yellow fever at Pensacola Navy Yard, and that seven persons had already died of that malady. The Secretary of the Navy gave orders to abandon the yard at once and place it in charge of some acclimated person who is to be in telegraphic communication with the Department through Commodore Cooper, wherever he may locate headquarters.

The large dwelling of David L. Magoon at Raymond took fire Sabbath morning and was consumed with most of the furniture and barn with hay.

Information is received of the wreck, April 14th, of the ship Stuart Hahneman, on the voyage from Bombay. Five of her crew arrived at Helena. The remainder, thirty-eight in number, were drowned. The survivors were thirteen days at sea in an open boat.

The Cincinnati Gazette says that "if Massachusetts does not take heed Kentucky will be in the line of republican States first." Kentucky votes next Monday, and will undoubtedly make a handsome republican gain.

At a meeting of the Governor and Council, Monday evening, the following appointments were confirmed: Insurance Commissioner, Oliver Pillsbury, Concord; Trustees of the State Asylum for the Insane, E. A. Hibbard, Laconia; Charles H. Bell, Exeter, and Albert Smith, Peterboro: Trustees of State Normal School, King S. Hall, Gilford; George A. Bingham, Littleton; Clinton Averill, Milford; S. B. Page, Concord; W. H. H. Allen, Claremont; D. W. Buckminster, Keene; Wm. M. Weed, Sandwich; Commissioners of Pharmacy and Practical Chemistry, Charles A. Tufts, Dover; Chas. S. Eastman, Concord, and Elias S. Russell, Nashua; Special Justice of the Police Court at Concord, A. B. Thompson; Warden of State Prison, John C. Pillsbury, Concord; Agents to Expend Appropriations on Mountain Roads, Charles H. Greenleaf and James E. Pattee, Franconia Notch, Charles Milliken, Gorham; Pinkham, Notch road, and John Lindsay, Crawford roads. According to the law shortening the terms of convicts in the State Prison, the following convicts were pardoned: Augustus King, Joseph Young, John Smith and Charles Mellen.

Salvador dates to the 4th July state that President Gonzales, on his arrival at San Miguel, established order in that scene of Catholic riots and violence. It was discovered that arrangements for similar outbreaks were prepared all over the Republic in the name of religion. The Provisor Rodriguez, Bishop Carcamo, and canons Orellana and Vecchiditti have been expelled from the country. The Bishop of Teda and seven priests have also been sent out of the country to Nicaragua.

"Is it hot in Florida?" is answered by J. H. Kimball, who in a letter from San Mateo (which is five miles from Palatka) to the Boston Globe, dated July 12th, states that the temperature was then but 86 at noon, and a breeze was blowing that necessitated the tying on of hats.

The Postmaster-General has selected a mail route along the shores of the lakes for a fast mail train for the West, which will begin to run about the first of October. The distance from New York to Chicago is to be made in twenty-six hours, possibly in twenty-four, a gain of twelve hours over the present time. The train will have four large postal cars of improved construction, capable of carrying thirty-five tons of matter, and it is thought by the Department that the amount carried will reach forty-five tons before the expiration of six months. The greater part of the work of distribution will be done on the cars. Newspapers will be taken in by the bundle, and folded and distributed on the route. Relays of clerks will be stationed at Syracuse Buffalo and Toledo.

John Morrissy.

[Saratoga cor. Cinn. Commercial.]

If you think John Morrissey's views of no consequence, because one of his avocations is gambling, you do not know the man. He is one of the powers in New York politics. Many years ago, refusing to be tractable and bend the knee to Tweed, he was tabooed by the Tammany of that day. He picked out Tilden as a man to rally under, and stuck to him through thick and thin, until he saw him elected Governor of the State. When Tilden was running against Dix, Morrissey was the only man in the State of New York who wagered money wildly upon him. The election filled his pockets and enlarged his confidence. He was a delegate in the convention which nominated Tilden. After the election it seemed convenient for the reorganized Tammany, of which John Kelley was head, to put such a man as Fitz John Porter in the front, and forget the claims of the man who had fought Sullivan, Poole, Heenan, and all the species that would accept his challenge. In short, Morrissey was Morrissey, and power had got to be respectable. But there was this advantage possessed by the ex-pounder of the physical constitution. He wouldn't scare. If there is a man above the crust of the earth, to-day, who cannot scare, it is this towboat-man of Troy. The kick of a mule, a newspaper cut, a double-barreled shot-gun, or expulsion from Tammany Hall, has no terrors for him. His courage is physical, moral, mental, organic. Achilles was his inferior, in that Morrissey had his heel dipped, whereas Achilles, held by the heel, weakened just there.

Such a head was never planted on shoulders. It is like a helmet inclosing another face. I have heard it said that his mother could whip an able bodied man. Surely this is the most singular of all the prize fighters. All his generation is in the grave—Hyer of liquor, Poole of murder, Sullivan of suicide, Heenan of self-inflicted disease, Sayers of success. This man survives all of them. Once he was the most unpopular man in America, when he bet against Heenan in the ring in England. He has plenty of people who like him now, but it is hard to draw close to him, for there is too much of the ogre about Morrissey to comprehend him within human lines. A solid, driving business man, without a lazy bone in his body, passionate, but not voluptuous, kind to his inferiors, independent with superiors, diplomatic, but not overbearing, too, he always reminds me of the docile giant in the story books, who no sooner grew mad than he ate one of the seven little Jacks. He has one or two sprees a year—not more—when he walks against awning posts and they fall down, shakes hands with friends who go lame forever, and exhibits a dreadful picture of the grandeur and importance of an engaged Achilles. If this man had lived in Rome, and been matched in the arena against the early Christians, he would have suppressed the entire sect. He would have given more joy in the Coliseum than any man of that age. His physique and head are his excuse for pugilism, because no such form was ever erected for any other known purpose than to be punched; like some great Thracian barbarian he is surrounded with every physical and social element. His wife trained him for his great fight with Heenan. He went to Congress by travelling from door to door and saying to his constituents that he had been born so poor and ignorant that the only way he had to get up in the world was his fist, and now he wanted to wash out that record for his son's sake, by going to Congress. Go he did, twice. While there he performed honestly. There are real elements in him, as in the Siberian bloodhound, but with all his fascination he is still scarcely a domestication. The great point about the man is that he is never mean, craven nor fawning. If you gamble in his house you gamble with your master.

Inferences.

[Detroit Free Press.]

He slipped into an ice cream saloon very softly, and when the girl asked him what he wanted he replied:

"Corn beef, fried potatoes, pickles and mince pie."

"This is not a restaurant; this is an ice cream parlor," she said.

"Then what did you ask me what I want ed for? Why didn't you bring on your ice cream?"

She went after it, and as she returned he continued:

"You see, my dear girl, you must infer—you must reason. It isn't likely that I would come into an ice cream parlor to buy a grindstone, is it? You didn t think I came in here to ask if you had any baled hay, did you?"

She looked at him in great surprise, and he went on:

"If I owned a hardware store and you came in, I would infer that you came in for something in my line. I wouldn't step out and ask you if you wanted to buy a mule, would I?"

She went away highly indignant. An old lady was devouring a dish of ice cream at the next table, and the stranger, after watching her for a moment, called out:

"My dear woman, have you found any hairs or buttons in your dish?"

"Mercy! no!" she exclaimed, as she wheeled around and dropped her spoon.

"Well, I am glad of it," he continued. "If you find any, just let me know."

She looked at him for half a minute, picked up the spoon, laid it down again, and then rose up and left the room. She must have said something to the proprietor, for he came running in and exclaimed:

"Did you tell that woman that there were hairs and buttons in my ice cream?"

"No, sir."

"You didn't?"

"No, sir, I did not; I merely requested her, in case she found any such ingredients, to inform me?"

"Well, sir, that was a mean trick."

"My dear sir," said the stranger, smiling softly, "did you expect me to ask the woman if she had found a crowbar or a sledge hammer in her cream? It is impossible, sir, for such articles to be hidden away in such small dishes."

The proprietor went away growling, and as the stranger quietly supped away at his cream two young ladies came in, sat down near him and ordered cream and cake. He waited until they had eaten a little, and then he remarked:

"Beg pardon, ladies, but do you observe anything peculiar in the taste of this ice cream?"

They tasted, smacked their lips and were not certain.

"Does it taste to you as if a plug of tobacco had fallen into the freezer?" he asked.

"Ah! kah!" they exclaimed, dropping their spoons and trying to spit out what they had eaten. Both rushed out, and it wasn't long before the proprietor rushed in.

"See here, what in blazes are you talking about?" he demanded. "What do you mean by plug tobacco in the freezer?"

"My dear friend, I asked the ladies if this cream tasted of plug tobacco. I don't taste any such taste, and I don't believe you used a bit of tobacco in it!"

"Well, you don't want to talk that way around here!" continued the proprietor. "My ice cream is pure, and the man who says it isn't tells a bold lie!"

He went away again and a woman with a long neck and a sad face sat down and said to the girl that she would take a small dish of lemon ice.

It was brought, and she had taken about two mouthfuls when the stranger inquired:

"Excuse me, madame, but do you know how this cream was made. Have you an idea that they grated turnip and chalk with the cream?"

She didn't reply. She slowly rose up, wheeled around and made for the door. The stranger followed after, and by great good luck his coat-tails cleared the door an instant too soon to be struck by a five-pound box of figs, hurled with great force by the indignant proprietor. As he reached the curbstone he halted, looked at the door of the parlor, and soliloquized:

"There are times when people should infer, and there are times when they should not. I suppose if I had asked that woman if she thought they hashed up a sawmill in the cream she'd have felt a circular saw going down her throat."

—A Baltimore paper tells the story of a mysterious family of Germans, consisting of a man and his wife and son, named Scharf, living in that city, to which they came several years ago. During the first year they supported themselves by tailoring, but being disappointed in work, began to seclude themselves, and have since lived in total darkness, except the mere glimmer of a little lamp. The two sash doors were boarded up, as also the transom and the window; the keyhole even, and every crack were chinked, so that not a ray of light could enter. They held no communication with the outside world. Neither the man nor the woman would ever appear, except occasionally before daylight they were seen in the yard for a few moments. The boy, aged about 19 years, went out several mornings each week and begged something to eat. He would stand at a stall until something was put in his dirty basket, then pass on without saying a word. At first they paid the room rent in a civil manner, but when they began their seclusion they refused to answer when any one would rap, and the bill for rent would be pushed under the door, and when they were ready to pay it they would hand the money over the door. About two years ago they went to Washington and told the President of extensive robberies in the District, and of a combination to assassinate him. They have shown fight on some occasions. Recently two gentlemen of the neighborhood stopped the boy in the yard for a chat, but he began to shriek murder, which brought out the old man armed with a carving knife and the old woman, who yelled lustily. Recently they were arrested and the room placed in charge of the Health Inspector. A large manuscript book in the handwriting of the old man contains a record of his "talks with God and Angels." In his native town in Germany, it is stated, he was known for considerable intellectual ability.

—"Oh, yes, gimme ten cents' worth of hair pins," added an up-river farmer, as he was about to leave a store, and while they were being handed down he continued: "It's h'ar pins to-day and ribbons to-morrow and a toothbrush the next day. The gal is always wanting some flim-flam thing, and I shouldn't be surprised if she'd some day get up and want me to bring home one of them combs with a brass back."—Detroit Free Press.

—A Milwaukee belle, attending a theatre in that city recently, complained in one of the scenes that the light was too dim to show the acting properly. "Won't you try this glass?" asked her escort, handing her his lorgnette. Hastily covering the suspicious looking object with her handkerchief, she placed it to her lips, took a long pull, and then handed it back in great disgust, saying: "Why, there ain't a drop in it."

Jottings.

The committee having in charge the pic-nic of the Middle Street Baptist Sunday School have decided upon going to Pinkham's grove on the P. & D. R. R., to-morrow. Tickets 50 cents for adults, 30 cents for children.

The crew of yacht Viva caught two swordfish weighing 600 lbs. on their way back to Portland from the Shoals.

The Appledore is filled to overflowing, and many distinguished personages have been booked the past week. On Monday, among the boarders were: Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Judge Daniel Clark, Chas. Levi Woodbury, Mrs. Oakes Ames, C. A. Richards, C. E. Rymes, Rufus Hatch, S. R. Niles, Julius Eichberg, John Weiss, H. C. Barnabee, J. C. Abbott, Maj. J. H. Sleeper, Col. G. W. Bailey, G. A. Somerby, Jacob Wendell, L. S. Frost, Capt. Samuel Harding, Col. W. B. Greene, L. S. Jones, Mrs. Jared Sparks, E. H. Arnold, S. G. Rogers, W. Rotch Angier, and Geo. Rumull of Peru, S. A.

Many of the jolly tars of the U. S. S. Lancaster were paid off and discharged on Tuesday, most of them taking the first train for Boston, accompanied by monkeys, parrots, cats and other pets.

Mr. C. McCloud has sent a letter to Bell's Life, London, agreeing to match Mr. W. S. Harding to walk two races against William Perkins, champion pedestrian of England, for $500 a side and the fifty-mile championship of the world; the first to take place in New York in September, and the second in London, England, in October. "Sam" is visiting Portsmouth, his native place, and will soon go into training.

A pic-nic party near the Wentworth House named their camp in honor of the hospitable landlord, Camp-Bell.

The agent of the Associated Press reports that Gen. Butler has succeeded in arranging two races between the yachts America and Resolute, one an open sweepstakes, and the second with time allowance of sixteen minutes to the America if thirty miles constitute the course. These races are announced to come off on Saturday, 31st, and August 2, and the unawarded prizes of the first class will be awarded to the winner. It is very probable that the next race will be either twenty miles to windward and return, or around Boon Island light and return, a distance of thirty-six miles.

Shade Trees.

Messrs. Editors: Allow me to call your attention and that of all citizens of Portsmouth, to the following extract from the city ordinances, being section 18 of chapter 18:

"Any person or persons who shall, without leave first had and obtained from the mayor and aldermen of this city, dig up, remove, destroy or mutilate any shade trees situated and growing within the limits of any public street or highway in or passing through this city, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, for each tree dug up, removed, destroyed or mutilated as aforesaid."

This ordinance, we grieve to say, affords even when enforced, but a poor protection for our beautiful shade trees,—the great beauty and glory of our city. For it has only too often occurred that the necessary permission has been granted without the proper examination into the circumstances of the case, and many a noble tree has been laid low, to the lasting injury of our streets, and to the regret of all lovers of the beautiful, merely to gratify the lust for destruction which seems to take possession of some people.

But within the last week or two even this ordinance has been flagrantly violated, and a tree, planted and reared by careful hands, and in some respects almost invaluable, has been ruthlessly destroyed, without leave or license from anybody. Because the violator of the law is one of our first citizens, ought the matter to be winked out of sight? At least let us continue to have the poor protection which the law affords for our beautiful shade trees,—which ought to be the pride of every heart. CITIZEN.

A New View of Bunker Hill.

[Max Adeler.]

A month or two ago Colonel Bangs engaged a young fellow named Scudder as sub-editor of the Morning Argus. On the day before the anniversary of Bunker Hill, Bangs asked Scuddor if he was familiar with the history of that battle, and Scudder said he was. So Bangs told Scudder he would like him to write up a little sketch of it for the anniversary day, and Scudder said he would try. The next morning the sketch appeared in the Argus and attracted a good deal of attention. When Bangs saw it he called Scudder in and said:

"Mr. Scudder, didn't you tell me you thought you were familiar with the battle of Bunker Hill?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, if that is the case I will be obliged to you if you will mention to me what you mean when you say:

"'By four o'clock the Confederate troops were ready to make the attack. General Washington had the catapults put in line to await their coming, and when Napoleon saw them he drew his sword and exclaimed, "Soldiers! twenty centuries look down upon you.'

"Now, Mr. Scudder, if you had possessed the most ordinary acquaintance with that conflict you would have been aware that Napoleon was not present, and that the idea of George Washington fighting the Confederate Army with catapults is calculated to excite the derision of educated persons. And I wish to direct your attention, Mr. Scudder, to another historical inaccuracy. At the bottom of the second column there you say:

"'No sooner were the battering rams levelled against the walls of the castle than the duke of Wellington sent word to his mother by General Butler that he would either win or be brought home on his shield. Then, ordering his men to fire at the whites of his enemy's eyes, he awaited the onset with that majestic calmness which ever distinguished the hero of Buena Vista.'

"Now, I don't want to hurt your feelings, Mr. Scudder, but really, for a journalist, you know, this kind of thing won't do. You certainly must realize that the battle of Bunker Hill was not fought in a castle with battering-rams; and at any rate, when you allude to the duke of Wellington communicating with General Butler, and connect him with Buena Vista, there is actually no hope of your forming public opinion on those topics. The public mind is made up. And then a little further on, in the next column, you say—

"'This was the very crisis of the battle. Joan of Arc, spying General Jackson behind the cotton bales, dashed at him upon her snow-white charger, swinging her ponderous battle-axe above her head; her fair hair streamed behind her in the wind. As her steed pressed forward, her hair caught in the bough of a tree, and as she hung there, Sergeant Bates shot her through the heart with a bolt from an arquebuss. Her last words were: "Don't give up the ship.'

"Now you see, Mr. Scudder, this kind of thing sets people to talking. It hurts the paper. You've got Absalom mixed up somehow in your mind with Joan of Arc, who died about ten thousand years before General Jackson, who wasn't at Bunker Hill, and who never knew Sergeant Bates any more than Sergeant Bates knows how to fire an arquebuss. Arquebuss! Gracious Heaven! I'm afraid this office 'll be mobbed before night. The community is not excitable, but it can't stand more than a certain amount of insult. Sergeant Bates will write us a couple of thousand letters about that allusion to him, and maybe he'll come to see us. No doubt you meant well, but you've about done the business for us, especially here, where you say:

"'The duke could stand it no longer. The Mamelukes had slain all of his vanguard, General Sickles had lost his leg and retired on a pension, and the enemy's skirmishers, lodged in the top of the monument, were pouring boiling oil on those who attempted to scale it. Leaping upon his horse, he shouted "Up, guards, and at them!" and the next moment, with glorious flag of truce in one hand and his sword in the other, he hurled his legions upon the lava beds, and crushed the savage foe to the earth, killing, among others, the well-known General Harrison, afterward President of the United States."

"The duke! Mamelukes! Flag of truce! Lava beds! Awful, sir, awful! The Argus is a goner! Gone up, Mr. Scudder! Slain! But how could you have scared up that idea about a man fighting with a flag of truce in his hand? And how, O, how could you have killed a man who you admit was afterward President of the United States? No comic paper ever surpassed this. It is terrible. I think we shall have to part, Mr. Scudder. It seems to me that your career as a journalist ought to come to an end right here. I will accept your resignation.

"And if any one asks you why you left the Argus, point to this last paragraph and say that it was because the proprietor was afraid he'd murder you when he read your statement that 'At the battle of Bunker Hill the Confederates lost 80,000 and the Carthagenians only 600,' and that 'there is no spot in Virginia that the people hold more sacred than that bloody hill where the bones of Cromwell lie with those of Roger Williams, as if in life they had never fought against each other in the cause of the constitution and cheap transportation. Point to that language, Mr. Scudder, and your friends will understand the situation. Good morning."

Then Mr. Scudder withdrew, and he is now looking for another newspaper to ruin.

—So Spinner, after handling hundreds of millions, comes out $2 ahead. Frame that bill, General, and hang it up for your posterity to be proud of.—Mail.

—When the Communists plundered the house of M. Thiers they captured some of the love-letters he wrote when younger, and they are now offered for sale in London.

Don't Make War on the Stomach.

If you are bilious, dyspeptic and constipated-don't make war on the stomach by successively swallowing blue pills, strong purgatives and powerful astringments. Such a procedure damages digestion and weakens the bowels, leaving stomach, liver and intestines, after the immediate effect, in a condition of greater disorder than before. That complete relief which remedies of the above description signally fail to afford is obtained by using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. And for the best of reasons. Biliousness is the result of inactivity of the liver, dyspepsia of weakness of the digestive organs, and constipation is produced by the above causes operating together. The Bitters, being a powerful stomachic, overcome indigestion by stimulating the secretion of gastric juice, relieve biliousness by promoting great or activity of the liver, and thus enable the bowels to act with renewed regularity.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Nelly and the Baby.

[Washington Cor. Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Those who knew Mrs. Sartoris as a girl, a belle and a wife, will admire her even more as a mother, and her friends are crowding upon her their congratulations upon the attainment of the purest and the grandest womanly ambition. Esteem and pleasure and congratulation have taken every form, and the proud young mother is bewildered with poetry and presents. All of Washington has been wondering why the little fellow was not allowed to be "borned" in the White House, so as to have started out in life's journey with the greatest possible eclat; a great deal of indignation is expressed by ambitious mothers at the slight imposed upon the youngster. But grandmother Grant has answered all this gossip with the remark: "It's so much more healthy for Nellie here, where the air is fresh and the breezes cool; and we weren't going to risk our daughter in the heat and excitement at Washington for the mere privilege of having a grandson born in the White House."

A Long Branch correspondent says: "I saw Mrs. Algernon Sartoris, nee Nellie Grant, on the balcony of the Presidential mansion this afternoon. She was looking pale and wan, but a radiant smile of seeming happiness rested upon her pleasant, kindly countenance. We think a great deal of the little lady here; none but the poor in this village know her many past acts of charity and benevolence to both white and black. Her babe is a fine boy, resembling much its good little mother."

—An old sailor lolling on a vessel in the Maumee river at Toledo, O., saw two young ladies of the city enjoying a row on the stream, and handling the oars with great skill. As they glided swiftly past the veteran of the lakes, he slowly removed the tobacco from his mouth, placed his arms a-kimbo, and solemnly remarked to a shipmate near, "Well, I'll be durned if you can't teach them things most anything."

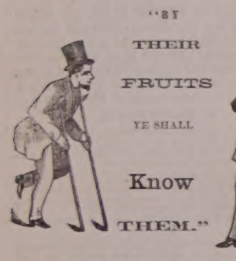
—Mistress—"Let you go to evening school, Mary? Why, I thought you could read?" "Well, ma'am, I does know my letters fus' rate so long's they keep all in a row, but jus' as soon as they gits mixed up into words, I'm beat."

—A Maryland highwayman bought a revolver of a friend for $3. Then he recovered his original investment and $8 besides.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wollaston, Fourcroy, Vanquilin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its eliminations must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing.

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Pulmocine Cordial.

—The dowager duchess of Montrose has sent over an agent to get definite information respecting the estate of the late Paran Stevens, the former landlord of the Revere House in Boston and the Fifth-avenue Hotel in New York. Her son, the fifth duke of Montrose, a young fellow of twenty-three, is in love with Mr. Stevens' daughter and heiress, and if the old lady is satisfied with the results of her investigation, he will marry the American girl. The Montrose family is one of the oldest in the Scottish nobility, but "in reduced circumstances."

—A famous auctioneer, after exhausting the language of praise in extolling a certain gentleman's park which had to fall under his hammer, said he was bound, as an honest man, not to conceal drawbacks to the property, which were the litter made by the rose leaves and the perpetual din kept up by the nightingales.

—It was a Connecticut editor who wrote, "Is there a balm in Gilead?" and read next day, "Is there a barn in Guilford?"

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM

AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what exent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors. It completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as of most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that penned by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

AN ACT authorizing the town of Groton to send a representative to the general court.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That the town of Groton, not having the number of ratable polls required by the constitution, be and is hereby authorized to send a representative to the general court.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT authorizing the town of Bridgewater to send a representative to the general court.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That the town of Bridgewater, not having the number of ratable polls required by the constitution for a representative, be and hereby is authorized to send a representative to the general court.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to enable the town of Dummer to send a representative to the general court.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That the town of Dummer, having less than the constitutional number of ratable polls, may send a representative to the general court until otherwise ordered.

SEC. 2. This act shall be in force from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to a contingent fund for the governor.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of five hundred dollars be allowed as the contingent fund for the governor, and that he may draw his warrant therefor, in such sums and at such times as he may deem proper.

Approved June 30, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION for printing agricultural reports.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the report of the board of agriculture be printed and distributed in the usual manner, under the direction of the secretary, and that hereafter the copy for reports be prepared and placed in the hands of the public printer on or before the first day of May annually.

Approved June 30, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the state library.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of three hundred dollars be appropriated for the use of the state library, to supply deficiencies therein, and defray the expenses of binding certain books and publications, and the governor be authorized to draw his warrant therefor out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Approved July 1, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to the State Normal School.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of five thousand dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated to the State Normal School; one thousand of which shall be appropriated for books, apparatus, and furnishing rooms in the normal school building, and the remainder for the payment of teachers, the janitor, fuel, and other necessary expenses. Said sum of five thousand dollars shall be expended under the direction of the trustees of said school in such manner as shall be for its best interests, in accordance with this resolution; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant for the same.

Approved July 1, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to balance of expenses of trustees of the State Normal School.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of three hundred dollars be appropriated for the payment of balances due for expenses of the trustees of the State Normal School out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the governor is authorized to draw his warrant therefor.

Approved July 2, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the Exeter savings bank.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

Whereas the Exeter savings bank has been enjoined from doing business, and its affairs are now being wound up by assignees appointed by the court, who have divided among its depositors a large proportion of its assets, and are about to divide the balance, and whereas the assignees in the process of closing up its affairs have been obliged to collect the assets and convert them into cash and place the money on deposit where it yields a very small percentage to the depositors, therefore resolved:

That the tax of one per cent. on the deposits and accumulations in said bank on the first day of April, 1875, be and the same hereby is remitted to said Exeter savings bank, and the treasurer is hereby directed not to enforce the payment of said tax.

Approved July 2, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the Dover five cents savings bank.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

Whereas, the Dover five cents savings bank, by depreciation of its securities, has lost nearly one third part of its deposits; and

Whereas, said deposits were to a large extent the property of widows and orphans and poor people who had all their property and savings deposited in said bank; therefore,

Resolved, That one third of the tax of one per cent. on the deposits and accumulations in said bank on the first day of April, 1875, payable to the state treasurer on or before the fifteenth day of June, A. D. 1875, be and the same hereby is remitted to said Dover five cent savings bank, and that the state treasurer be and hereby is authorized and instructed, in case said tax has been paid into the state treasury, to refund the same to the said Dover five cents savings bank.

Approved July 2, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in relation to the geological specimens furnished the state by the state geologist.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the geological specimens furnished the state by the state geologist be handed over to and placed in trust of the State Normal School, to be used by said school for purposes of instruction; provided, however, that such part of these specimens as the state geologist, the principal of the State Normal School, and the secretary of the board of agriculture may select, shall be kept for the rooms of the board of agriculture in the state house.

Approved July 2, 1875.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, JULY 29, 1875.

The burglars who succeeded in breaking into the Winthrop National Bank, it is now ascertained, made a first attempt on the Savings Bank at Dexter, Me., but were foiled. The attempt at breaking was known at the time, but was supposed to be the work of home vagabonds, until the officers looking up the Winthrop robbers traced them back to Dexter, and identified their work by the tools found. Three men suspected of being accomplices have been arrested in Boston.

It isn't pretty, and we don't believe it is wise for the officers of national banks, which have been declaring annual dividends of from ten to twenty per cent. right along for the last few years, to get together and whine about taxation, as they are doing at Saratoga.—Springfield Union.

This is the exhaustive way in which the St. Paul Pioneer-Press discusses the ticket of the Minneosta democracy: "It doesn't take more than two or three rotten eggs to spoil a custard—and that's what's the matter with the democratic ticket."

There is no class of citizens in Lawrence so deeply sorry for the late riot as the Irish. The persons who assailed the Orangemen and shouted at the Mayor, are simply blackguards, and nothing more; and the most regrettable thing about the riot is that a dozen of them are not in State prison for their crime.—Boston Pilot.

A dwelling-house and stable belonging to Weymouth Wilkinson, situated near the Eastern Railroad depot at South Berwick Junction, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 26th. The house was unoccupied. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary. Loss $10,000; no insurance.

Secretary Bristow has appointed James Gilfilan to be Chief Clerk in place of Avery.

Jonathan W. Tappan, a mail-carrier from Woltboro Junction, to Brookfield, was struck on the railroad crossing at the former place by a down freight train, injuring him so severely that amputation of the right leg became necessary. No blame is attached to the railroad employes.

An unknown person in the woods below South Merrimack fired four shots at a marketman on his way to Nashua. The man had a narrow escape. It was probably by a tramp. The whole country appears to be infested with a gang of villains. Much excitement exists on account of the frequent bold burglaries and the desperate character of the persons engaged in them.

An attempt at robbery was made one night recently, at the house of Dr. A. H. Varney at South Newmarket. Two masked burglars effected an entrance between one and two o'clock in the morning. All of the doctor's family were absent—himself and wife at Hampton beach; but there were three persons in the house—the maid left in charge, and two men, one the doctor's father, the other a lodger. The burglars went into the latter's room and struck a match, which woke him up, when he threw his boot-jack at them and started in pursuit. They made their escape, however, entered a carriage which stood in waiting, and drove off. It must have been some one not used to the business, they were so bungling about it. Matches were found strewn all over the house.

At Hampton Falls, people save their cherries from the birds by having a bell with a long line attached, in the tree; the line can be taken in at a window and pulled occasionally to ring the bell.

Nathaniel D. Leavitt of Campton lost a horse by drowning while fording the river between West Campton and Campton Village, a few days ago. The water was shoal, but it was thought the accident was occasioned by the horse having a fit.

A Montpelier, Vt., dispatch of the 26th July says: A couple of young men went to the farmhouse of Emerson Hill, in West Berlin, Saturday, his wife being alone, got some dinner and then called for money and liquor. Mrs. Hill ordered them to leave and dashed most of a pail of hot water in the face of one, who attempted to seize her, scalding him badly, while his companion, coming to the rescue, received the remainder on his arm. Becoming alarmed they left the house and set fire to the shed, which was seasonably discovered and extinguished by Mrs. Hill. Monday forenoon they set fire to some small buildings belonging to Mrs. Hill, in the woods, which was also extinguished by her and a neighbor. In the afternoon she saw a woman approaching her house, but suspecting it was a man in disguise, shut and locked the door on him, when four men armed with revolvers appeared and broke the door in with an axe. Mrs. Hill escaped through a back window, and they pursued and fired two shots, one of which grazed her ear. The neighbors were alarmed, and several men armed with guns have been in pursuit of the rascals, but at latest accounts without success. Two of the fellows were again seen Monday evening.

Nine Convicts Escaping.

[N. Y. Sun, 24th July.

For months past a gang of Blackwell Island convicts has been at work in the quarry and on the sea wall of Randall's Island, and the steamer Minnehannock has carried them to and from their work. At five o'clock last evening the steamer started from Randall's Island with a large number of passengers and the gang of one hundred convicts, equally divided in the fore and aft holds. Deputy Warden Miner was in charge, and seven keepers assisted him. The guard boat keeper, William Connolly, as was his custom, fastened his boat to the stern of the Minnehannock and kept watch from the deck. Opposite Eighty-fourth street he saw the head of a man start up out of the water astern of the boat. His first thought was that they had run over one of the bathers that line the banks of the river at that hour. But another head popped up, and then another, and the keeper realized that these heads belonged to convicts who ought to be in that steamer. He instantly gave the alarm, and sprang for his boat. Some of the keepers hurried into the hold to stop the leakage of convicts; others drew their revolvers and made targets of the bobbing heads. The steamer was brought to, and the excited passengers grew more excited every moment.

Meantime Connolly had untied his boat and got into her, followed by Keeper George Coleman, an active young man. They rowed directly for the shore and Coleman got out, while Connolly rowed after a man he saw not far off in the water. The convict swam right into a group of swimmers, and when he emerged from the water he was as nude as any of them. As he ran up the rocks Connolly drew his revolver and ordered him to stop. "Don't shoot! Don't shoot!" begged the man, "I'll come down," and he did, and sat in his primitive attire in the stern of the boat, while Connolly cruised for more convicts. He found no more, however, and then took his prisoner to Blackwell's Island. He proved to be Edward Douglass, who was sentenced on the 1st of July to five months' imprisonment for petty larceny.

Keeper Coleman, whom Connolly had put ashore, ran up Seventy-seventh street, and had not gone far before he saw three men walking fast ahead of him. Near Second avenue one of the men dodged away from the rest into an open space toward Seventy-eighth street. Coleman chased after him, and after an exciting race, in which he fired at the prisoner, he captured him, marched him to Murray's boat house at Fifty-second street, and took him to the island. This was Phillip Schwartz, a two years' prisoner, who was sentenced in October, 1874, for grand larceny. While this human hunt had been going on, the Minnehannock landed the remainder of her load of convicts at the island, and they were hurried to their cells. The tallies were quickly examined, and it was found that nine men had escaped.

Besides Edwin Douglass and Phillip Schwartz, there were Henry Smith, nineteen years old, sentenced in February last for eighteen months; Thos. Clark, aged twenty-one, sentenced in June for two years; James Tully, eighteen years old, sentenced in September, 1874, for two years; Jas. Robinson, seventeen years old, who had served one year of his two years' term; Timothy Sullivan, twenty-five years old, sentenced in June last for five months for larceny; Patrick Sloan, a burglar, twenty years old, who commenced in October last to serve a term of two years and six months; and James Farley, alias St. Clair, twenty-four years old, sentenced in April last to serve a term of fourteen months.

The alarm was sent out, Commissioner Bailey made his appearance on the island, and the Warden Fox and a posse of keepers started for the city.

Officers Kenney and Cronie of the mounted police were at work in the stables in Eighty-seventh street, near the river, at a quarter past 6 o'clock, when a street rumor reached them of the escapade. They ran out as they were, without mounting, and engaged in a volunteer hunt. Officer Kenney spied a man running up Eighty-sixth street, and chased him. He overhauled the fellow between Avenue A and First Avenue, and secured him without resistance. The man proved to be James Farley, convicted of assault and battery and attempt at burglary. He had discarded his prison uniform, and had on a partial suit of civilian clothes. He was taken to the Eighty-eighth street station.

Officer Cronie, about the same time overhauled one of the runaways in Eighty-sixth street, bringing him to bay at First avenue, where the fellow surrendered without a struggle. He was found to be Patrick Sloan. He was dressed in a partial suit of civilian clothes. The two convicts both reached the shore near Eighty-fourth street.

Officer Kenney received instructions, on taking in these prisoners, to mount and continue the search. Officer Kenney rode along Avenue B, keeping a diligent lookout on all suspicious places. On approaching the stable of Nesbitt & Irving, between Seventy-ninth and Eightieth streets, his attention was directed to the movements of a stableman peering cautiously out the door. As the officers neared the stable he thought he heard voices inside. He dismounted and went up to the door, at which the stableman came out and asked what was the matter. The officer replied, "Nothing."

"Are you looking for anything?" innocently queried the stableman.

"Nothing but what I can find, I guess," replied the officer, as he pushed his way into the stable, whereupon the stableman disappeared. A search of the stable proper revealed nothing; but just as the officer was about to withdraw he espied a man watching him from the loft through a small hatchway. Kenney quickly climbed up and seized the man, the two coming to the floor together, the captured rather on top, in which position he was about to follow up his advantage by an assault upon his captor, but reinforcements arrived, and he was secured. He turned out to be Timothy Sullivan. He had a full suit of dry, civilian clothing on, probably furnished him by the stableman. He lacked only shoes to complete his outfit. These prisoners were all taken to the Eighty-eighth street station, and thence returned to the island in the evening.

One of the runaways, whose name has not yet been learned, on emerging from the water naked, ran into a German gardener's house in Seventy-sixth street and begged a pair of trousers. He said that he had been in bathing and that his clothes were stolen.

An examination of the aft hold of the Minnehannock revealed the fact that the convicts had escaped through one of the dead lights. There are two dead lights in the aft hold, each about ten inches in diameter and about four feet from the floor. About a year ago an attempt was made to escape by convicts, who broke the thick glass of the dead lights. They did not succeed, and afterward the glass was not replaced, but the lights were boarded up. The convicts wrenched the boards from one of the lights, and managed to enlarge the hole enough to admit a man's body. It was a very tight squeeze, though. Then the men stripped and dropped into the water one by one. Some of the witnesses say that when the convicts reached the shore they grabbed what clothes they could from among the many garments of the bathers. Others say that men on shore assisted them and furnished the clothes.

The time and place for making the attempt were well chosen. The banks were lined with noisy bathers, and the steamer Bristol passing as the men dropped into the water. Between Eightieth and Ninetieth streets a strong current sets toward the New York shore, and when the men dropped into the water they were not more than 100 yards from the shore, an easy swim for "wharf rats."

Sloan and Farley claimed the honor of being the leaders in the escape. Sloan says he left first and Farley next, and that they were in the water some time before any one dared follow. Sloan is an English burglar, and is known among the convicts as "the Cockney."

"He's a little fellow," said a keeper, "but he makes lots of mischief."

Late last night Smith, Clark, Tully, and Robinson were at large.

An Incident of the French Inundation.

Writing of the disasters by the inundations in France, a correspondent says, "At St. Cyprien, the suburb of Toulouse, which suffered so severely, M. Maurette, a well-known sculptor who resided there, but who had his atelier in the town, was at work in the latter, when he was informed of the risk to which his family, whom he had left in the Faubourg, were exposed. He immediately hastened home, and began to pack up his valuables and prepare to retreat with his wife, two girls eight and nine years old, and a little boy in his mother's arms. But the flood had been too quick for them. In less than a quarter of an hour it had risen more than four feet, and their house was surrounded before they were aware of it. As the water rose higher and higher they moved from stage to stage, until they reached the roof along with other families who had taken refuge there. Thus they stood, the father holding his two little girls by the hand, the mother carrying her boy, till darkness set in, the flood still rising, and the houses around them giving way before it one after the other with fearful crash. At last their own house began to totter and crack, and give other signs that it was no longer a safe place of refuge. Another house at some little distance off seemed to offer a stouter resistance, and one of their party, who was a good swimmer, threw himself into the water, and by great effort succeeded in climbing on to the other roof. Unfortunately, in taking his spring from that on which he had before been standing, he threw down Mme. Maurette, with her child in her arm, and, although the former was laid hold of and rescued, the child was carried away by the flood, and perished before the eyes of its father, who could only just save his fainting wife. By good luck, in the house to which their companion had escaped, a roll of calico twenty-five yards long was found. On one end of this an iron was tied, and after many attempts swung across, and a communication thus opened with the other house. The two little girls were successfully made fast to the end of the roll and dragged through the water. Mme. Maurette was next tied to it and had also nearly gained the other roof, when the strength of those who supported her failed, and she fell back into the water. For a moment she seemed lost, but her husband, throwing himself in, in his turn, and swimming to her, supported her until a fresh effort could be made above, when both were eventually hoisted up. The night was passed in cold and wet, expecting death almost hourly. But the house resisted, and by the morning the water had fallen sufficiently to enable the party to wade ashore."

Holding the Candle.

[Vicksburg, (Miss.) Herald.]

A gentleman residing in this city had occasion, a few days since, to take a journey down the river, and several miles back from it, using a saddle-horse. Darkness overtook him in a sparsely-settled district, and as the roads were in a bad condition and the evening looked threatening, he halted before a forlorn looking hut, and asked if he could find lodging.

"I reckon ye mought," replied the long-haired, sorrowful-eyed squatter, after hesitating a moment.

The Vicksburger found little to eat, and his horse found still less. The squatter and his wife were all alone, and they had but a few words for the stranger, and scarcely spoke to each other. When the evening grew old the traveller camped down on the floor on a blanket, and being very tired he fell asleep, while host and hostess were smoking their black clay pipes at the other end of the room. He had slept about two hours, when the squatter shook him by the shoulder, and said:

"Stranger, I'm powerful sorry to disturb ye, but I want to ax a favor."

"Yes—yes—what is it?" inquired the Vicksburger, as he rubbed his eyes, and sat up.

"Ye like to see fa'r play, don't ye, stranger?"

"Yes, of course."

"Wall, me'n the old woman can't agree; somehow she's cross and tetchy, and I guess I'm a trifle ugly. Leastwise we don't hug up worth old boots. We've fit and fit; I'm old, and she's chuck full o' grit, and it's about an even thing!"

"Well, I'm sorry," put in the Vicksburger, as the squatter hesitated.

"We've been a balkin' since ye cum, stranger, and we've made up to ask ye to hold the candle and to let us go in for an old rouser of a fight—a reg'lar old sockdolloger, which shall settle our fuss! If I lick, she'll go; if she licks, I'll travel!"

"I'm sorry if there's any trouble, and I hope you won't fight."

"We've got to do it, stranger," replied the woman. "I won't live with a man who can lick me, and he's just as high born. Sam's as good as the run o' men, but he's lazy and sassy, and he wants to wear his hat on his ear!"

"She's right, stranger," said the squatter, "and this cabin can't hold both of us any longer. It's to be a square fight—no kicking or clubbing, and we won't go back on yer decision."

The Vicksburger protested, but the woman placed a lighted candle in his hand, and posted him in the door, and the man and wife stepped out on the ground.

"Suke, I'm going to wallop ye right smart in just four hoots and a holler!" said the squatter as he pushed up his sleeves.

"Sam, ye don't weigh 'nuff into three tons!" she replied in a grim voice, and the battle commenced.

The Vicksburger mentally bet twenty to one on the man at the start, but in two minutes he had reduced the odds to ten, and in two minutes more he was betting even. The wife was like a wild cat, springing, dodging, striking and clawing, and pretty soon her husband had to stand on the defensive.

"Look out for the Bengal tiger, Suke!" he warned as he clawed the air.

"I can whip the boots off'n ye, Sam!" she replied, and the battle grew fiercer.

One of the woman's sharp nails struck the husband's eye and blinded him for an instant. As he threw up his arms she seized both her hands into his hair, yanked him down, and in another moment had the "gouge" on him.

"Sam, do ye cave?" she asked as they lay quiet.

"That's the dead word, Suke, and I'm a licked man!" he mournfully answered.

She let him up, and he turned to the Vicksburger and inquired:

"Stranger, was it a fa'r fought?"

"I guess it was!"

"Then I travel!"

He entered the hut put on his coat and hat, took up his rifle, and as he came out he reached his hand to his wife, and said:

"Good-bye, Suke! We agreed fa'r and squar, and here I go!" Then, turning to the traveller, he added:

"Much obleeged, stranger—ye held the candle plumb fa'r, and ye didn't holler for either one of us!"

And he walked down to the fence, leaped over, and was soon lost to sight.

"Good 'nuff on the shoot," mused his wife as she gazed after him, "but his fighting weight is clar run down to nuthin!"

—A raw German girl, nineteen years old, fresh from the old country, recently obtained $2,000 damages from the Oregon Steamship Company for injury and disfigurement suffered on one of their steamers. Sickness had resulted from her injuries, and the Court allowed her $100 for that and injury to her clothing; for the loss of time and labor $100; for the expense of employing counsel, $300; for the physical and mental pain, $1,000; and for the permanent disfigurement from the wound in her forehead, $500. With reference to the latter item the Court said that it might seem insufficient for the blemish, but that it was not sufficient to make her presence offensive or prevent her from obtaining employment. "Still," added the Court, "she is entitled to some compensation. In this country it is open to every woman, however humble, to obtain a secure and independent position by marriage. In that matter, which is said to be the chief end of her existence, comeliness is a consideration of importance to every daughter of Eve."

M'll. Tietjiens is coming to this country, under an engagement with Max Strakosch, running from October 4, 1875, to April 4, 1876. She is to receive $600 gold for each concert or oratorio, and half the receipts over $2,000. In case operas are produced, these rates are to be increased. With a general reduction of prices for labor and goods, it is reasonable to expect a corresponding lowering of the admission to concerts and entertainments.

Jottings.

The wonderful child violinist, Lilian F. Chandler, of Lynn, who is on her return home from a successful engagement with the famous Temple quartette, is to give a complimentary parlor entertainment to the guests of the Wentworth, this evening, assisted by her sister, Miss Lucy H. Chandler, soprano at St. Paul's church, Lynn, who will also act as accompanist. This little prodigy will probably favor the guests of the Pepperrell, Marshall and Farragut houses with similar entertainments.

One of the shrewdest of tricks was that played by a petty officer of the U. S. S. Lancaster by posting a notice aboard ship that the authorities of Portsmouth did not want seamen to remain here. As there was a large sum of money to be spent, our merchants had expected to profit by it to some extent, but the Boston runners evidently bribed some one aboard the Lancaster, and the discharged sailors went to Boston with their $20,000. And there is much indignation about town, and more money in the trickster's pocket, doubtless, and a strong determination to convince the three hundred sailors on the Kansas and Lancaster that their presence is desired in Portsmouth when they are free from the control of interested officers.

The yacht Coquette from East Boston, having on board the Don Quixote Boat Club of Boston, Mr. J. G. McCormac, Secretary, arrived here on Tuesday on their return trip along the coast. They were taken in charge by the Lelaps of this city and indulged in a drive to the beaches; returning to the yacht the party found a bountiful collation spread which was refreshing indeed to the boatmen and their guests. The Coquette sails to-day for home. The trip to this "city by the sea" will long be remembered by both clubs.

The Odd Fellows of Concord had an excursion to the Oceanic in steamer Major on Wednesday.

Foster's Democrat complains of rowdyism or the part of the Dover excursionists to Newburyport via this city on Sunday—and says: The captain of the steamer Major, which carried a majority of the excursionists on the sea-trip was obliged to use a good stock of patience to prevent knocking some of them overboard. As it was, he had o keep his mate in the pilot house for fear of a loss of some of his passengers.

There is many thousand dollars' worth of government property going to waste at Fort Constitution, including immense derricks that lie useless and will in a few years be so much decayed as to be worthless. This property should be used or sold, but no one seems to have care for such matters. Everything at the Fort seems to go to waste.

The Appledore.

To the casual observer there is always something astonishing at the great success attending the management of the Appledore House, but after a guest has remained a few days with the Laighton Brothers, the mystery is solved. Oscar and Cedric, so frequently brought to favorable public notice, seem perfectly unconscious that they know how to keep a hotel. Simple-hearted, sympathetic and kind to every guest, they soon become as old acquaintances, and being lovers of children, though both are unmarried, they are continually surrounded by merry groups, among whom Oscar's hearty laugh seems infectious, and Cedric's dignified attempts at amusement with a half-dozen clinging to him, afford a study that will interest the observer.

The Appledore is full and has been for two weeks, and the season has been the most successful one yet. For the proper accommodation of old patrons who love to linger at that charming locality, the Laightons have decided to add a wing to the Northwesterly end of the present building to extend beyond the present site of Mrs. Celia Thaxter's cottage, increasing thereby their facilities by 150 rooms. Mrs. Thaxter has again given up her comfortable home to the incursion of the pleasure seekers, and lovers of the beautiful and picturesque are afforded glimpses of that precious "little den" whose walls are adorned with rare pictures, ferns, mosses, shells and countless varieties of ornament which her busy hands have gathered and arranged, giving relaxation to the ever-busy brain which has conceived some of the daintiest poetry and prose that American literateurs have produced. No wonder poets and authors, the clergy and professions, gather at Appledore and linger there through the season, enjoying rest and recuperation for the labors that entertain a busy continent but ten miles away.

The cuisine this year is greatly improved by the management of Mr. William S. McKittrick. A glimpse into the kitchen with its neat array of shining tin ware, orderly shelved crockery, and immense boilers will give an idea of the busin ess which requires so much careful supervision. The pastry and meat rooms, the mammoth refrigerator and store rooms are all in find order, and if the laundry tempts inspection there will be found washing machines, wringing machines where clothes are wrung nearly dry by centrifugal force, manglers and the drying room. The courteous clerk, Mr. Clarence O. Walker, assures you that to secure comfort for the five hundred guests some one hundred and sixty odd persons are constantly employed. Considering all the conveniences, the cheery endeavors of the proprietors to make every guest feel at home, the entertainments at the Hall, where Parsons & Gilson's band discourse fine music, the excellent facilities for boating, bathing, bowling and billiards, the new comer no longer wonders at the satisfaction that beams in every eye, straightway settles himself down for a prolonged stay, and at last leaves the island at the urgent calls of business, with regret and a fixed determination to return again the next season.

Fifteen Hours' Cruise of the Resolute.

Left Newport from Brenton's reef four miles, then to the Sow & Pigs, 22 miles, then 81-2 from the lightship of S. & P., steering east by compass, came to entrance Quick's Hole bearing due North, altered course to E. N. E., and ran 12 miles until light at Wood's Hole bore N. by W. 1-2 North. Sailed E. S. E. 18 miles, now on the middle ground; West Chop light on starboard bow, Falmouth on port beam and shortly after passed L'Homme de Dieu and Hedge Fence Shoal and Squash Meadow on starboard bow. Holmes' Hole opened full in view with several yachts at anchor. A steamer outward bound blew her whistle and dipped her flag as we passed, to which we responded with a salute from one of our brass monsters forward. Surrounded by shoals, the Horse Shoe, the Swash of the Horse Shoe, Hawes', Newton's, the Shovel Full and Tuckernuck, but we reach the light-ship safely—then again to the eastward four miles, passing a buoy on our weather beam, and Dennis, Hatch and the mate wondering alternately. Course E 3-4 N. 10 miles and we fetch off the Handkerchief Shoals. The pilot comes on deck and wonders where he is. Peering ahead "port!" to the light and buoy off Butler's Hole, the Stone Horse on starboard quarter, the Shovel Shoal on port quarter. Then E. by S. 1-2 S. to another light ship off the Pollock Rip, five miles. The Pollock Rip abeam of us, the broken part of the Rip abeam, and for that matter Rips all around us; then again N. E. 1-4 N. "quick work, boys! Hand your sails, the breeze is quickening," and we've got buoys all around us. Here we are at Monomoy beach, the extreme southern land of Cape Cod, dimly seen in the distance the fog clouds hanging above it. Then N. N. E. six miles, and off Chatham, we shorten sail for the night and heave the log. Course altered and run 35 miles until the Highland light is off our port quarter—then 85 miles N. W. by N., and at midnight we heave to off Rye Beach waiting for the morning, to come to an anchor.

CLEW GARNET.

Mr. Charles Nordhoff has been writing a series of letters from the South which have attracted a good deal of attention and provoked considerable adverse comment on account of their evident hostility to the administration. His testimony in regard to negro suffrage, however, is unequivocally in vindication of the republican policy. He says: "No thoughtful man can examine the history of the last ten years in the South, as he may hear it on the spot and from all sides, without being convinced that it was absolutely necessary to the security of the blacks and the permanent peace of the Southern communities to give the negro, ignorant, poor, and helpless as he was, every political right and privilege which any other citizen enjoys. That he should vote and that he should be capable of holding office was necessary, I am persuaded, to make him personally secure, and what is of more importance, to convert him from a freedman into a free man."

—Professor (kindly)—"What is the matter, Mr. Gray? You look unwell." Sophomore (with a volume of "Christian Martyrs" in his hand)—"My breakfast was burned at the steak; that's what's the martyr with me."

—Last week a Pittsburgh editor wrote, "The closer people get to nature, the closer they are to God." Then he obtained leave of absence to go out into the country, and was struck by lightning while robbing an apple-orchard.

DIED.

ADAMS. At the Sea View House, Rye Beach, July 28th, Mrs. Margaret A. Adams, widow of the late Hon. Joseph B. Adams, aged 52 years, 4 mos.

Thus closed a life whose later years were freighted with griefs such as few persons are called upon to endure. Just at the time when her husband had secured to her a home whose comforts were expected to render their declining years peaceful, and smooth their passage along life's rugged path—when he, enjoying the honors and favors of his fellow-citizens who so frequently testified to his popularity, seemed removed from the necessities that beset struggling humanity to better life's condition—her home was made desolate by the unfortunate malady which for several years made of his mind a nearly helpless wreck, which death finally relieved. Following close on this cruel experience came another bitter blow by which she was suddenly bereft of a beloved daughter. With hopes crushed and heart broken she had no other wish than to join the dear departed, loth though she was to leave the other dear ones behind. A combination of diseases found no constitution to combat them, no will to struggle for continued existence which brought little but misery; and when asked to take stimulants for the prolongation of life, the weary soul declined with an expression of her desire to be at peace and to be spared further trouble in this world of troubles. Sad as have been her declining years, no aching heart among those who now mourn the loss of a loved mother, could wish to recall her to the scenes and memories of the past, from the rest that follows "life's fitful fever."

☞ Funeral services will be held at the North Church this afternoon at half-past two o'clock. Friends are invited.

SPINNEY. In this city, July 28th, Miss Ava Spinney, daughter of Daniel H. Spinney, Esq., aged 21 years, 4 months, 23 days.

The Key-Note of Health.

The health and vigor of the several organs of the body depend upon the simple condition that the functions which pertain to each shall be regularly and actively performed. If vitality is sluggish or deficient, this condition is not properly fulfilled, and as a consequence disease is soon inaugurated. Prevent it by a timely use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which rouse the vital energies when dormant and endow the feeble frame with needful stamina. At the same time that the Bitters infuse new strength into the system, they correct those functional irregularities and local weaknesses which sap the vital power. Dyspepsia, bladder and kidney complaints, gout, rheumatism, fever and ague, biliousness, constipation and nervous diseases are invariably overcome by the operation of this standard alterative tonic.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within 30 days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health in certain cases and time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

—The Troy (N. Y.) Times says that the Roman Catholic clergy having directed the faithful of the flock not to dance any more round dances, some of the picnics given by Roman Catholic societies in that city have eschewed the objectionable salatory exercise and confined the toe-tripping to "square dances." The young people do not take kindly to this, however, and an effort has been made to have the interdiction revoked. The managers of a certain picnic called upon a priest not long ago and begged permission to include round dances in their list, explaining that some of the young ladies declared if there were no round dances they would not attend. The clergyman bluntly refused, and with considerable emphasis remarked that he wished he knew the names of the young ladies in question. A large number of young women who have been making the required visitation of different churches in honor of the "jubilee" have been compelled to begin their visits a second time because of dancing round dances at picnics.

—A Saratoga correspondent says "the Congress Spring is eighty-three years old." If it wasn't for this timely information we might have to believe some of the demented scientists who would make it out at least fifty thousand years old.

—Eleven years ago a man in Troy, N. Y., took $500 worth of Nevada mining stock in payment of a debt which he could not collect in any other way. The other day he received an offer of $30,000 for his share.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Mallaisse, Fourcroy, Vauquilin and Barruell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing.

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produced it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogression, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Pulmocine Cordial.

—As one of the dozen old women who drive milk carts around Detroit was rattling across the Campus Martius, yesterday, a chap wearing lavender pantaloons and a bright blue necktie, motioned for her to stop, and then inquired:

"Do you put water in your milk?"

"Yes, sir," was her prompt reply.

"Ah, ha! So you own right up, do you?"

"Yes, sir."

Her prompt replies rather staggered him, but after some hesitation he asked:

"And what makes you do it?"

"Because it's much healthier for calves when mixed half and half" she retorted. She waited for him to ask another question, but he couldn't think of any.—Detroit Free Press.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is or the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of the curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are unfortunately afflicted to try your medicines.

BOOK AGENTS wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 885 pages, over 250 illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight, who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, causes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books, say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages, as since commencing the sale of my work. Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

s no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the slush trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know ing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of puting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

LAWS Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to the First New Hampshire Battery.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That His Excellency the Governor be authorized to exchange the present guns used by the First New Hampshire Battery for the United States regulation light twelve-pound calibre guns; that His Excellency is hereby authorized to draw his warrant on the treasury of the state for the costs of such exchange, to be paid out of any moneys therein not otherwise appropriated.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION for fencing and repairing the Weare monument in Hampton Falls.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened: [redacted]

That the sum of three hundred dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose of fencing and repairing the Weare monument in Hampton Falls; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant therefor from any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION making appropriations for repair of roads through Pinkham notch.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of five hundred dollars be and hereby is appropriated for the repair of roads through the Pinkham notch in the county of Coos, in manner following: From the town line of Jackson to the Glen house, three hundred dollars; from the south line of Gorham to the Glen house, two hundred dollars,—to be laid out in repairs as aforesaid, under the direction of an agent or agents appointed by the governor and council, and to be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant for the same.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION for the relief of the City savings bank, in Nashua.

Whereas, the treasurer of the City savings bank in Nashua, made return to the state treasurer, on the first day of April, 1875, that the sums standing to the credit or depositors in said bank amounted in the aggregate to three hundred seventy-two thousand four hundred thirty dollars and twenty-eight cents ($372,430.28), upon which sum the said savings bank is liable to pay a tax of one per cent. to the state; and whereas, on the 9th day of April, 1875, the bank commissioners and one of the justices of the superior court of judicature, upon a thorough examination of the assets of the said bank, were of the opinion that the bank was insolvent, and that the value of its entire assets was two hundred forty-eight thousand two hundred eighty six dollars and eighty-five cents ($248,286.85); and whereas, it is unjust that the depositors should be taxed beyond the real value of their deposits; therefore,

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the state treasurer be instructed and authorized to receive from the said City savings bank the legal tax upon the said sum of $248,286.85, instead of the sum of $372,430.28, in full of all claim upon said bank for the current year.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of Charles P. Pitcher.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of one hundred and twelve dollars and ninety-nine cents be allowed Charles P. Pitcher, as expenses in defending his seat as a representative from the town of Stoddard, from any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the Governor shall issue his warrant therefor.

Approved July 3, 1875.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the members of the executive council shall receive three dollars per day each during their sessions, and ten cents a mile travel to and from the place of sitting of the legislature for the ensuing year.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of the Belknap saving bank.

Resolved by the Senate and House of representatives in General Court convened:

That there be paid, out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the Belknap savings bank the sum of one hundred and sixty-eight dollars and eighty-eight cents ($168.88), the same having been erroneously paid into said treasury as a part of the tax in said bank in the years 1873 and 1874; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant therefor.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS in favor of specie payments.

Whereas, the act of Congress, which made greenbacks a legal tender in place of coin, was cheerfully submitted to as a measure of necessity, to preserve the national life; and

Whereas, ten years have elapsed since the close of the war, which have been years of extravagance and great indebtedness, both public and private, promoted in a large measure by our inflated and irredeemable paper currency; therefore,

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the present time, when business is depressed and large amounts of currency are lying idle, presents a favorable opportunity for the adoption of measures leading to the resumption of specie payments.

That we respectfully instruct our senators and request our representatives in congress, to use all honorable means to procure the enactment of such laws, at the next session, as, by a gradual reduction of the currency, a gradual accumulation of gold in the United States treasury and in the national banks, and a strict economy in the administration of public affairs, shall bring about resumption at the earliest day practicable.

Tramps.

The Springfield Union says of the tramp nuisance: "It is not private individuals alone that are annoyed by the hordes of beggarly and thievish nomads that throng the country. The railroads feel the pest severely. It is almost as impossible to keep the tramps off the trains as it was to keep frogs out of the palace of Pharaoh. A favorite method with these gentry of the road, when they wish to travel between Boston and Albany, is for all the party but one to enter an empty freight car and shut the door. The outsider puts the pin into the lock, and when the conductor passes everything appears correct. The outsider secretes himself about the train as best as he can, and if he misses a ride that time he takes the next chance. The dirty scamps are as shrewd and systematic as crows, and almost as hard to catch napping. They do most of the stealing that is done along the line at present, the employes being pretty well satisfied that they can be in better business."

A Robinson Crusoe Colony.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Recent revelations have excited an intense and growing interest in the fate of the fifteen or twenty men who, more than a quarter of a century ago, chartered the schooner Florinda and set sail for the golden shores of California. For twenty-six years the families of the adventurers have mourned them as lost. The last news of the Florinda was received late in the year 1849 from Rio Janeiro. She had put in at that port some time previous, and then proceeded on her way, leaking badly, it was said. A vessel touching at Rio Janeiro shortly afterward reported having spoken the Florinda in the Pacific, just beyond Cape Horn. From that time forward nothing more was ever heard of the Florinda, and it became an accepted theory that she had been cast away and her crew lost somewhere on the Southern Pacific coast. No tidings reached the families of the illfated argonauts, and twenty-six years slipped by without a waif or whisper to disturb the melancholy conviction which had sealed the record of their lives. Their children have grown to manhood and womanhood without the knowledge, with scarcely the memory of a father's love. The hopes that clustered around them have long ago been transferred to that other world in which they were believed to be. Such is the story as it has passed current all this time with the general public and with the greater number of the relatives of the Florinda company. At first of course there were doubts and fears and expectations, more or less reluctantly resigned for certainty, but to this conclusion all eventually came, and the loss of the schooner with all on board has fully a quarter of a century been regarded as a fact about which there could be no sort of question. The unfortunate men have been as utterly given up as though their burials had taken place in presence of the whole community, and to have told any of their families that they were still alive would have been to ask them to believe that the dead had arisen after twenty-five years of sepulture and walked forth once more among the living.

Within the past few days, however, precisely this proposition has, in fact, been made. The strange and startling statement has transpired that Harmon Jones and his fellow-voyagers were not lost, but are now alive on some nameless and undiscovered island in the lower Pacific. About a month ago a friend of Mrs. Harmon Jones read in an English paper an account of some British vessel having been driven out of her course in a storm and sighted an unknown island. Much to the surprise of the crew the island turned out to be inhabited, and, still more astonishing, by men who spoke the English language. The rest of the story, as given in the paper referred to, is that the castaways told the ship's company that they were the Florinda party who had sailed from New Orleans in 1849 for California; that they had been wrecked on the island, and had dwelt there ever since, it being then more than twenty-five years that they had not seen a human face or a sign of the world from which they were so utterly eliminated. The paper gave the names of several, all of whom are known to have been of the Florinda's crew, and in many other ways, according to the version of Mrs. Jones' friend the identity of the party was established as one but themselves could have established it. It was further stated that the British vessel offered to take the men on board, but they declined, saying they had been lost for a quarter of a century; that they knew not in what situation they would find the families they had left, and that they preferred staying and ending their days there rather than venture back to such a doubtful and uncertain future. This paper was four months old when Mrs. Jones' friend saw it, one month ago, and the events narrated were described as having occurred four months previous to the issue of the paper. It is just nine months, then, since the island was discovered by the British vessel, and at that time all, or nearly all, of the Florinda party appear to have been alive.

It need not be said that this news has aroused the deepest interest. To the community at large it recalls the familiar occurrence of the Florinda's sailing from New Orleans with its adventurous company. To the families of the ill-fated men it comes like a message from another world, and is as though it were the announcement of a resurrection. Within the past few days the relatives have been living in a state of excitement, and many of them, especially the sons of Harmon Jones, John A. Sidney and Capt. Kenmure, the skipper of the Florinda, have devoted themselves to following the clue given by the friend who saw the English paper. Extensive inquiries are now on foot, and the British Consul has kindly interested himself in the affair so far as to agree to forward to the War Office in London a full statement of the circumstances, so that the name of the vessel which touched at the castaways' home can be ascertained, and the bearings of the island taken from her log. It would greatly facilitate this end, however, if the copy of the paper giving the original copy were found. It is still hoped that some one who sees this publication may have noticed the paper, and be able to tell us where a number can be had. On that contingency depends much that will simplify and expedite the quest; but it is certain that in any case the friends of the Florinda's crew will never rest again until the mystery is fathomed to its utmost depths.

Bandits on the Hudson.

The artful and enterprising cracksmen who infest the villages along the lower Hudson give the excited property-owners little peace of their lives as yet, and perhaps it will need another such a lesson as that which was given by the Long Island Judge to the supposed abductors of Charley Ross to make it all quiet and secure on the Hudson again. The rascals who invaded the premises of Gen. Husted at Peekskill Sunday morning, July 25th, were as familiar as cool. The General fired one shot at a retreating head and elicited the response, "Don't shoot Jimmie." Early Monday morning an attempt was made at Cornwall Heights, near Newburgh, to enter the residence of Mr. Powers, but the burglars were driven back by a colored coachman with a double-barrelled shot-gun. Burglaries had been attempted several times before in the neighborhood, and the coachman had been ordered by Mr. Powers to arm himself. He happened to be awake between 2 and 3 A. M. and heard a rustling in the bushes outside his window, which was open. Remaining quiet, he soon saw two of the men approach the window, and finding it open they beckoned to their comrade. At this moment he fired upon the men, and the report was followed by a cry of alarm. They all turned in flight, when the coachman fired again, and the hindermost fell with a groan of distress. His friends returned and carried him away. The alarm was given by the coachman, but no arrests have been made. The latest recorded raid took place early Tuesday morning at Yonkers. The evening previous Mr. Thomas Ludlow, of that place, was sitting in his parlor counting his money with the windows wide open, so that any one passing could have seen him. Soon after midnight he heard a noise, and thinking it was made by his nephew asked, "Is that you, Tom?" He then recalled that his nephew was separated from him by a bolted door, and concluded that some one else was in the room. Previous to this, it was afterward found, three burglars had opened one of the parlor windows with a "jimmy," but not being able to find anything one of them climbed the pillar of the porch, while the two remained below. The man on the porch easily entered a window, for it was only guarded by a netting. He found himself in Mr. Ludlow's room. He there obtained a gold watch and $25 in money, and was in the act of proceeding to other rooms when he encountered a bolted door, and in opening it aroused Mr. Ludlow. But before he was discovered he had made his escape, and was soon with his comrades, hastening away from the house. Mr. Ludlow at once called his servant and sent him to police headquarters. On his way he met a mounted officer who had passed the house only half an hour before. The entire force was soon summoned, and a little later an officer found three men on the railroad track below the depot, and about one-fourth of a mile from Mr. Ludlow's house. He arrested them, and took from one a pistol, and from the others a travelling bag each. Taking one of them on each side, and ordering the third to walk ahead, the officer started for headquarters. He had proceeded a distance of about 150 yards, when he came to a crossing of two streets. Here the third man moved out of his position and refused to obey the officer, whereupon the officer fired at him. Then the other two men attempted to break away, and a scuffle ensued, during which they escaped, but left the pistol and travelling-bags. During the scuffle and while the ruffians were running nine shots were fired, five from the retreating burglars and four by the officers. No one is known to have been hurt. The whole force continued the search, and the prisoner from whom the officer had taken the pistol was re-arrested and committed without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The Brainerd Disaster.

Persons from the scene of the railroad bridge disaster at Brainerd, Minn. give particulars of interest. As the train was crossing the bridge the engineer heard a crackling and put on steam to escape. His efforts proved too late to save his life. The central span of the bridge broke down under the weight of the cars, loaded with iron, and both ends of the train were drawn into the wreck, the engine and several cars being drawn backward and the remainder of the train forward. The engine, tender and two cars that were pulled backward went into the river. The crash made by the wreck was heard a distance of three-quarters of a mile. The river at this point is about 300 feet wide, and the water from six to eight feet deep. There appears to have been but one brakeman on the train. Luckily he was behind the cars loaded with iron, and as he saw them going down, he ran for his life across the top of the freight cars, but finding he could not reach the end of the train in time, he climbed down upon the ladder upon one of the cars and jumped off on a portion of the bridge that remained standing, and escaped unhurt. The wreck is described as frightful. With the exception of the engine and two cars on the west bank, the entire train, numbering, including the caboose, twenty-one cars, are piled in a heap in the river. The cars are mashed into kindling wood. All accounts agree that the bridge absolutely broke down under the weight of the train. The names sent Tuesday include all the persons fatally injured. The few wounded are doing well.

A [Frightful] Plunge.

[Lewiston Journal, July 9.]

Thursday morning the river drivers were cracking their jokes and stirring up the logs at the head of West Pitch. A jam had gathered at the very verge of this grand waterfall. George A. Newman, of Bradley, below Bangor, stood on the lower log of the jam. He is a veteran Penobscot log-roller, and this is his third season on our river. George got his cant-dog under the log and immediately it rolled. Another riverman leaped off, but Newman's iron-shod boots were dull and he slipped, and in he went. He caught hold of his companion's cant-dog but his hand slipped and off Newman darted down into the Pitch. He swam off the big curl and quick as lightning plunged down the awful abyss. His friends never expected to see him more, but in a twinkling he was seen emerging from the foam at the foot of the falls, and bravely striking out for the island. The shore of the river at this point is now lined with logs, and a rapid current flows there. Newman saw that it would not be safe for him to try to effect a landing at these points, so he coolly swam for the island, distant perhaps fifty to seventy rods from the foot of the falls. He reached the land safely, when he was at once taken in a batteau to the main land. His hips, knees, arms and back were somewhat bruised. He was taken to the Auburn House and placed in bed, when his fellows gathered around him, delighted to find him crank and loquacious.

Said he: "I wasn't badly scared. When I fell in I struck right out and kept my head above water. I was calm in there as could be. I pawed a little, though."

"Thought I should have to give you up, George, when I saw you going down there," said one of his comrades.

"I didn't think anything of that kind," said Newman; "but it did seem a long while, though. Seems as if I went 100 feet into that deep hole before I struck. But I kept kicking, and when those big 'biles' come I jest kept right on top of 'em to come up on. I tried to kick my boots off, but couldn't. I tell you, boys, 'twas peculiar machinery to go through, but I'll go to work to-morrow. I wan't sharp at all or I shouldn't have slipped. But I don't want to try it over again, I tell you, 'Lish."

The doctors reported no bones broken. Several bad bruises were gradually discovered by the patient, who signalized the discovery by using strong expletives. He continued: "I held my breath, 'Lish, from the time I took the plunge until I got to the bottom. I thought 'twas an hour, but I didn't take a bit of water."

"Don't believe anything else could go over there and live," said one of the men.

Don't say I ain't tough any more," said Newman. "But didn't I take good care of my head, though; I always did, you know!"

Some one of the crowd outside asked: "Is he dead?" "No," said the river driver, "only a little discouraged."

The Indian legends say that a large party of Indians was once decoyed into the rapids above the falls, and perished in West Pitch. However that may be, we doubt if any man ever passes through what George A. Newman passed on the morning of July 8, to come out with the breath of life in him.

—The chronometer bank lock, which saved the Barre bank so many thousand dollars, is thus described: The important part of it is a sliding bolt on the inside of the safe door, which is so constructed as, on the locking of the safe door, to be thrown into position where it effectually prevents the unlocking of the safe door by any one—cashier and all are locked out. But in connection with this bolt is a system of clock work which, before the door is locked, is wound up till it marks the number of hours it is wished to have the safe remain locked. At the appointed time a pin on the dial plate strikes upon a lever which in turn moves the obstruction away from behind the sliding bolt first mentioned and allows the cashier to unlock the safe. There are in the lock two clock or watch movements that work simultaneously but independent; either will withdraw the obstruction from behind the sliding bolt, so that the bank officers are not in danger of being locked out permanently, unless both watch movements should fail at once, a thing not likely to happen in a dozen lifetimes.

Local Matters.

A Good Time.

Editor Chronicle: Did you ever go down river with Mr. S. S. Frye? If so, you know what it is to be well entertained. If there is any meaning to the word hospitality then its fullest force must be applied to qualify him as a host. Frank Johnson, our Falstaffian ex-city Marshal, is a good fellow, too, because he always furnishes the boat for the party, and does it with such an unctious pleasantness as to make his guests feel almost that they were conferring a favor by lending him their presence. Nevertheless, it is no disparagement to our worthy friend to say that there is not the amount of "true inwardness" in him that there is in his partner in the excursion business. Thoughtfulness, that most valuable of resources, sits enthroned within the brain of our good friend Frye, and governs his whole man with reference to the comforts and whims of his guests. He also possesses a rare degree of discrimination. This is forcibly illustated in the selection of his companions of the voyage. The party is an exclusive one;—not on account of the wealth of its respective members; not on account of their prepossessing appearance: (it was a subject of remark by, those bystanders who gathered partly to see us off, and in part to see Snow go down to the bottom of the river, without a diving suit, after an anchor, that we were as homely a lot of men as ever congregated on that wharf,) nor can it be attributed to an overplus of what is called wisdom; but simply and solely on account of their goodness. In saying this we are obliged to trample upon our modesty somewhat, but the George W, element within us compells the utterance of the truth.

But that is neither here nor there. The best chowder that we ever beheld, the best cunner fry that a man ever partook of, the best coffee that we ever sipped, were ours to enjoy on Wednesday and we shall enjoy the memories of that excursion until we forget it. ONE OF 'EM.

Jottings.

The first race between the America and Resolute will occur on Saturday next at the Isles of Shoals, with time allowance. The second race for sweepstakes cup will be on Monday, over different courses. The first course is 39 1-2 miles and the second course 36 miles.

House No. 19 South Street formerly owned by the late Abner Greenleaf was sold at auction on Thursday by Col. William H. Hackett to Mercer Goodrich, Esq., for $1455.

Congressman elect Jones has nominated Arthur F. Sanborn to appear for examination for admission to the West Point Military Academy.

The sailing yacht Wm. H. Russell, Drown, with a party of Newmarket tourists on board, arrived in Portland Tuesday night, and left the following morning for Mt. Desert, and other places along the coast of Maine.

Of Parson & Gilson's band at the Appledore, "Elsie" writes to the Boston Post: "This band is a rouser, and no mistake, being seemingly indefatigable, always playing when the boats come in, playing most deliciously through the dinner hour, making the bill of fare, partaken of in the long, well-arranged dining-hall seem twice as enjoyable as it would otherwise."

Masters Willie E. and Georgie M. Nowell are making astonishing progress in their musical practice. Recently, the former was offered a position in Thomas' orchestra by Dudley Buck, who has its direction during the absence of Theodore Thomas in Europe. There are no Americans among these performers, and Prof. Buck says that Master Nowell is the only American boy he has heard play who is likely to become a first-class artist. This evening at eight o'clock, these young musicians will give a concert in the new hall at the Sea View House, Rye Beach, assisted by Mr. H. C. Barnabee, with Miss Aggie Plummer as accompanist. To-morrow evening they are to have a benefit concert at the Appledore House, Isle of Shoals, under the direction of Julius Eichberg. Mr. Barnabee will add to the pleasure of the evening, appearing in some of his choice selections,—Poe's "Raven" being one, we hope.

News and Notes.

Rev. William A. Rand was recently bitten in the right arm at Seabrook by a black-and-tan dog. He bravely cauterized the wound with a red hot poker.

The South Seabrook lock-up having been burned by an incendiary, violators of the law will hereafter be confined in an Eastern Railroad box-car.

Cider selling is so annoying to the people of South Seabrook that a religio-legal crusade has commenced, the praying movement beginning on Sunday evening, July 25th. Legal steps have since been taken.

Forty lights were burning in Milford in the vicinity of the robbed district, after one o'clock the night following the burglaries.

A porcupine weighing about 17 pounds, was killed in the field Eliphalet Dearborn, in Epping, last week.

Mrs. Fanny Kimball of Litchfield recently died, aged 92. The immediate cause of her death was a broken limb.

Mr. Charles F. Marshall of Greenville had his right foot cut off by a circular saw near the ankle joint, while attempting to remove waste from under the saw with his foot.

Two Nashua gentlemen met in front of a store, the other day, and mutually agreeing to ride with each other jumped into a wagon which stood there and took a little ride, each one supposing the team to belong to the other. After a time they came to an understanding, and the Gazette says John Gilpin's ride was nowhere, compared with the ride they took back to the spot where the team was left by its real owner.

Col. Wm. P. Ross, principal chief of the Cherokee Indians, has been assassinated by some of his political opponents, the Shannon men.

The Minnesota republicans have nominated John G. Pillsbury for Governor and passed an anti-third term resolution.

The Portland Press called Stephen Grant the biggest liar in Maine—a charge very difficult to substantiate. Stephen sued the Press for libel. Jury said "not guilty." Stephen took exceptions and wanted a new trial. The law court refused it. Does that decide that S. Grant is the biggest liar in Maine! Tell us Press!

The Greaser Cattle Thieves.

[San Antonio cor. New Orleans Republican.]

Cortina is in a tight place, and the sooner he begins to count his beads the better for his soul, and our cattle too. He seemed to understand this before he left Matamoras, for he made his last will, and predicted an early demise. In Mexico there is no middle course in dealing with a dangerous man he is either shot without any delay, or he is liberated, and becomes President of the republic; and as there is to be a general election in Mexico before long, the chances for the heavenly crown are decidedly in the ascendency.

General Ord does not regard the capture, or even death of Cortina, as likely to end the Rio Grande troubles. There are several thousand able-bodied Mexicans who are professional cattle thieves, and who live on both sides of the river. And it will not be long before they will be at it again, unless constant vigilance is kept up on the part of the troops. The lower Rio Grande is capable of being securely guarded by a comparatively small force, the fords not being very numerous, and General Ord himself assured me that there would be no abatement in patrolling the line. Every effort is being made to place the military telegraph line in running order as soon as possible, particularly that portion from Brownsville to Fort McIntosh.

—Niagara is receding a foot a year—perhaps a humiliating attempt to retreat from the presence of plundering hackmen who sell her beauty for opulence. The same erosion that has bitten off the ledge century by century ever since its brink was at the shore of Lake Erie; the same which has driven the Falls of St. Anthony fifteen miles up the Mississippi even within historic times; the same that has caused the retreat of the Yosemite plunge, and that has dug out through endless ages the Colorado canyons, is at work, slowly gnawing away at the ledges that flank Goat Island. In a million years the Falls will forever disappear in Lake Erie. It is a mere act of prudence to take advantage of the present few fares to visit this vanishing wonder. —Graphic.

—One of our lawyers was seen at the railway station on the evening of the 30th inst., with carpet bag in hand and overcoat on his arm, apparently waiting for the up train. A brother lawyer seeing him, accosted him thusly: "Going north Mr. F. ?" "No, sir!" "What then have you got your carpet bag and overcoat for?" "Because, if there is any one thing in God's world I abhor more than another, it is to see a man standing about the station without any apparent business." There the conversation ceased.—Coos Republican.

—A lightning rod man is dead. It was out West. He sold a farmer one of his lightning rods on trust. Two weeks thereafter the barn protected by the rod was struck by lightning and burned up. The lightning rod man presented his bill, nevertheless, with characteristic assurance. He was shot nine times, and then died under protest. Gone to collect his bill of Benjamin Franklin.

—The wife of "Max Adeler" weighs two hundred pounds; when Max asks her, "Shall I help you over the fence?" she replies demurely, "No, help the fence."

—The San Francisco Chronicle makes this very necessary correction: "In writing our notice of 'London Assurance' yesterday we alluded to 'the dashing Eanny Davenport. Some printer, whose zeal is greater and whose modesty is less than ours, made us say 'the darling Fanny Davenport.' We trust the lady will acquit us of any intentional familiarity."

—The ignorance of some persons is astounding. For instance, an exchange wonders how a three-mile shell race could have been rowed in Rhode Island. Why, just the same as a man walks a hundred miles in a town hall, stupid. —Worcester Prees.

The Key-Note of Health.
The health and vigor of the several organs of the body depend upon the simple condition that the functions which pertain to each shall be regularly and actively performed. If vitality is sluggish or deficient, this condition is not properly fulfilled, and as a consequence disease is soon inaugurated. Prevent it by a timely use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which rouse the vital energies when dormant and endow the feeble frame with needful stamina. At the same time that the Bitters infuse new strength into the system, they correct those functional irregularities and local weaknesses which sap the vital power. Dyspepsia, bladder and kidney complaints, gout, rheumatism, fever and ague, biliousness, constipation and nervous diseases are invariably overcome by the operation of this standard alterative tonic.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to have any stale meat, head, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers or any of them by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied cy him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

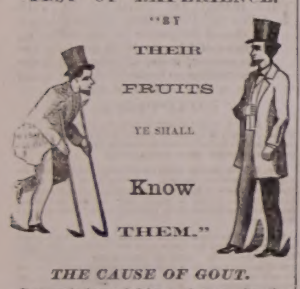
—A good fight was recently made against burglars by a young man named John Johnstone, a clerk in a country store about five miles from Detroit. He heard the cracksmen in the store and crept softly down stairs with a revolver in his hand, but was knocked over by a club in the hands of one of the robbers. As he fell his right hand, in which he held the revolver, was pinned beneath his body in such a way that he could not extricate it. Meanwhile the burglar who was kneeling over him with one knee upon his breast, stabbed him three times with a dirk knife, all the blows taking effect on his left arm and inflicting severe cuts. A struggle for the possession of the knife ensued and Johnstone got it by the blade, when his assailant wrenched it away, the keen blade inflicting some severe cuts as it slipped through his fingers. Johnstone finally turned over so that he could release his revolver and fired upward, the ball evidently not taking effect. The burglar then released him with a farewell kick and ran toward the door, where he was joined by a companion who had taken no part in the fight. Johnstone fired a farewell shot at the rascals, and there is good reason to believe that he hit one of them, as a subsequent examination of the premises brought to light fresh blood stains upon the front steps and the gate-post, and drops of blood along the walk. Johnstone was so weak from loss of blood that after he fired the second shot he fainted away, and remained unconscious for nearly half an hour. By the time an alarm could be given there was no further trace of the burglars. In the store was found a large package of goods valued at about $200, which the thieves had tied up, but which they were compelled to relinquish in the hurry of their flight.

—"Thomas, my son, I presume you attended service this morning?" "Yes, 'um." "And I suppose you remembered what you heard?" "Yes'um." "Well my son, what did you hear?" "Why, I heard that Mrs. Stokkup gets her dresses in Paris, that Mr. Sims stole all the money he has, that Mabel Lee's bonnet is not a new one, but only last year's made over, that Jennie Wilson carries on shamefully with that Jolly boy, and that Deacon Schramm is going to flinders because his new wife is so extravagant." "Dear me! Dear me! How religion has advanced since I was a girl!" said my kind old grandmother, as she quietly folded her knitting and looked out the window.—St. Louis Republican.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vauquilin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most conclusive proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Hepoforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogression, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' forcible experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM

AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Sores, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However observe the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a boon to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.00. Large size, $3. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

PREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprising beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced the most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

s no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the [illegible] trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know ing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

LAWS

Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

AN ACT relating to the settlement of paupers.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. No town shall be liable for the support of any person unless he, or the person under whom he derives a settlement, shall have wholly gained a settlement therein since the first day of January, 1860.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 30, 1875.

AN ACT for the protection of Moose.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. No person shall take, kill or destroy any of the animals known as moose, between the first day of February and the first day of October of each year, under a penalty of one hundred dollars for each offence, and proof of the sale of the meat of such animal shall be prima facie evidence against the party so selling, of such offence.

This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 30, 1875.

AN ACT to suppress vagrancy.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. If any person shall be a public vagrant, beggar, or a tramp, or shall go about from place to place, asking or suisisting upon charity, or without visible means of support, he may, upon complaint before any justice of the peace or police court, be sentenced to hard labor upon any county farm, or in any house of correction or common jail, not exceeding six months. And any act of beggary or vagrancy shall be taken to be evidence of the commission of the offences above described.

SEC. 2. The overseers of the poor of any town or city, or the commissioners of any county in which any such person shall be tried, may, if in their opinion suitable and remunerative labor cannot be found for him in the house of correction or other place to which such person may be so sentenced by their written order, briefly expressed, bind any person so tried and sentenced to hard labor, at any other place, or in the service of any person by them selected, for a term not exceeding his original sentence, and as a substitute therefor, and may compel the performance of such labor for the term fixed.

SEC. 3. If any person, not living in the town or place in which he usually lives and has his home, shall apply to any police officer, or to the overseers of the poor or the selectmen of any town or city, or to the commissioners of any county, setting forth that he is desirous to return to his home, but is poor, and has not the means to do so, the said overseers, selectmen, or county commissioners, may bind such poor person to labor at some suitable place, to be by them selected, and at such wages or rate of combensation as shall seem to be just. And when, in the opinion of said overseers, selectmen or county commissioners, such poor person shall have earned a sufficient sum, or have labored a sufficient time, they shall, with the money so earned, and such additions thereto from the treasury of the town or county, as they may think reasonable, cause such poor person to be returned to his home, whether in this state or elsewhere.

SEC. 4. If any poor person named in the preceding section shall appear to have a legal settlement in any town or city of this state, the overseers of the poor, or the selectmen of the town or city, or the commissioners of the county in which he shall make application as aforesaid, shall as soon as possible after said application, give notice thereof to the selectmen or overseers of the poor of the town in which such poor person has his legal settlement. And unless they shall within a reasonable time take charge of such poor person, and relieve the town or county in which he is found from all expenses concerning him, the town or city in which such person has his legal settlement shall be liable to pay all the expenses attending the binding out and return of said poor person to his home not exceeding ten dollars in one case, in the same manner as towns are now liable to pay sums expended for the support or burial of any poor person having a settlement therein. And if such poor persons shall have relations, in the line of father or grandfather, mother or grandmother, children or grandchildren, of sufficient ability, they shall be liable to refund all sums expended as aforesaid.

SEC. 5. If the poor person making application as aforesaid shall not appear to have a settlement in any town in this state, or relations of sufficient ability to support him resident in the state or having property here, the selectmen or overseers of the poor may give notice of his application to the commissioners of their county. And unless the county commissioners shall within a reasonable time take charge of such poor person, and relieve the town in which he is found of all expenses concerning him, the county shall be liable to pay all the expenses attending the binding out and return of such poor person to his home, not exceeding twenty dollars in any one case.

SEC. 6. This act shall be in force from its passage.

Approved June 30, 1875.

AN ACT to prevent incompetent persons from conducting the business of druggists and apothecaries in this state.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That hereafter no person shall conduct or keep a shop of any kind in this state for the purpose of retailing drugs, medicine, or such chemicals as are used in compounding medicines, or engage in the business of compounding and putting up prescriptions of physicians, and sending medicines, either as proprietor, agent or assistant, without having first obtained a certificate of qualification and competency for such business from the commissioners to be appointed under the provisions of this act; provided, it shall be lawful for any proprietary medicines.

SEC. 2. The governor, with the advice of the council, shall forthwith appoint three persons competent to perform the duties herein imposed upon them, who shall be styled "The Commission of Pharmacy and Practical Chemistry," one of whom shall hold his office one year, one two years, and the third three years, and each until his successor is appointed and qualified; and at or before the expiration of the term of office of each person so appointed, the governor in like manner, shall appoint a like person to said office, who shall hold his office for three years or until the successor is appointed and qualified. In case a vacancy in said commission shall occur at any time, from any cause, the governor with advice of the council shall appoint a competent person to fill said vacancy for the unexpired part of the term of office of the person causing such vacancy. Before entering upon the duties of his office, each commissioner shall be sworn to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of his office, and the record thereof shall be made on his commission.

It shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed as aforesaid, to examine all persons who shall desire to engage in the business of apothecaries and druggists and, if found skilled and learned in pharmacy they shall give such persons certificates, signed by at least two of said commissioners, and shall state therein that the person to whom the same is issued is a skilled paarmacist, and authorized to engage in the business of an apothecary and druggist.

SEC. 3. The said commissioners shall procure and keep a suitable book at the office of the secretary of state, at Concord, N. H., wherein they shall register the names and places of residence of all persons to whom they issue said certificates after after an examination, and the date thereof, names and places of residence of all persons engaged in conducting the business of apothecaries for themselves and others, in this state, six months previous to the passage of this act, upon application therefor, and it shall be the duty of all such persons engaged as aforesaid to furnish the commissioners of registration satisfactory evidence that they are engaged in such business, within sixty days after they shall have been notified by a circular letter from the commissioners of the time and place of registration, and said commissioners shall hold at least three sessions, within said sixty days, for registration of such as have been engaged in the business as aforesaid. In case of failure or deglect to be registered by any person or or persons so engaged in said business within the said sixty days, such person or persons shall thereafter procure a certificate by examination. Said book wherein the registration is made, as aforesaid, shall be, at all reasonable time, open to the examination of all persons.

SEC. 4. Said commissioners shall be entitled to demand and receive from every applicant for examination, to whom a certificate shall be granted as aforesaid, the sum of five dollars, and for the notice and registration of each person now engaged in the business of an apothecary, the sum of two dollars, and the money so received shall be in full payment for the services and expenses of said commissioners.

SEC. 5. All pharmacists that shall hereafter be registered according to the provisions of this act are hereby autorized to keep spirituous liquors for compounding their medicines.

SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1875.

News and Notes.

Two tramps entered the house of Mr. Morse, at East Readfield, Me., and, seizing Mrs. Morse by the throat, choked her until she surrendered $45, with which they decamped. Mr. Morse was at work haying near the house at the time, but the rascals escaped before he was aware of what had transpired.

E. M. Bragg's house and barn at South Acworth were recently destroyed by fire. Loss, $4000; insured for $2500. J. T. Clark, who lived in part of the house, lost everything.

Henry Ward Beecher goes to the Twin Mountain House in company with S. B. White, Henry W. Sage, C. C. Dike, Messrs. Caldwell and Murray, John F. Henry, Mr. Cleveland, Augustus Storrs, Moses S. Beach, and their families. We notice that Messrs. White, Sage, Dike, Caldwell, Murray, Henry et als are very careful not to let their ladies go without them!

Mormonism is doomed. The Mountain Meadow massacre was its death knell. From the evidence adduced at the recent trial it seems that enough brutality was committed during that bloody scene to have tempted the most indifferent thunderbolt.

A post-mortem examination on the body of Mrs. Pangborn, Medway, Me., who was recently killed by her husband, shows that he administered chloroform before he struck her with an axe.

If Mr. Beecher is innocent, of course Mrs. Tilton is, and why should testimonials be offered to the man and not to the woman? The Plymouth people have not made any demonstrations of rejoicing over Mrs. Tilton's "vindication." Why not get up a surprise party for the benefit of this much-injured lady? Why give Beecher all the glory?—Exeter News-Letter.

Gen. F. E. Spinner is now named as the republican candidate for State Treasurer in New York this Fall. The usual comment, that "his name would be a tower of strength," means all it says in this instance.

What is the world a-coming to? Boston positively feels badly over the hiring out of its base ball men to Chicago. The Advertiser says so, and it must be so. "The world is hollow, my doll is stuffed with saw-dust, and please, mamma, I would like to be a nun."—Chicago Tribune.

A lady fell thirty feet from the chair used to hoist people into the lantern room of Minot's Ledge lighthouse recently. She dropped into the water and was not hurt.

Gov. Hendricks of Indiana is earnestly besought by the Ohio inflationists to come over and help them; but the discreet Governor sits calmly on the fence absorbed in a profound calculation as to the way in which the financial cat is going to jump.

The Governor and Council have designated August 18th as the time when the survey of the public lands shall begin. The next meeting of the Council will be held August 16th.

The Mt. Washington House and outbuildings at Gorham, were wholly consumed by fire Thursday evening. The fire probably caught from a defective chimney. Loss about $7000; said to be insured. The furniture was saved principally.

A young wife called on our selectmen, one day last week, to procure an officer to protect her house and home from a drunken husband and an equally drunken visitor. —Milford Enterprise.

The wife of Daniel Wetherbee, of Brookline, died very suddenly recently. She ate a hearty supper, and retired with her husband apparently as well as usual, but soon awoke him to get her a drink of water, and before he returned with it was dead.

Mr. C. B. Lewis, the humorist of the Detroit Free Press, has this dedication to his forthcoming book: "To the Pawnee Tribe of Indians, whose enterprise, talent, and statesmanship, coupled with the fact that they rise early, go to bed late, and are always around when wanted, and who cheerfully roasted one of my ancestors at the stake, without reward or the hope of reward, is this volume respectfully dedicated by the author."

It is said that a quiet movement is on foot among the Manchester democrats to present Gov. Weston's name at the next democratic State convention in place of Judge Roberts. Oh, if they only would!—Lowell Courier.

The missing $1000 government bond that played so conspicuous a part in the West Springfield, George girl elopement case, has been found by, and is now in the possession of Henry P. Rolfe, counsel for Mrs. George. The bond after an experience of weeks under stone fences, in holes, trees, beneath cellar walls, and all manner of hiding places, is in good condition.

A young man named Elliott was robbed of a gold watch in the woods near North Conway, by two men who were afterward arrested.

Harrison J. Moore, riding through Epping on the wood train of the Portsmouth road recently, was called to the door of the car in which he was, by a chance whistle. On his coming, a small boy, riding on the train without permission, feared his approach meant ill for him, and, in his flurry, fell between the cars. Mr. Moore shouted to him to lie still and jumped for the brake. Seven cars passed over the boy, and, just as the train was coming to a stop, he took himself out between the wheels of a long car and left the vicinity with all the speed he could gather.

A man in Troy, on entering his sitting-room found it full of smoke, originating, it seems, from the sunshine falling upon a stereoscope, which acted as a burning-glass to the destruction of several articles on the table.

The first train through the gate of the White Mountain Notch was run on the 27th as far as Dismal Pool. The road will be completed in about a week.

The Richmond Whig remarks on the Ohio election: "We claim a majority of from twenty to forty thousand for Gov. Allen; and with his election on the financial platform he stands upon, the hard-money democrats of the country will prepare to strike their colors, or at least come to reasonable terms, we hope." And it is a noticeable fact that the journals of the South, with some prominent exceptions, favor inflation. The threat of the Whig is worth considering.

It is the melancholy conviction of the Cincinnati Enquirer that the Maryland democrats were bought up by the bondholders. These different sections of the democracy ought to know how it is with each other.—Boston Journal.

The Cincinnati Commercial, independent, says that "General Harlan speaks hopefully of the republican cause in Kentucky. He reduced the old democratic majority 30,000 when he ran before, and he is at the remainder of the margin. He has been through the State pretty throughly, and the republicans are in good spirits. It is entirely respectable now in Kentucky to be a republican, and in spite of the prevailing impression in the country, two-thirds of the Kentucky republicans are white men."

The Delaware peach-growers are in a peck of trouble because the markets of former years will not be able to consume much more than half of the six million bushels to be shipped. Some of the fruit will probably go to Europe. The new market in Boston with the now direct daily trains of twenty carloads, is an interested feature of the business, to us this year. Applications have also been received from several Western cities for direct shipments. New York and Philadelphia will take, at the height of the season, about two hundred carloads daily.

Sailing in the Air.

[St. Louis Republican.]

Mr. D. S. Thomas, press agent of the Hippodrome combination, and plucky amateur balloonist, arrived in St. Louis, thoroughly bespattered with mud and presenting the appearance generally of a pilgrim and a stranger. He said to a representative of the Republican:

"I left the Hippodrome about 4:20 in the afternoon. In two minutes the altitude was 1,200 feet; in four minutes 2,700 feet; in seven minutes 3,400; in eleven minutes 4,700 feet; which remained uniform while passing over the city. At five o'clock landed on Illinois side, one mile from the river. Having lost but little gas I reascended to an altitude of 4,300 feet and continued a southerly course. Owing to heavy clouds much of the city was obscured at this time. At seven landed at Boul's farm near Belleville, and accepted an invitation to a glass of milk. Again reascended, the course now being due east. I was sailing pleasantly along over heavy timber when the drag-rope became fast, and after exhausting considerable time, patience and strength, I concluded I was booked for the night. Determining to find more comfortable quarters if possible, I made a final effort to get free, and pulled into the basket as much of the drag-rope as I was able to manage in my fatigued condition. Believing that a sudden and perpendicular ascent would secure my freedom, I let go all the slack of the drag-rope, and at the same time threw overboard a full bag of ballast. The movement had the desired effect. The limb broke off, and the balloon shot upward with a velocity quite new to me. It was now dark, and as my barometer would only register one mile, I had no means of ascertaining the elevation. I was conscious, however, that it was great, for I soon became chilled and an overcoat would have been acceptable. At this hour there was considerable electricity in the air, and the flashes of lightning beneath the balloon seemed vivid enough, however faint they may have looked from terra firma. I am sure I never heard distant thunder sound nearer than it did on Tuesday night. I would have gladly avoided it all, but the escape valve refused to work, and I comprehended in a moment that the peculiar grease used to facilitate the working of this valve had become chilled and stiff. All this, however, would not have annoyed me but for the evident approach of the storm, as the certain condensing of gas at night is sure to bring about a landing in due time.

"After 3 o'clock Tuesday night, the atmosphere was very heavy, and the buoyancy of the balloon correspondingly increased, which fact, together with the sudden loss of ballast, accounted for my unusual elevation. Although it was very dark, I could see by the frequent flashes of lightning the hand or indicator of the barometer, without distinguishing the figures. It is surprising how my mind at this time wandered back to unfortunate aeronauts, and especially to poor Donaldson. Presently, the peculiar ringing in the ears gave positive assurance that I was descending, and leaning over the basket, I peered eagerly down into the darkness in my anxiety to discover something indicating my proximity to the earth. Emerging suddenly from the lower strata of clouds, I could discover now and then a dim light, but was unable to distinguish timber from the open country. With a view of making a respectable landing, I cut loose the anchor and grapnel, and determined to make fast to something. The suspense was but for a moment, and then the basket struck and settled gracefully down into one of the dirtiest mud ponds I ever remember to have met. After repeated hailings a party of negroes were induced to approach to within one hundred yards, where they halted for consultation. They conjectured all manner of evils arising from any closer proximity to the monster, and were only brought into service after a full and elaborate history of the origin, rise and progress of ballooning as a vehicle of aerial navigation. The place proved to be Hazel creek, in Belleville township, St. Clair county, Illinois, and about 24 miles from St. Louis."

Four Planets in Sight.

[Hartford Times.]

Not often do the starry heavens show us four strongly-shining, bright planets in one night, but this has been for some time past the position of Jupiter, Mars, Saturn, and Venus. First comes into view that giant planet—that vast orb, whose diameter is eleven times and his volume about 1,300 times that of our own globe—Jupiter, the planet of the mighty cloud envelopes, whose continued overshadowing of the planet himself has led astronomers to douot if telescopic vision has ever yet really penetrated these enormous layers of vapor to the surface of the planet itself. Jupiter is seen soon after dark almost directly in the zenith, his position at 8 o'clock being a little west and south of it; and his slow majestic sweep around the sun, which requires twelve of our years, scarcely better comports with his vast dimensions than does his apparent journey every night through the skies of earth. He sets not far from midnight. Proctor believes Jupiter to be still a mass of seething internal volcanic fire, giving out heat like a sun, and having but a very slight crust cooled as yet, and that subject to continual fiery outbursts and overflows; while the vast cloud belts, a thousand miles deep, are either partly of volcanic origin, or are discharging upon the planet itself such floods of sulphur-charged rain as we cannot imagine.

Mars next comes in sight. He rises red, away in the southern part of the western horizon soon after dusk, and by nine o'clock is a conspicuous object well up in the southern heavens, and easily distinguishable by his ruddy hue. It is a good time to scan Mars through a good telescope, for it will be two years before he is again in so favorable a position as he has been in for the last month, and will be for a little time longer. That bright star of the ruddy hue that comes up almost in the southeast soon after dark, is the neighbor world which, of all the planetary system, has presented the most interesting field for astronomical study, and best rewarded such studies. It is pretty definiteiy decided that this ruddy hue is due to some quality or characteristic of his soil. Mars, a smaller planet than Earth, presents a number of features that seem to warrant the conclusion that his more general laws and features are something akin to those of our own world. He has an atmosphere; he has his season of Winter and Summer—the region of snow and ice around the southern pole annually and visibly decreasing and increasing in what may be Summer and Winter. There are on that distant world oceans and continents; this much at least is certain. Not such oceans as the Atlantic and Pacific, but strange, bottle-shaped seas, of no great extent compared with Earth's greatest.

Whether they are frozen or not, nobody on earth yet knows, but it is Mr. Proctor's belief that Mars, and older planets than ours, has gone far past his period of greatest life, and is fast approaching, if he be not already entering, the cold and lifeless condition of such bodies as our moon, whose internal heat is exhausted. Later, rising wan and far, a pale but luminous ghost of a planet in the eastern sky, comes up great Saturn—the ringed world. This, on some accounts, is the most interesting study of all the planets; chiefly because of the mobility and uncertainty of its occasionally shifting shape, and because of its giant illuminated rings and its eight attendant moons. Its enormous distance also invests it with a certain interest which would be wanting in a near object. It is ascertained that its density does not exceed that of water; and the probabilities seem to favor the conclusion that Saturn is still a globe of molten matter—a world of liquid fire. Its aspect seen on a clear night through a good glass, as the great lemon-colored planet, girdled with its vast elliptic rings, goes sailing silently across the field of vision, is beautiful and interesting beyond that of any other. Much later—in fact in the early dawn of the coming morning—Venus comes resplendently into view. Most brilliant of all the planets to us, because she is nearer to us and to the sun, this remarkable sister world, nearest and apparently most like our own world, is never more brilliant, never more beautiful, than when, as the morning star, she sheds the lustre of her golden (but borrowed) beams upon the earth in the stillness of the clear morning. Venus will probably always be a difficult object of study, because of her proximity to the Sun, but it is found that there are reasons for believing some of her mountains to be equal in height to the highest of our own world.

And That's the Way He Felt.

[Vicksburg Herald.]

He had a wooden leg, three fingers were gone from the left hand, and he had to use a crutch. In the dusk of the evening he sat down on a dry goods box on the street corner, and striking the ground with his crutch, he exclaimed:

"Well, old pard, the war's over? Gimme your hand—shake hard!"

He shook the crutch with hearty good will, and continued:

"There's no more Reb—no more Yank! We're all Americans, and standing shoulder to shoulder—South Carolina alongside Massachusetts—we can lick the boots off'n any nation under the sun!"

He waited awhile and then went on:

"No more skirmishes—no more fouts. Uncle Robert is dead, Gen. Grant wants peace, and they're melting up swords and bayonets to make cotton mill machinery! We're about through camping out, old pard, and we hain't sorry—not a bit!"

He leaned the crutch against the box, lifted his wooden leg, and said:

"Lost a good leg up at Fredericksburg when I was under Barksdale, and Burnside thought he could whip old Uncle Robert and Stonewall Jackson together! Good Lord! but wasn't it hot that day, when the Yanks laid their pontoons and got up and got for us! And when we got up and got for them, wasn't it red hot!"

He stopped to ponder for a while, and his voice was softer as he said:

"But I forgive 'em! I took the chances—and lost. I'm reaching out now to shake hands with the Yank who shot me, and I'll divide my tobacco half and half with him! It was a big war. Yank and Reb stood right up and showed pluck, but it's time to forgive and forget."

He cut a chew off his plug, took off his battered hat and looked at it, and continued:

"Didn't we all come of one blood? Hain't we the big American nation? Isn't this here United States the biggest plantation on the river, and is there a nation in the world that dares knock the chip off our shoulder?

"Maryland, my Maryland, Michigan, my Michigan."

He put down his leg, looked at his crippled hand, and soliloquized:

"Three fingers gone—hand used up, but I'm satisfied. Folks who go to war expect to feel bullets. We stood up to the Yanks—they stood up to us—it was a fair fout, and we got licked. Two fingers hain't as good as five, but they are good enough to shake hands with! Come up here you Yanks, and grip me! We raise cotton down here—you raise corn up there—less trade!"

He sat and pondered while the shadows grew deeper, and by and by he said:

"There's lots of graves down here—there's heaps o' war orphans up North? I'm crippled up and half sick, but I'm going to get up and hit the onery cuss who dares say a word ag'in either. We've got through fighting—we're shaking hands now, and durn the man who says a word to interrupt the harmony! It's one family—ole Uncle Sam's boys and gals and babies, and we're going to live in the same house, eat at the same table, and turn out bigger crops than any other ranch on the globe."

He rose up to go, rapped on the box with his crutch, and continued:

"Resolved, That this glorious old family stick right together in the old homestead for the next million years to come."

—A young woman of sweet seventeen stole into a Minnesota man's bed-room and purloined seven dollars of his money while he was asleep. The amount isn't of much importance, but most men would prefer standing up against the door all night, rather than have a young lady prowling around in their bed-room.

SOUTH MILL POND.

Oh, fair to see! Oh, sweet to smell!
What odors does its bed exhale;
Rose, violet and pimpernel
Exhaust themselves in vain to tell
Such perfumes on the summer gale.

Here unctuous richness doth abound!
And balmy vapors heavenward rise.
While hall and hamlet all around,
Where human dweller may be found,
Contribute their sweet sacrifice.

Outside the margin of the pond,
The tide incessant ebbs and flows;
By which the waste of stream and strand
Deposits here to bless the land,
With exhalations adipose.

Sweet spicy ethers, soft distilled,
With cunning craft the senses mock;
Anon, the lake with dew is filled;
Its bosom with deep joy is thrilled;
Its only rival—Puddledock.

What honor might we not deserve
Should we to this our art devote.
The town possesses just the nerve
To approach the subject in a curve,
A municipal asymptote.

O, sweet to smell! Oh, fair to see!
Oh, speed the happy moment, when Established is—of taxes free—
The city's manufactory
Of Sulphuretted Hydrogen.

Jottings.

Elder Miler Miles Grant of Boston, editor of the World's Crisis, will preach to-morrow in the Advent chapel on Hanover street. The public are cordially invited.

John Watterman, of the crew of the steam yacht Minnehaha, in attempting to throw a line to the wharf at the Shoals on Saturday, lost his balance and went overboard headforemost. The pilot of the yacht saw him falling, and in his earnestness to give the alarm let his "dudeen" drop from his mouth and ge to the bottom. The water was clear, and Mr. Waterman, being at the time under the surface, saw what he supposed some valuable lying on the ocean bed, and continued his progress down until he grasped it and brought it to the surface in his mouth. It turned out to be the pilot's pipe, which went to the bottom a little faster than he. It was worth two cents, par value, but the owner has a much higher value than that on it now.—Newburyport Herald.

The Court street chapel is being renovated and improved by Mr. Joshua Stackpole. A recess is to be built in the rear for the music.

Among the latest improvements now being introduced by the Eastern Railroad Company is a turret for the "saloon car" of its freight trains. It is of such a height and so constructed as to enable the brakeman, while sitting upon a raised platform within the car, to view the whole train and be prepared for any accident that may happen.

There will be another meeting of the new military organization next Tuesday evening at the Common Council room.

Another Portsmouth boy has located in Florida,—Mr. Wallace R. Moses, who has recently been in business at Atlanta, Ga. Palatka is his objective point, and he will find friendly people there. Palatka is rapidly growing and welcomes all good citizens right heartily. Mr. Moses is made of the right kind of material for success.

A select excursion party to Old Orchard Beach will enjoy a fine time next Thursday at $2.45 per head.

Dr. J. F. Hall, Senator from this district, has at his disposal one of the twelve free scholarships in the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts at Hanover, which he is desirous of conferring upon some boy of sixteen years or more whose facilities for self-education are limited. With this aid and remuneration given for labor during term time, and what may be earned during the Summer vacation, a young man of prudent and industrious habits may nearly support himself while obtaining his education. A prompt application is desired by Senator Hall.

Attorney General Lewis W. Clarke broke a leg at the Shoals on Friday.

John E. Rider, Esq., was thrown out of his team at the corner of Vaughan and Hanover steets on Friday afternoon, breaking his right jaw and badly injuring his head. It was found necessary to extract six of his lower teeth which were loosened by the fall.

A Fire Alarm.

The alarm of fire, Friday afternoon, was caused by a telegram from Hampton asking for a steam fire engine to extinguish a large fire. In twenty minutes S. F. E. No. 3 was on a platform car at Dover street, and when about to start, Station Agent Barrett received a telegram stating that the fire was under control and the engine was not needed.

The fire proved to be in the barn of Mr. Cotton Brown, near the Hampton depot, and was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. The barn and shed were burned, with a valuable horse, four pigs, farming utensils, carriages, fourteen tons of hay, and other property. The house was saved by great exertions, and the fire which threatened the house of Mr. J. A. Dearborn, and the whole Corner, was got under. The loss is about $2500. Insured for $1200 in the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co. of Exeter. In the efforts to save property, the house was completely gutted, the windows and doors removed, and even some of the floor boards taken up by the zealous citizen-firemen.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, the petition of Wingate N. Ilsley, for the relaying of side-walk in front of No. 42 State St., and of John W. Moses, in front of his house, Cabot St., were referred to the Mayor and Street Commissioner.

Permission was granted Chas. Robinson to encumber Washington St; and Geo. Lane to encumber Russell and Vaughan Streets, for building purposes under the usual restrictions.

A communication from the chairman of the Board of Health relative to the purchase of the South Mill Pond was referred to the Aldermen from Wards 3 and 5.

The report of the Committee on Streets to whom was referred the matter of establishing the line of Middle St., was accepted.

The report was recommitted to the committee with instructions to report a joint resolution carrying into effect their recommendation of discontinuing part of said highway.

Resolution in regard to the adoption of an act passed at the last session of the Legislature entitled: "An act in relation to sidewalks in cities, and in regard to allowances of betterments in assessing damages for property taken in widening, straightening, laying out streets and contracting sidewalks in cities." referred to the committee on streets with Alderman Hackett added.

The use of the State St., ward room was granted to Capt. Haddock for military purposes.

WHITE ISLAND, July 27.

There was a yacht race out here last week. Perhaps you have heard of it before this, but that's no matter—don't alter the case any. Its promoters intended it to be the greatest yachting success of the season; but "some one had blundered" and wrath and vexation resulted. Friday, the 23d, the day set for the first races, was unfavorable, and consequently there was no racing until next day. Saturday morning was fair, and the Isles of Shoals and the waters adjacent presented a striking scene of

BUSY LIFE AND RARE BEAUTY.

An immense fleet of yachts of all sizes and rigs, numerous steamers big and little, swarms of small boats, and not a few good-sized schooners crowded with sight-seers, nearly every craft of whatever size or kind showing more or less bright-colored hunting, made the waters gay indeed; and well-peopled rocks, and the numerous flags flying from the buildings on shore, brought the landscape into keeping with the marine view.

I can conceive of nothing more beautiful than the spectacle presented just after the signal-gun sounded for the starting of the first-class race as yacht after yacht crossed the line and went swiftly cutting her way toward a hoped-for victory; and not then, nor for some time afterward, was there any indication of a hitch in the arrangements which should seriously mar the success of the whole affair. But there was a hitch, and a bad one, and it turned what promised to be a brilliant success into an annoying failure. The stake-boats (I am informed) had been placed on Thursday, during a thick fog; they were but small affairs, and the arrangements did not include the presence on any stake-boat of any authorized person to take the name or time of passing of any yacht, as the uninitiated would have supposed proper; there had been a stiff breeze and some sea between the time of placing the boats and the starting of the race, yet no vessel was sent over the course Saturday afternoon to make sure all was right; and in consequence, after the first-class yachts had rounded the first stake-boat and run the course and distance to where the second one should have been, they were bothered by finding there. At this time a friend of mine (a man thoroughly acquainted with yachting) who was standing beside me on the light-house balcony, watching the movements of the contending vessels through a glass, remarked: "There's trouble off there—those yachts act mighty odd, and I'll bet they can't find the stake-boat—she's either sunk or drifted from her moorings. The sailing-master of the America knows about all there is to know about yachting, and wouldn't sail his vessel like that if there wasn't trouble. Look at the Coming, Fearless, Halcyon and Resolute, too. There's something wrong, you may depend." And later, as the vessels were coming in, he advanced the opinion that "There will be no race this time,—all bets will be declared off." He was right in his first conjecture, wrong in the second,—for the judges ruled that there was a race and that the yacht Rambler won it, though the stake-boat was so many miles from her proper position that the Rambler was the only vessel to find it. This decision made the rest of the yachtmen mad clear through, and the whole fleet cleared out on Saturday night and Sunday without waiting for the great sweepstakes appointed for next day. The judges undoubtedly weighed every point before coming to the decision they did; but to an outsider it seems odd that when a dozen ably-managed yachts had run a given course and distance only to find that the managers of the race had failed to fulfil its conditions, they should be expected to in a search after a boat to sail around. Such a race could not possibly be a trial either of speed or seamanship.

CRUISE ALL OVER THE WESTERN OCEAN

It is reported (you probably know better than I with how much truth) that the yachts Resolute and America (Gen. Butler's schooner) are matched for two races,—one "friendly" and one for a good round stake. If so, and they have wind enough, there will be some good racing, for old Ben will sail to win, and the Resolute can travel when she sets out,—in fact, the latter vessel seemed to me to be outsailing everything when she passed this island during Saturday's fizzle. I rather hope the America will win, however, for I think much better of Gen. Butler than many people pretend to, and have a personal affection for his yacht, as she used to be a standing argument with me in my patriotic discussions with benighted Britishers. How I did use to make her go! I believe that at the last I used to make her twenty-four hours in a fifty-mile race; and I would have made her sail three times as fast as I did, sooner than have allowed my antagonists to triumph.

BEAT THE WHOLE BRITISH YACHT FLEET

The last time I came out from Portsmouth I saw another kind of a race,—between the steamers Major and Appledore. Both boats having low-pressure engines with "government valves" on their boilers, it is of no use to hope for anything like a Mississippi river excitement when they race; but there is some excitement in it, even if there is no chance for a blow-up. The Major gradually drew ahead, at first, and finally crossed the Appledore's bow just outside of Whalesback; but the latter then commenced to gain, slowly but steadily, and at length more than recovered all the ground she had lost,—in short, gave the swift Major which caused "Modoc" to exhibit a corn broom (the only substitute for a rooster he could find) and drew forth various suggestions as to the best way the Major could dispose of her big "crower," one person advising that he be slued t'other end up, while another thought his tail-feathers should be pulled out, and a third fancied a much smaller chicken should be substituted for the big fellow. The Key-Note of Health.

The health and vigor of the several organs of the body depend upon the simple condition that the functions which pertain to each shall be regularly and actively performed. If vitality is sluggish or deficient, this condition is not properly fulfilled, and as a consequence disease is soon inaugurated. Prevent it by a timely use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which rouse the vital energies when dormant and endow the feeble frame with needful stamina. At the same time that the Bitters infuse new strength into the system, they correct those functional irregularities and local weaknesses which sap the vital power. Dyspepsia, bladder and kidney complaints, gout, rheumatism, fever and ague, biliousness, constipation and nervous diseases are invariably overcome by the operation of this standard alterative tonic.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and aldermen, enter into any such real forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

—Troy Press: Last evening nineteen beef cattle came over the covered bridge from West Troy. They were in charge of two boys and four dogs—big and unclean, and one of them was yellow. The boys were armed with long sticks, stolen from a lumber pile. As the procession entered King street, ten city dogs, with tails aloft and ears elevated, ran after the country dogs, and they halted. The ten visiting dogs were black and three of the country dogs were black, which made exactly a baker's dozen black dogs. They kicked up an impromptu fight in about forty seconds, which alarmed the cattle, and with one accord they bowed down their heads and advanced on the quarrelsome canines. A short, quick, upward jerk of the beeves' necks and the atmosphere was full of dogs, kicking and howling and pawing in the air. Some came down on their backs, some on their sides and some on their heads. One dog landed on an awning and rolled off like a keg of nails, some into a tub of water where a youth had been bathing some ice. The dog fight was over and each cur crawled or limped home as best he could. Time—one minute.

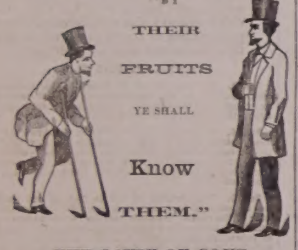
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquilin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the case with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, wastes of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which show scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Pulmocine Cordial.

—Chicago Tribune: The Curtis-street No-Stockings and the North May-street Mutuals (second nine) played an interesting game recently on the street of the latter club. Some very heavy batting was done. Sniffey, of the No-Stockings, struck a hot liner in the latter part of the seventh inning right over the right fielder's head into a grocery window on which nineteen home-runs were scored, one by each member of the two-nines, and one by one scorer. They would have scored twenty-one only a policeman who happened to be passing, assisted by the grocer's boy, made a brilliant double play, and took in the scorer and the umpire. No decision has yet been given, but the umpire is expected to render one tomorrow as soon as the police justice has reprimanded and discharged him.

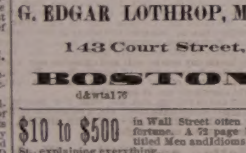
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM

AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swellings, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because these medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man, being an important Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is or the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESEREVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum, and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is now discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England!

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON. Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

LAWS

Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION relating to military affairs.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That His Excellency the Governor, with advice of the council, be instructed to adjust, with each of the volunteer military companies of this state, any claim for armories now over-due and unpaid; and to require of the adjutant-general to obtain from each of said companies a proper receipt for all arms, clothing, equipments, and other property, now on hand, furnished them by the state, and a proper bond for the safe keeping and return of the same; provided, such receipt and bond have not been given and put on file in the adjutant general's department.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION to make appropriation to meet expenses of centennial exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That to enable the state of New Hampshire to participate in the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876, in a manner becoming one of the original thirteen states, and to make the necessary arrangements therefor, the sum of five thousand dollars to be expended under the direction of the centennial committee of New Hampshire, be and the same is hereby appropriated for that purpose; and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant therefore.

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION requesting the governor to transmit to senators and members of congress a copy of the joint resolution in favor of specie payment.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That His Excellency the Governor be requested to transmit to each of the senators and members of congress from this state a copy of the joint resolution passed July 1, 1875, entitled "A joint resolution in favor of specie payments."

Approved July 3, 1875.

JOINT RESOLUTION in favor of Edwin Judkins.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the sum of ($39) thirty-nine dollars be allowed Edwin Judkins for services, mileage, and attendance, as sergeant-at-arms of the senate, and [$8.50] eight dollars and fifty cents, expenses in summoning the justices of the superior court; and that the governor draw his warrant for said several sums.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to provide for additional terms of the probate court for the county of Merrimack.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That in addition to the terms of the probate court for the county of Merrimack now required by law to be held, there shall be held four terms annually in the town of Warner,—that is to say, on the second Tuesday of January, April, July, and October of each year, and in the town of Pittsfield there shall be held four terms annually,—that is to say, on the second Thursday of March, and on the second Tuesday of June, September and December of each year.

SEC. 2. That the Judge of Probate for the county of Merrimack, and the Register of Probate for the county of Merrimack, shall each receive one hundred and fifty dollars annually in addition to their present salaries for holding the additional terms provided for in this act.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect on its passage.

Approved June 30, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter thirty-five of the General Statutes, in relation to warning town-meetings.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That section ten of chapter thirty five of the General Statutes, shall be amended so as to read as follows, to wit:—If the annual meeting in any town shall not have been holden, if there has never been any legal meeting of the town, or if by cason of death, removal from the town, disability, or resignation of the whole board of selectmen, no member of the board remains in office, a justice of the peace, on application of ten voters, or of one-sixth part of the voters of the town, may issue a warrant for such meeting.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage
Approved June 30, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter 162, section second of the General Statutes, in relation to the record of marriages.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Every person before whom any marriage shall be solemnized between parties not resident in the town where the marriage is solemnized, shall forthwith make return of the record of such marriage to the clerk of the town in which the intention of marriages of the parties was entered.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage
Approved June 30, 1875.

AN ACT to protect black bass, smelts, and pickerel in Rand's pond, in the town of Goshen, and in all tributaries to said pond.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. No person or persons shall take in any manner, nor at any season of the year, any of the fish known as black bass, smelts or pickerel from Rand's pond in Goshen, nor in any of the tributaries to said pond, for five years from the passage of this act.

SEC. 2. Any person convicted of a violation of this act shall be fined not less than five dollars, one half of said fine to be received by the complainant, and the other half to the county.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.
Approved July 30, 1875.

MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1875.

News and Notes.

Andrew Johnson died at Bristol, Tenn., at two o'clock, Saturday morning, having been stricken with paralysis Friday afternoon at four o'clock.

A Hinsdale man has a horse that likes tobacco.

The Louisville Courier-Journal fears that the Ohio financiers have played the deuce with the prospects of the great democratic party. They did play a mighty low card, to be sure.—Boston Herald.

Henry Clay Dean is preparing the way for a clean republican victory in Iowa.

Children picking berries on the Amherst Road, in the vicinity of where Brockway was shot at were fired at by a man supposed to be Brockway's assailant. The children claim that he has a mask on and that he fired seven shots at them from a revolver. They were very much frightened, and the alarm bell was immediately rung, and the fire department, with many citizens, went to surround the woods and capture him.

The inflationists of Pennsylvania threaten to run a ticket of their own if the democrats do not give them a rag money candidate.

On Thursday afternoon a little daughter of Josiah Stetson, living in Cushing's Court, was at play with other children making clay-cakes and pounding clay in the yard. They had a small axe, which they used, and the little Stetson girl reached for a piece of clay just as another one of the children was about to hit it with the axe. The result was, the axe came down edge first and nearly severed her hand from the arm. A physician was immediately called, the hand was put into its proper place and confined, and it is thought that it may be saved. It was a bad accident, and should teach parents to keep edged tools out of reach of their small children.—Foster's (Dover) Democrat.

A despatch from Eureka, Nev., reports a cave in the Eureka Consolidated Mine, Ruby Hill. Five miners were killed. Two bodies were recovered, and search is being made for the others.

Henry Wilson is pulling the moral wires on such slender capital, with such quiet, unobtrusive confidence, that it may be admitted he has pulled up in the race several lengths. He now stands ahead of Grant, with his nose on John Logan's crupper, abreast of Morton, and right in the wake of Blaine. For his amount of girt, coat-tail, faith in Providence and hat brim, he makes good time. His health is picked up; he has seriously been courting a rich widow in New York. It is a little queer that we never hear anything mean about Wilson; perhaps it is because he isn't mean. He is Grant's antipodes in carelessness about money, neither wishing it, nor having it, nor spending it. He is a man of genuine temperance, which nature has slandered by giving him a very red face. When dressed in his long-skirted coat and white hat, he looks like the emperor—paternal, large, gracious, approachable, natural.—"Gath," in Cincinnati Commercial.

The Spanish authorities at Puerto Rico have boarded and taken from an English vessel a passenger named Luis Venegas. Now the British lion will growl.

Paul DeCassagnac, the French duellist, is very brave when he can get an antagonist to accept a challenge, being an expert swordsman and a dead shot. Recently he insulted Henri Rochefort, thinking the latter would not fight against such a skillful antagonist. But Rochefort has accepted the challenge and selected pistols for weapons, the combatants to be placed five paces apart. Cassagnac's seconds demur at this, style it murder and want thirty paces to be the distance, each to advance five paces and fire when they choose.

Mr. Pendleton is alarmed at the situation in Ohio, and evidently appreciates the fact that his party has overreached itself on the greenback inflation scheme. So he has declared himself a Hard-Money man. When he kicks over the platform, and takes the stump against Sam Cary, we will accept his conversion as genuine.—Baltimore Gazette.

At a meeting of the School Board of Concord, Thursday evening, John L. Stanley, of Bradford, Mass., was unanimously elected Principal of the High School, vice J. D. Bartley, resigned. Mr. Stanley has been Principal of the Bradford High School for the past six years, has taught at the Bradford Academy, and was recently elected again as teacher of the High School for the present year. He is a graduate of Dartmouth, class of 1869. It is understood that he will accept the position tendered him. There were over twenty applications for the position. Mr. Stanley's salary is to be $1800 por year.

Portland has a temperance chap who says he got drunk on mince pies! Such weak-headed people need the stimulus that "locusts and wild honey" afford, with a change, now and then, to shrimp milk. A month of such dieting would fit him for the associate editorship of the Prohibition Herald.

The total valuation of Great Falls is $2,252,124. There are 1155 ratable polls. The tax in the first district is $1.58 on $100—in the second $2.34—in the third $1.75. The second and third districts are building school houses—so says the Great Falls Journal.

M. T. Bowden, a school teacher at St. James, La., filled a pocket with advertising imitations of greenbacks, and when somebody at the village store offered to bet on something, he drew out a handful, saying, "Make it $500 and I'll take you." The most of the bystanders saw the character of the supposed money, and laughed at the joke. Not so Karl Ahlberg, an ignorant Swede, who regarded the bills genuine and the amount as a fortune. Ahlberg enticed Bowden into a stable, murdered him with a shovel, secured the worthless roll of paper, buried the body, and fled.

The case of Mr. B. F. Remick of Boston, who was charged with manslaughter, has been dismissed by the District-Attorney.

There is a mine or fountain of honey on the eastern shore of the San Fernando range of mountains, in Los Angelos, Cal., which men have tried several times to capture and have as often failed. It is a rift which penetrates the rock to a depth of 160 feet. The opening is 30 feet long and 17 feet wide, with two passages. The bees come and go in solid columns about one foot in diameter. Efforts have been made to descend to the store of honey in the rock, but the men were invariably driven back and one man lost his life. The hive has been known four years, and it is estimated that there cannot be less than eight or ten tons of honey in it. A man who lives in a cabin not far from the spot gets more honey than his family can use from the leakage. It flows out of a small aperture in the rock. He has a honey fountain at his door.

Another weak-minded biped has been thanking God at a Lewiston temperance meeting that the caterpillars have destroyed the apple crop. And now if he will only pray for a flood to beat down the growing corn!

A private letter received July 16, in Sheffield, from one of the crew of the iron ship Glance, of London, which arrived in the Thames from Adelaide on July 15, gives intelligence of a terrible event which recently occurred at sea. On the 27th ult., the Glance passed an out-bound vessel, bearing the name of Jessie Osborne, and was hailed by the captain of the latter ship, who reported that one of his crew had gone mad; that for five days the maniac had stationed himself aloft, and that nothing could induce him to return on deck. The captain further reported that the madman had armed himself with a large chisel, with which he was cutting the ropes, and that the boatswain had tried to bring him down. The maniac, however, threw a block at the boatswain, knocking him down on the deck and breaking his arm and leg. As a matter of safety to his vessel and crew, the captain of the Jessie Osborne considered that it was necessary to shoot the maniac, and after consultation that course was decided upon. The crew and officers of the Glance were requested to be present as witnesses, and in their presence the man was shot with a revolver. In consequence of the way in which he moved about the rigging, three shots had to be fired before he was fatally injured. He fell dead on the deck, and his body was eventually thrown overboard.

Some of the Ohio democratic papers keep the platform of the party standing in their columns with the financial planks omitted. —N. Y. World.

A Coal Mine Horror.

[Dunmore] Pa., cor. (July 27) N. Y. Herald.

Through the brutality of a miner in the employ of the Pennsylvania Coal Company at this place a mule boy in the same mine was recently put to so terrible an experience in one of the Company's abandoned mines that he has become, it is feared, hopelessly insane, and has been sent to the lunatic asylum in Danville, Montour county.

The miner's name is James Barrett. The boy is the son of a poor widow, and although but 14 years of age, contributed largely to her support. His name is James Gallagher. The man Barrett, it seems, was in the habit of abusing the lad in a most shameful manner, having no apparent cause save a mere personal antipathy. The boy stood in mortal fear of Barrett. A week or so ago the latter had been tyrannizing over young Gallagher with more than usual cruelty, and finally swore if he did not quit his sight at once he would kill him, at the same time running toward the boy with his pick raised as if to strike him. Gallagher ran screaming away from his persecutor, and made directly into the abandoned chamber, never stopping to look where he was, in his fright only thinking of getting out of the reach of Barrett. After running for some time the boy stopped, and for the first time saw that he was in the worked-out mine. Even then terror of his cruel taskmaster was uppermost in his mind, and it was not until the little mine lamp on his cap began to grow dim and finally went entirely out that he awoke to the horror of his situation.

If there is a chamber of horrors anywhere in the world, it is a coal mine that has been worked out and deserted. Its labyrinth of silent corridors responds to the least sound with the most demoniacal echoes, and noxious gases generate in the pools of slimy water that exude from the walls and drip down upon the slippery floor. Pitfalls filled with water that accumulates without interruption abound in these noisome halls, and myriads of hungry rats, bold and even aggressive, haunt the desolate chambers hundreds of feet below the earth's surface, and over all the most oppressive darkness. There is no darkness like that in a mine. It is so dense and heavy that one feels its weight upon him as if he were beneath fathoms of water, and the eye does not become accustomed to its pall sufficiently to penetrate it in the slightest degree. On every side the constant drip, drip of the unwholesome water is heard, and the noise of rats, which frequently displace some loose boulder of coal as they scamper over it, and send it tumbling to the floor, awaking a thousand horrid echoes and sending them reverberating through the deserted chambers.

It was into such a place as this that young Gallagher found himself, without a light, alone and entirely ignorant of the way out. His first thought was to shout aloud for help, but the sound of his voice traversing the devious corridors and yelling back to him his cry, prolong and multiplied a hundred times, as if so many fiends were mocking his distress, so frightened the boy that he could not gather courage to repeat the cry, and he commenced groping his way along in silence in the direction he thought most likely would lead to the entrance of the mine. He had proceeded some distance along the slimy wall when a certain difficulty of breathing and choking sensation warned him that he was trespassing where the greatest of all terrors to the miner, fire-damp, prevailed, and he hastily retraced his steps with the intention of turning into the first corridor he came to. It was a long time before he could reach one. It turned off to the right, and he entered it and followed it for a quarter of an hour, feeling his way along one side of it and being careful not to turn into any of the corridors crossing it, so that he might not become confused if circumstances compelled him to again retrace his steps. Suddenly in putting his foot forward, he found no rest for it, and before he could recover his balance he fell headlong into a pit. His head came in contact with one side of the excavation. He attempted to regain his feet, but he was overcome with a sense of numbness and fell back into the slime and ooze that covered the jagged bottom of the pit. How long he lay there unconscious the boy did not know. He came to himself with a knowledge of a peculiar pain in his fingers and toes. At first he did not realize where he was, but the impenetrable darkness and cold, damp atmosphere soon recalled his situation. He drew up his hands and feet to make an effort to rise, when an army of rats scampered away from about him. They ran over his body and trailed their cold, slimy tails in his face. He sprang up with a shriek of terror that again started the blood-curdling echoes through the chamber.

From the feeling of his hands and feet Gallagher knew that the rats had been gnawing at his flesh, but he did not stop to make any investigation until he escaped from the pit and was again on his way back to the place whence he had started. To get out of the pit he found no easy task. Twice he clambered up its jagged sides until he almost reached the top, and as many times fell back to the bottom. The third time trying was successful, and he drew himself out exhausted and fainting. He lay down on the floor of the corridor for several minutes before he had strength to proceed, and then gathered himself up and hurried away from the spot which was so full of terrors to him. When he reached the first cross corridor he sat down on a jutting piece of coal and for the first time found that the rats had gnawed two of his fingers to the bone, had eaten away the uppers of his shoes and the flesh of his two great toes. He had often heard old miners relate over their lunch in the dismal chamber the experience of men lost in mines and attacked by rats, and now the reality of the thing nearly overcame him with its horror, and he almost swooned at the thought of what he had passed through and what he might yet be doomed to experience. To add to the terrible situation of the poor lad, hunger began to make itself manifest, and the tortures of thirst were beginning to afflict him. As was the case with the Ancient Mariner, there was "Water, water every where, but not a drop to drink."

From the fact that he was growing so hungry and thirsty Gallagher judged that he had been a long time in the mine. Up to this time he had been confident that he would be able to find his way out of the old mine in the course of a few hours, but now hope seemed to be leaving him. He conjured up pictures of his mother waiting for him to come home at night, of her anxiety at his tardiness, and then her uncontrollable grief at the news of his loss. Then his mind dwelt on the horrors of a death by starvation or suffocation in the mine, and the sickening thought that he was followed by a horde of ravenous rats, that were ready to make food of him even before he was dead. These thoughts almost drove him crazy, and arousing himself, he determined to make another effort to escape from the mine. He followed one of the cross corridors and wandered about in the maze of chambers for hours. Once he thought he heard his name called and he shouted in reply, only to hear it repeated for many minutes by the demon echoes.

While wandering about in this way, a prey to the tortures of hunger and thirst, and to both mental and physical agony, he saw a light flash for an instant across the corridors in which he was groping. It was a long way off, but he knew it was a miner's lamp, and felt that parties were searching through the deserted chambers for him. Regardless of the hard, jagged floor, the strong walls, the ever accompanying throng of rats that kept in his rear, or dangerous pits, that might be ahead of him, he ran rapidly toward where he had seen the light, shouting until he was hoarse:

"This way! Here I am! Here I am! This way, for God's sake!"

The echoes took up the cry and carried it through the noisome avenues, lifted it up to the roof of the cerulean vault, and repeated it until it died away in a wail of agony; but the bearer of the light did not hear it in the course he had taken, and the almost exhausted boy, foot-sore and bruised by frequent falls on the hard, rough mine floor, hurried on in the subterranean labyrinth. Suddenly, in turning the angle of one of the corridors, a light flashed upon his sight, and then another and another. A voice shouted a prolonged call:

"J-a-m-e-s G-a-l-l-a-g-h-e-r! Hel-l-o-o-o, Jimmy!"

The inevitable echoes had scarcely taken up the cry when the boy returned the call with all his soul in his voice:

"Here I am! Come this way!"

His answer was heard, and in a few moments sturdy miners had found the boy. But he did not know that he was rescued. He had fallen to the ground unconscious, his strength having gone out with his last wild cry. He was soon taken out into the pure air, where his frantic mother and the most of the village had assembled to await the result of the search. The people were wild when it was announced that the boy was found, and his brave rescuers were borne aloft by the crowd. It was a long time before young Gallagher was restored to consciousness, and then it was only at intervals that he was in his right mind. In these sane intervals he related the story of his fearful suffering, and learned that he had been nearly two days and one long night wandering among the horrors of the mine. His lucid spells lasted but a short time, when he would be seized with frantic ravings, in which he would plaintively beg of Barrett not to hurt him, and then shriek: "The rats are eating me up! Drive them away? Drive them away!"

The moments in which he was sane became less frequent, and finally days passed without one gleam of reason lighting up the darkness of his mind. The surgeons found it necessary to amputate one hand and three toes that had been gnawed by rats and to perform other painful operations to save the boy's life. One day last week, his physical condition being such as to permit it, they decided that he must be taken to an asylum for mental treatment, and expressed grave doubts of his permanent recovery. The brute Barrett, when the result of his cruelty became known, was compelled to fly the place in the night to escape the fury of the exasperated populace, and personal effects left by him were burned, as an expression of the indignation of the people against him.

Riding Into the Tide.

[N. Y. Sun.]

On Wednesday evening Governor's Island was the scene of a very sad accident, by which a nephew of Capt. John J. Butler, of the Ordnance Department, lost his life. Mr. R. A. Butler, of Cincinnati, with his wife and family was spending a few days with his brother on the island. On Wednesday the party started on an excursion, and were out all day, returning to Governor's Island late in the evening. They had all gone into the Captain's quarters except one of the children, a little boy eleven years old. He was amusing himself on the ordnance dock with a small three-wheeled wooden velocipede. Except the sentinel on duty, nobody else was on the dock, and as the little boy whirled about, steering his diminutive vehicle occasionally dangerously close to the edge, the soldier watched him narrowly. Soon convinced, however, that the boy understood the management of his machine too well to be in any danger of rolling it off the dock, he passed on. It was growing rapidly dark, and the boy may have failed to see the edge of the dock distinctly. When the sentinel reached the end of his patrol and turned round he was alone on the pier. It was about quarter past 8 o'clock, and the tide was running out with irresistible force. Several yards from the dock the soldier saw a pair of little hands raised above the water, and what was evidently the velocipede floating rapidly away beside them. Shouting for assistance, he leaped into the river and swam toward them, but before he had progressed a dozen yards all trace of the boy had vanished. Boats put off from the island, and the sentinel was taken from the water, but nothing was seen of the boy. The tide had carried the body out to sea, and it has not yet been recovered.

—A Vicksburg mother had company and as her six-year-old son made himself disagreeably conspicuous, she gave him a threatening look and silently warned him to leave the room. Instead of obeying he walked up to one of the ladies and inquired:

"Missis, can you stay here all night?"

"Why, what do you mean?" she asked in a tone of surprise.

"If you'll stay, mother won't dare lick me; if you don't she'll make me hop."

It was affecting to see his mother lift him to her knee, kiss him repeatedly, and blandly inform the ladies it was only his cute way.

—One of the drayman was observed to walk up to his horse, which was standing perfectly quiet and docile, and give the animal several heavy kicks. "What's up—what made you kick him?" asked a spectator. "Just happened to think of it," replied the drayman, "and I may be so busy from now till dark that I won't have another chance to kick him!"—Det. Free Press.

A Great Fire.

The largest fire that has occurred in this city for some time commenced in the woodshed of J. W. Sowerby's Bakery on South Meeting House Hill on Sunday morning about half-past three. The city watchmen had finished their round at the South end and gone to the Station, and every citizen in the neighborhood of the fire was in a sound slumber so that the flames had made great progress before they were discovered, and, in fact, when the first cry of fire was made the shed above alluded to, which contained seven or eight cords of wood, was well on fire, which had communicated with the bake-house. The latter building burned like tinder, and by the time the steamers arrived, the Bakery, together with a large stable in the rear sufficient to accommodate seven or eight horses, and also a building for stowing straw and bedding were well on fire and beyond the possibility of saving.

The residences of Mr. John Nutter on the north side and that of Mr. Chandler M. Hayford on the south, were being imminently threatened when the first stream of water reached the fire. It seemed to us that if immediate attention had been given to the wetting of these two dwellings, the flames could have been confined to the spot where they originated. But the managers of the fire evidently thought otherwise and directed the efforts of the steamers upon the burning ruins instead of the rear of Mr. Nutter's dwelling house and the north end of Hayford's. It is said, by way of explanation, however, that the fire was so hot it was impossible to get at these two buildings mentioned and the pipemen after repeated efforts endeavored to reach the rear portion of the house of Mr. Nutter where there was a large L on fire, were forced to abandon the attempt, and the result was the nearly total destruction of Mr. Nutter's premises on the one side of the bake-house and those of Mr. Hayford, Chase Gray, Rose Carlton and Daniel Murphy on the one side, the two latter on Hunking street, seven buildings in all, five of them being dwelling-houses. The Bakery property with the two houses immediately adjacent were owned by Mr. John Nutter and were valued at $6000. Insured for $4500. Mr. Chase Gray's house was insured for $600, which will cover his loss. The one-story house on Hunking street owned by B. F. Walker, 18 Jefferson street, was occupied by Miss Rose Carlton and was insured for $700; valued at $1000. The next house was owned by the occupant, Mr. Daniel Murphy, the well-known and faithful gardener employed by the late Jonathan M. Tredick, Esq. Mr. Murphy's property is partially covered by insurance.

At one time during the conflagration there were ten buildings on fire, the roofs of three houses on Hunking street catching from the falling cinder flakes with which the air was filled. In this connection it is proper to give credit to Andrew J. Penhallow, Esq., who, with a common force pump used for washing windows, rendered effective service by climbing the roofs of the exposed dwellings and keeping them wet, thereby making harmless the showers of cinders that were constantly dropping. By this means alone the whole square between Pickering and Hunking streets was saved from destruction. Fortunately, all of those who were burned out, saved nearly all their furniture although some of it is naturally more or less damaged.

One cause of the great delay in arousing the Fire Department, may be attributed to an accident that happened to the North Church bell. Just after three or four strokes had been struck, the rope slipped over the wheel and the ringing ceased, leading many in the North and West parts of the city to suppose it to be a false alarm; and it was not until the rope had been readjusted that a general alarm was given. Upwards of three-quarters of an hour elapsed between the first cry of fire and the arrival of the steamers.

The navy yard steamer Cataract, E. C. Neally, engineer, very kindly came to the relief, and although meeting with an accident near the Universalist church by the breaking of the hose carriage, contributed excellent and timely service. Our firemen worked with a will, and well sustained their good reputation; although they were seriously embarrassed by the constant breaking of the hose, to which fact we would respectfully call the attention of the committee on Fire Department. Kearsarge No. 3 was first at the fire. There was in several notable instances a lack of proper management of the Department.

The origin of the fire is unknown.

Some of the crew of the U. S. S. Lancaster have been 39 months and 11 days on continuous duty, and have five months more to serve.

Again.

Shall the South cry out and the North refrain from uttering her complaint? No! We take up the lamentation—for, at the foot of Brewster and Langdon streets is a pool whose waters are troubled by no angelic feet, but by the emptyings of cesspools, and the carcasses of animals, until it has become a receptacle of the vilest sort, the embankments of the railroad preventing the free flow of tide. Oh! that the health officers would walk by its banks! Oh! that they would meditate upon its waters and inhale its odors. Surely they would be led to abhor it, and to remove it from off the face of the earth. There is a rumor abroad—we do not believe it—we cannot. It is this: that the clean, bright sprinkler with its lovely blue body and delicate spray-like shower, is filled at this reservoir of filth, and the waters are distributed about our streets, thereby causing a peculiar odor after sunset. We never can credit this—rumors are often groundless—but this we do know, that the pool is there preparing typhoid fever, etc.—and since physicians are quite powerless in treating really malignant diseases, ought we not to avoid all causes which produce such suffering? May we ask one question?—Whose business is it to attend to such matters—and why don't they attend to that particular business?

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this greatest book is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs in Bound Book $1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

The Key-Note of Health.

The health and vigor of the several organs of the body depend upon the simple condition that the functions which pertain to each shall be regularly and actively performed. If vitality is sluggish or deficient, this condition is not properly fulfilled, and as a consequence disease is soon inaugurated. Prevent it seasonably by timely use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which restore the vital energies when dormant and endow the feeble frame with needful stamina. At the same time that the Bitters infuse new strength into the system, they correct those functional irregularities and local weaknesses which sap the vital power. Dyspepsia, bladder and kidney complaints, gout, rheumatism, fever and ague, biliousness, consumption and nervous diseases are invariably overcome by the operation of this standard alterative tonic.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than ten times nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or yards over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and aldermen or of the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

—The Liverpool people were at first disposed to treat the story of the Scythia's collision with a whale as a huge joke, and not until the dead body of the monster of the deep was found was the story believed. The Liverpool Mercury says there there are many theories as to how the whale came in collision with the steamer. One is that the whale was taken at an unguarded moment. Not suspecting that it was the track—or "lanes," as the Cunard captains call them—which the steamers of this line take in crossing to America, the whale was float ing peacefully on the billows and asleep, and that its slumbers were rudely interrupted by the propeller of the Scythia coming smack against its snout. This is the theory of those who believe that whales sleep. The tug British King towed the carcass of the dead whale into Queenstown. The Scythia, the slayer of the whale, happened to be in the harbor at the time. The carcass of the whale was towed alongside the steamer, and the crew and passengers on seeing it gave a hearty cheer. The tug and the whale remained in the harbor until 11 o'clock the Sunday after its death, and during their stay were visited by thousands who were anxious to see the "great creature that was kilt by the steamer." The British King on Sunday morning set sail for Liverpool with her strange charge in tow. In crossing the Channel the invariable signal was, "Where are you bound for, and what have you got in tow?" When the reply was "a whale," the interrogatories were not continued.

—Good manners is the act of making those people easy with whom we converse. Whoever makes the fewer persons uneasy is the best bred in the company.—Dean Swift.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS.

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Fussules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to all health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the craving for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

—For me nothing is more interesting than to see a man in the first intense strain of a new enterprise. It may be a new cider mill; it may be a new newspaper. It is a grand crisis in that man's life. He lives thirty days in one. Old, trite proverbs take on new and startling meanings. He looks upon all men and all things in a strange, new light. He judges all men and all things with regard to the accomplishment of his one, supreme design. During a certain time the stars in their courses fight for him; then the very universe changes its direction, and pushes with all its weight against his tottering walls; another change, and a thousand accidents are in his favor. He does not know or tell years afterward with what concentration he labored in those days of beginning. He smiles at himself, and tells pleasant stories of his make-shifts and absorptions and now when he sees another younger person starting his cider-mill with the old outworn enthusiasm, he looks on with the same half-sympathetic, half-cynical interest with which an old married man contemplates two young people who have just fallen in love.—Scribner's Monthly.

—A very good drink is made by putting about two spoonfuls of oatmeal into a tumbler of water. The Western hunters and trappers consider it the best of drinks, and it is at once nourishing, stimulating and satisfying. It is popular in the Brooklyn navy yard, two and a half pounds of oatmeal being put into a pail of moderately cool water. It is much better than any of the ordinary mixtures of vinegar and molasses with water, which farmers use in haying or harvest fields.

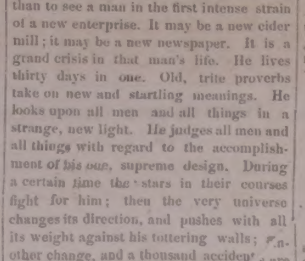
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL Know THEM."



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquillin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, cleansing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to decrease and diminish insensibly. This fact is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which shower scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Thousands buy it at sight, who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, causes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Why the Improved Zero Refrigerator has taken precedence over all others:

It requires less than one half the ice to run it. It dispenses with the nuisance of having a drip pan under it. It is a refrigerator and water cooler combined. It has the dryest provision chamber. It is built in the best manner and style of design. It is the cheapest to buy and it is a perfect Meat, Fish, Fruit and Ice preserver. Send for Illustrated Catalogue, with prices, and study our claims and be convinced for yourself. For sale by JOHN P. SWEETSER, 46 MARKET STREET, Portsmouth, N. H.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the slimy, trying climate of New England;

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $3,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when if is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessment for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

LAWS

Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

SEC. 6. If any person shall engage in the business of retailing and vending, directly or indirectly, drugs, medicines, and chemicals, and in dispensing medicines and compounding physician's prescriptions, contrary to the provisions of this act, every such person shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for each and every week such person shall continue in said business without being registered, as provided by this act, which fine may be recovered by an action of debt for the use of any person who shall sue therefor, or by an indictment.

SEC. 7. The provisions of this act shall not be so constructed as to apply to physicians compounding and putting up their own prescriptions.

SEC. 8. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved July 1, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter 197 of the General Statutes, in relation to the powers of sheriffs, coroners, and constables.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Constables shall serve and return writs, and other civil precepts to them directed, wherein the amount demanded in damages does not exceed thirteen dollars and thirty-three cents, and no others, and shall have similar powers, and be subject to similar liabilities, in relation thereto as sheriffs.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved July 1, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter 52 of the Pamphlet Laws, passed June session, 1874, entitled "An act providing for the enumeration of children in cities and towns."

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The selectmen of each town and the assessors of each city shall annually, in the month of April, make an enumeration of the children of each sex, between the ages of five and fifteen, in their respective towns and cities, and shall make a report of such enumeration to the superintendent of the school committee of their respective towns and cities within fifteen days after the completion of each enumeration.

SEC. 2. Section 1 of said chapter 52 is hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect on and after its passage.

Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT relating to the payment of the coupons of certain bonds of this state belonging to the town of Eaton.

Whereas, the coupons for the interest due in January and July, A. D., 1875, upon certain bonds of this state, belonging to the town of Eaton, and amounting to one hundred and fifty-nine dollars, have been accidentally lost:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That the treasury of the state be authorized to pay to the town of Eaton the amount of said coupons, upon the receipt of satisfactory security to refund the amount thereof, with all costs, interest and charges, in case said coupons shall hereafter be presented or said interest claimed by any person lawfully entitled thereto.

Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT to provide for the assessment and collection of a state tax.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The sum of four hundred thousand dollars shall be raised for the use of the state, and shall be assessed, collected, and paid into the treasury on or before the first day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six; and the state treasurer is hereby directed seasonably to issue his warrant to the selectmen of the several towns and places, and to the assessors of the several cities in this state, according to the apportionment of public taxes made June session one thousand eight hundred and seventy two; and the selectmen of such towns and places, and the assessors of such cities, are hereby required to assess the sums specified in said warrant, and cause the same to be paid to said treasurer on or before the first day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy six; and the state treasurer is hereby authorized to issue his extents for all the taxes which shall then remain unpaid.

AN ACT authorizing the town of Gorham to exempt the Alpine House property from taxation for a limited time.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The town of Gorham, may, by vote passed at any meeting lawfully notified and holden for the purpose, exempt the Alpine House lands, together with a hotel and buildings appurtenant thereto to be erected thereon, from taxation, for such time, not exceeding ten years, and upon such terms, as the town may think proper.

Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter 251 of the General Statutes relating to the taking of smelts in the Piscataqua river, and in the Great Bay and their tributaries.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. No person shall take, catch, or kill any of the fish called smelts in the Piscataqua river or in the Great Bay, or in any of their waters or tributaries, with any net, seine, weir, or other instrument of contrivance whereby great numbers of said fish may be taken or destroyed at the same time, under penalty of a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offence, one half of which fine shall be paid to the person who will first give information to the solicitor of the county, or prosecute therefor.

SEC. 2. So much of the ninth section of chapter two hundred and fifty-one of the General Statutes as relates to smelts is hereby repealed.

Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT to exempt from taxation money loaned towns by individuals residing in the towns where the same is loaned.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Any town in this state, at any legal meeting holden therein, may, by a majority of the legal voters present and voting at said meeting, authorize their selectmen to hire money of individuals living in the town, at a rate of interest not exceeding five per cent. per annum, exempting all moneys thus loaned from taxation.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect from its passage Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT for the protection of fish in Cobleigh' pond in Northumberland and its tributaries.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That all persons are hereby prohibited from taking any fish from Cobleigh's pond in Northumberland, and its tributaries; and any person violating the provisions of this act shall be liable to a fine of five dollars for each and every fish taken therefrom.

SEC. 2. Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent those who are owners of land around said pond from cultivating and taking fish from the same in any manner and at any time most convenient.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.
Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of sections 21 and 22 chapter 251 of the General Statutes in relation to fish ways.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That section 21 of chapter 251 be amended by adding after the word "commenced" the following, viz., "nor until the commissioners on fisheries for this state shall have given notice in writing to the owners or lessees of dams on said rivers and their tributaries, that in their opinion the public good requires the establishment and immediate building of suitable fish-ways."

SEC. 2. The owners of dams shall be allowed six months from the date of the notice of the commissioners on fisheries in which to erect and complete such fish-ways before they shall be liable to any fine or action for neglect to build or keep open such fish-ways.

SEC. 3. That section 22 of said chapter 251 be amended by striking out the figures 1867, and inserting in their stead the figures 1875.

SEC. 4. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed; and this act shall take effect on its passage.

Approved July 2, 1875.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1875.

Andrew Johnson.

The death of Ex-President Johnson calls again to mind the fact that surely and steadily the men who took part in active public service which the Rebellion made prominent, are passing from the stage to be succeeded by others of different temperaments, and abilities more or less varied. Andrew Johnson was one of the most remarkable men of his time. Possessed of a sturdy and vigorous courage united with an overweening ambition, an egotism and a disposition bordering on the passionate, it is not to be wondered at that his public course brought him to the front. His rugged force of character had its uses in the decade which marked the era of rebellion and civil strife. Some men are made by ceaseless friction with other minds. So Andrew Johnson, energetic and outspoken, early found opposing elements an aid to his ambition. By sheer force he arose above his fellows, inspiring confidence among his followers that grew to a faith in destiny. Reared rudely, self-educated and self-confident, Andrew Johnson rose rapidly, and finally by a combination of circumstances reached the Presidency at a most important epoch in his country's history. As men fail at the zenith of their fame frequently, so his capacities for mischief became evident. The weary struggle with Congress and his narrow escape by one vote from removal are matters of history so recent as to hardly require mention. Retiring from the Presidency in 1869, he bade fair to pass the remainder of his days in quietude, but by the upheaval in the politics of Tennessee he once more appeared in Congress as U. S. Senator at the extra session of the Senate last March, being the only Ex-President who ever returned to the National Legislature as a member.

His earlier years give example of encouragement to the poor boys of the land. His parents were "poor whites," of Raleigh, North Carolina. His father died in 1812, when he was but four years old. He was apprenticed as a tailor and was taught to read by fellow workmen. In 1826, he removed to Greenville, Tenn., and soon after married a talented lady, who taught him in many things. He was chosen Mayor of Greenville when he was twenty-two years old, was elected a State Senator in 1841, Representative to Congress in 1843, Governor in 1853 and again in 1855, and U. S. Senator in 1857. His noble stand for the Union cause in 1861, though beset by opponents who controlled his adopted State, was the grandest position and record of his eventful life, and resulted in his elevation to the Vice Prdsidency at the time of President Lincoln's second term in 1865. The assassin Booth's pistol made him President six weeks afterward, and North and South suffered alike by the foul murder. Few men with great capacities are free from great faults. Andrew Johnson was great in both.

News and Notes.

The public debt statement shows the decrease of the debt since 30th to be $1,294,887.

Geo. Lynch the fellow who stabbed Jerome Conlon on a boat in the river between Dover and Portsmouth two weeks since, was before the Dover Police Court Saturday afternoon charged with assault with a knife with intent to kill. The Court ordered Lynch to give bonds in $1000 for appearance at the next term of the Circuit Court, but in default thereof he goes to jail.

John Morrissey says the democratic leaders in Ohio are fools, and the Cincinnati Enquirer retorts that Morrissey is a pugilist, a gambler and a thief. Both are right and all are democrats.

The Chicago Times is ahead of George W. Childs in writing obituary verses for the chivalric and heroic little jackass that died in Cincinnati last week. These exquisite lines would bring tears to the eyes of a cast iron man:

"Lay his waxen hoofs together,
Fold his large and spreading ears;
He has gone to blend his gee-haw
With the music of the spheres."

The Cincinnati papers tenderly record the death of their famous little jackass, who, some time since, whipped the lioness of the Zoological Garden in single combat. The lioness died several weeks ago and now the jackass, her conqueror, has followed her to that bourne where all the good jackasses and bad lionesses go. The grief of the Cincinnati papers, however, will mitigate with time There are other jackasses left in that city, although most any of them could have been better spared than the one who has just departed this life.—Chicago Tribune.

Charley H. had a favorite Spangled Hamburg pullet, and he noticed the other day her comb turning black and soon she died. He was bound to know the cause; a dissection of the dead fowl showed that a bent pin had been forced through the crop into the gizzard, and had pinned the gizzard to her side, thereby stopping the functions of her internal arrangements. How is this for a hen story?—Rochester Courier.

The fate of Donaldson and Grimwood, the Chicago æronauts, is similar to that of Timothy Winchester, who ascended from Norwalk, Ohio, in the Summer of 1855, was last seen passing over Vermillion, Erie county, Ohio, in the direction of Canada, and is supposed to have been lost in Lake Erie, as no other tidings of him were ever received.

If justice is not a gambling game how can the results of the Beecher Tilton trial be explained? Plaintiff sues for $100,000, and defendant gets it. Plymouth Church looked into plaintiff's hand, saw he had nothing and raised the stakes to the highest salary pot in America.

Saratoga after the Regatta.

["John Paul" in N. Y. Tribune.]

Here is Walter Scott:

At once there rose so wild a yell,
Within that straight and narrow dell,
As all the fiends from heaven that fell,
Had peeled themselves to spell Cornell.

You'll find it in the Lady of Saratoga Lake—long measure there, but common meet her here. With provisions at their present price I can't afford much original poetry. When I do drop into it, just for old acquaintance' sake, the bell will ring long enough beforehand to let you get out of the way.

C-O-R-N-E-L-L-L-L. Given an inch at the winning-post, they wanted a long continuation of L's, and insisted on having them. A week or so has silently sculled itself down the great River of Time since the Regatta, and the wakes of the boats have faded from out the bosom of the lake, but the ripple of the race still remains upon the town, ruffling the spring waters and agitating fair bosoms into tumultuous billows of tulle; ecru is no longer an outside garment. There is never a lady, young or old, in the village, to the manor born or "only a guest," who does not wear a crew within. And the winning crew, of course.

The room formerly occupied by the captain of Columbia was assigned to me on arrival. All its decorations are white and blue, the carpet, the furniture, and the frescoes. The single exception is found in my shins, which are black and blue, with tumbling over the wardrobes, and bureaus, and base-ball clubs, and trapeze bars with which the apartment was lavishly furnished in honor of its former occupant. All the day long I sit here on the floor and think I'm a float, I'm a float—or a bobber, a bobber, which is the same thing on a fish-line. And at night I lay myself down to dream I'm a shell, I'm a shell. Waking, I regret to find I'm not, for I'd like to be made of paper and have some one to navigate me—a skillful hand could perhaps make my paper pass current.

The excitement has left its imprint on society. Young women no longer ask you for an arm; It is, "Give me your starboard oar, please." Instead of proposing a walk to and through the hotels, they say, "Let us take a pull around the hash-cribs." In the evening, not a waltz but "a double scull race" is suggested. After gliding gracefully through a figure or two of the Lancers, your partner, in a whisper, requests you to "make a spurt at the finish." When an awkward dancer trips, he or she is said to have "caught a crab." A young woman no longer apologizes for her hair being disarranged, but says that her row-locks are out of fix. The "Origin of Races" is asked for at the bookstores, and an impression prevails that the Darwinian theory solves the vexed question of the winnin' stroke. Sensible people are no longer said to be level-headed, but to "keep an even keel." A young man making inquiries about a girl whose figure pleases him does not ask what she is worth, but; What's her tonnage?

Amid this freshet of boating terms the good old Saxon and horse sense of—John Morrissey, for instance—shines out like a good word in a nautical world.

The mania has even infected hotel men. Good schooner-built Mr. Breslin got the fit on him and spent more money than I pay him in a week for regatta prizes—silver cups. A man must be in his cups to do that sort of thing. By way of encouraging this thing along, the captains of the crews held a meeting and declined the prizes with thanks. Why the captains did so, alas poor crews, oh, unless because the cups were empty, I cannot imagine. Had they been filled with Rhenish wine—ruddy Rudesheimer or of amber Yquem—depend upon't there'd have been a pull for them. But no harm's done. Sooner than see so many dollars' worth of silver go a-begging, I'll take it myself. Put the cup to thy nabob's lips, O, beauteous Breslin, cup me, thou cupper of the period, and all your trouble's ended. Fear no refusal; I will give bonds to take all in that line that is offered to me.

The idea of a landlord's passing round silver cups as big as spittoons, when he hasn't a bowl in his house! Wishing bread and milk for supper last night, I called for a bowl of it. The waiter brought me a spoon and saucer, and said there was not a bowl in the house. To my hint that he must be mistaken, he responded by bringing up a darky several shades darker than himself, who declared that the bowls were all done broken last year. The head-waiter on being summoned bowed gravely twice, waved his handkerchief, delicately perfumed with anchovy sauce, three times, and, as by magic, three slaves appeared from out a nebulous cloud of Nubians at the lower end of the dining-room, each bearing a bowl triumphantly aloft on a silver salver.

This morning, however, they again informed me that the bowls were all out—bowled out, I suppose. Now, why not sell that silver and buy a few china bowls? By the way, there can never be a better place than this to remark, that Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican is registered at the United States.

A sort of sea-change has come over the Grand Union dining-room. Here, too, you see the footprint of the regatta—if a waterbull may be allowed, and why not when sea-cows cut a conspicuous figure in natural history. Your proper course down the dining-room is flagged by relays of waiters, holding white napkins aloft. The starter at the door gives an initial flirt of his towel, which fans you down to where you see still another white flag gleaming in a brunette's raised right hand; for that you steer. Yaw to right or left and you're gone—you "foul" a lot of flounces and ribbons, or, worse still, sheer square into one of the peripatetic crockery crates that ply in wild majesty to and from the kitchen, bearing what viands and vegetables they don't drop down the bosoms and backs of the guests they encounter, to patient watchers and waiters already seated. The flag-station reached and you are signaled to move on to another; and so it goes till you at last get to the steak, winning the plate merely by a head—a broken head at that, possibly.

Ah, much do we miss Thompson, so long headwaiter, or perhaps I should say to preserve the unities, stroke oar of the dining-room. He, poor fellow, has caught a crab—a bad one—and they fear its name is consumption. Never can his place at the prow be filled, I fear. A great many of the guests have lost their interest in eating, now that he is not here to boss the job. His was the courtly bow, his the grand manner. It was something to be passed down the long line of heroes descended from heroes, by the wave of his white napkin. Not a waiter in the dining-room but knew what that wild wave was saying, sister. Like Julien's baton, the wonderful flourish of which defied imitation, no successor can take up the napkin when the master lays it down. Emulation is vain; hang up the damask alongside the fiddle and the hoe, good people. Far be it from me to discourage struggling genius, but better let Thompson's successor flourish shillalah, for nothing less will keep in hand those subordinates who of old were held by but a glittering eye and a napkin.

Think not that a grateful feeling for favors moves me to this tribute. On the contrary Thompson was always severe to independent journalists, and he snubbed me often. One season he refused me a round table; the next he took Amos from me; still another season he put me at a table that had only three legs to its back. But justice shall be done though the ceiling of the dining-room falls. He was a wonderful headwaiter.

To return to the matter of bowls. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, they dined 5,900 persons at the Grand Union—that is an average of nearly 2,000 a day. Now it would be manifestly improper to expect a hotel-keeper to furnish so many bowls as that. Suppose all should take a fancy to call for bread and milk at the same time—2,000 of them—why, we'd have to run out and borrow bowls, for I don't believe there are so many to be had for the buying in the world.

As to other changes in this dining-room: William, my old friend and waiter, has gone back on me, has learned to love another. But he consented to be "interviewed" on the piazza this morning. A bald spot shows on the top of his head, and he's going to marry. In the meanwhile he is waiting on a bride and groom, who have a private table set for them, and so he may learn how to behave himself when he too joins the noble army of martyrs. Comfortably off he was two Summers ago; now he rolls in wealth, which shows how sublime a thing it is to wait upon me several seasons in succession

Amos is still on hand, and seems to feel as friendly toward me as ever. For when he waited on me by accident recently, and I informed him at the close of the repast that misfortunes had come upon me financially, and I could not give him a douceur, as of old, he looked really sorry. So, I think, he sympathized with me.

This season I've not been very lucky at table. I never get the same waiter twice. Directly I fix one fellow with a dollar, he is transferred elsewhere—or I am—and there's a new man behind my chair. There are more men in that dining-room, I find, than I've got dollars. Here you have the principle of the dear gazelle again—a principle which runs all through life—also, you have the tree and flower idea. "I never nursed," etc. Vide Moore, if you want any more of it.

I sincerely hope that this letter will not get into an envelope directed to Mrs. Paul, and that the one intended for her will not get into the Tribune. Things are complicated enough as they stand. That telegraphed-for trunk has arrived. It contains a hundred writing cards, a dozen dollars, a dozen pairs of cuffs, a dozen pocket-handkerchiefs, and not a single shirt. I'm no more fit to go into general company now than I was before. I don't know what you call this—I call it, REVENGE.

Bacon and Beecher.

[Springfield Republican.]

Dr. Leonard Bacon, the original giant under the Plymouth Church, has whopped over again on his uneasy couch, and the volcano promises soon to be in full eruption. It is certainly very distressing that, just as Mr. Beecher is getting away to the White Mountains and the public are beginning to think of other things, Dr. Bacon's eye should light upon a single one out of hundreds of anonymous communications to the metropolitan dailies and make it the excuse for a new declaration of war. A year ago it was Mr. Tilton against whom Dr. Bacon was fired; to-day it is Mr. Bowen, and we fear that the almanacs may as well put down "a Beecher demonstration from Dr. Bacon" as one of the things to "look out" for every midsummer.

Dr. Bacon, however, is not stupid, or even oppressively ministerial. As the New York Court of Appeals is chiefly distinguished for injustice, so this venerable orthodox divine on occasion pettifogs like a Shearman, latitudinizes like Beecher himself, in one paragraph gives way to the most generous gush over "humanity," and in the next heaves the first stone at a sister Church and knifes his fellow-sectarian with delight. Let us go over his "points," for we promise the reader they are a rare display of sequences: First—He didn't preach "for Mr. Beecher," but for Mr. Halliday. Second—Considers it his duty to preach everywhere. Did Paul object to preaching to stoics? Besides, he accepted the invitation "as a testimony" that Plymouth Church would not be naughty any more and would never again drop members without censure for maligning their pastor. Third—He would preach for Mr. Beecher, if invited. Why should he refuse to preach for anybody—Dr. Chapin, or Bellows, or Mr. Frothingham, or even Archbishop (mere mistake of course, Cardinal, he meant) McCloskey, or even the Hebrew temple? Fourth—They didn't teach Beecher theology at New York, but "the theology of Jesus Christ and his apostles." Certainly they don't teach that "all men will be saved, especially the wicked," nor does he admit that Beecher so teaches. Fifth—He does not invite laymen to give money, etc. Sixth—Has no call to denounce Mr. Beecher's theology, the question being as to his personal morality. Seventh—Not to pettifog any further, if they want to know what he thinks about Mr. Beecher's innocence or guilt, he can tell them fair and square, he can. He thinks that the plaintiff didn't prove his case to the satisfaction of the jury!

Then the velvety fur retreats, the impatient claw protrudes and does the work to which all this is prefatory. The "other charges" haven't been investigated, and if Mr. Bowen maintains these charges, even by "expressive silence," then let him prove them or anathema on him. And if Plymouth Church does not follow up Bowen and these "other charges," anathema on her. Dr. Bacon finally again resorts to pretense—the pretense that the existence of these other charges, referring to those relating to Miss Proctor and nameless women, is the reason why so many people feel that Mr. Beecher has "not been completely vindicated." This is a very poor pretense on which to pursue the scandal further and make it a matter of broil in the Church and sect. Hard as it is in Dr. Bacon to deny the public the luxury of an "expressive silence," it is still more relentless for him to withold the same boon from those whom he accuses. He arraigns them, he forces them into the dock, and he will have a plea of guilty or not guilty out of them, or there is no virtue in ecclesiastical discipline. What a magnificent Torquemada he would have made?

—Yesterday morning a long-haired, thickly-bearded stranger entered a Griswold street barber shop, and in response to the inquiry if he would like to be shaved he replied:

"Yes, sir, you miserable, contemptible, skulking highway pirate, I would."

He removed his hat, drew a big navy revolver, cocked it, and sitting down in a chair with the revolver in his hand he continued:

"Now, go ahead! If you ask me to have my hair cut, or say that I have dandruff, or cut my chin, or ask me to buy your hair restorer, I'll shoot you dead in your tracks!"

That barber didn't say one word while shaving that man.—Detroit Free Press.

—The day that Ingleside was burned, a nest with two young birds was found in the top of a small spruce tree that stood near the awning at the top of the steps in front of the house. The morning after the fire, Mr. Corey, who has had the care of the grounds about Ingleside went to look after the birds and found them uninjured. A charred piece of shingle had fallen from the blazing roof and rested on some twigs above the nest, and this helped to shelter the little ones from the heat, which was sufficiently intense to set fire to the row of posts beside the tree. While Mr. Corey was examining the birds their mother came and lured them down into the fields below. "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?" —Springfield Republican.

—Ex-Treasurer Spinner was always gracious in complying with requests for his autograph. An anecdote is told of him in connection with an application: On one occasion by mistake he sent it with this note to an applicant for office: "Sir—it gives me great pleasure to comply with your request. Truly yours, F. E. Spinner." The young man was surprised and flattered. He bought a new suit of clothes and duly and blandly presented himself at the Treasury Department. Spinner covered the young man all over with a shower of profane classics; but there was the letter, the General was a man of his word, and of course the young fellow got his position.

—Little Alice was crying bitterly, and on being questioned confessed to having received a slap from one of her playfellows. "You should have returned it," unwisely said the questioner. "Oh, I returned it before," said the little girl.

—A gentleman in Kingston, N. Y., has cured his hen of a mania for hatching. Stones, clubs, basins of water were in vain; but when fire-crackers exploded under her she concluded to come off.

—"John McMillan and intended wife" registered at the Woodman House, Ogdensburg. The first business after registering was to send for a minister.

—Brigham Young receives a blowing up from the Salt Lake Tribune, for sitting through the whole performance at the opera-house with his hat on.

—And now the reaper reapeth, the mower moweth and the little bumble-bee getteth up the busy Granger's trousers-leg and bumbleth.

—Mrs. Butcher, of Reading, Pa., is the mother of twenty-three children.

Jottings.

Annual meeting of the P. & D. R. R. at the Elm street ward room in this city at nine o'clock, A. M., Wednesday, Aug. 11th.

The excursion party from this city to Old Orchard Beach will leave the depot on Thursday morning at half past eight A. M., and will start from the Beach on the return trip at half past six P.M. Fare, including dinner at the Pavilion Hotel, $2.45. Exclusive of dinner, $1.70.

Mr. Joseph N. Odiorne has been appointed Clerk of Steamer Appledore—and a more courteous, efficient and faithful young man cannot be found in this city.

Our public thoroughfares were alive with drunken rowdies on Sunday evening, and by their indecent and blasphemous utterances proclaimed the existence of plenty of open liquor bars with unrestrained privileges. One or two instances of insults offered to ladies are reported, and it is a matter of surprise that there were none of open violence.

Dog days, so called from the fact that the dog star Sirius is in the ascendancy, have set in, and we may now expect a spell of weather.

Upwards of four hundred brown bread loaves and one hundred and fifty pots of beans were taken from the ovens of Sowersby's bakery after the fire of Sunday morning, in good condition, the bread being baked much better than usual. It is stated that the ovens are uninjured and that a new building will be erected on the site of the old one as soon as practicable. Mr. Sowersby was uninsured and lost all of his baking tools, but saved his stock of flour, consisting of one hundred or more barrels.

Schooner Alferetta, belonging to Mr. John W. Caswell, went ashore on Thursday night on the rocks off Mehegan, Me., and was wrecked.

The first annual picnic of the Young Men's Bible Class Association connected with the Court Street Church will be held at Newington, on Thursday, August 5th. Teams start from the church at 8 o'clock. Tickets, 45 cents for adults and 40 for children, for sale at Buzzell's and China Tea Store, and by members of the association.

Assistant-Constructor Philip Hichborn has been ordered to the Asiatic squadron.

St. John's Sunday School and parish will hold a picnic at Pinkham's grove, Dover Point, to-morrow. Price of tickets 30 cts each for the round trip. Train leaves Portsmouth at 10,20 A. M., returning at 6.30 P. M. For sale by Wm. B. Lowd, Joseph S. Pseiffer and at the depot.

The Indian massacre at Portsmouth Plains and Sagamore Creek was on the 26th of June, 1696, when fourteen were killed and six wounded, and five dwellings and nine barns were burned.

The sweepstakes race between yachts America and Resolute on Monday from Appledore around Boone island and back was won by the America, the distance being about thirty-eight miles. The wind was North-east-by-east, a four knot breeze, not enough to show the America's sailing qualities. The judges were Hon. Chas. Levi Woodbury and Messrs. Johnson Wyman and Julius Palmer, Jr., being stationed on Rev. Geo. H. Hepworth's yacht Nettie. The America beat her opponent handsomely when beating down, but the Resolute gained coming home. The Resolute started at 11h., 39m., 33sec.—America 11h., 40m., 41sec. The time of their return is not stated in the report which we have at hand just at midnight, but the America won the race and cup (punch-bowl) by 4 minutes 42 seconds. Presentations to, and open house at Oceanic Monday evening, by the invincible America and invincible Butler. Commodore Hatch of the Resolute challenges the America for thirty-six daily races in New York waters, for $1000 each race

—The new Euclid avenue in Cleveland, Ohio, is laid out with geometrical accuracy.

—Recently when a woman stepped aboard a Michigan avenue car, the driver started up and caused her to sit down on the floor instead of the seat. "I'm very sorry, madam," he said, as he checked up. "Yes, it's an occasion when sympathy makes one feel good," she replied as she got up, "but I believe I'll break this parasol over your head for luck!" And she walloped him until there wasn't anything left to strike with.—Detroit Free Press.

The Key-Note of Health.

The health and vigor of the several organs of the body depend upon the simple condition that the functions which pertain to each shall be regularly and actively performed. If vitality is sluggish or deficient, this condition is not properly fulfilled, and as a consequence disease is soon inaugurated. Prevent it by a timely use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which rouse the vital energies when dormant and endow the feeble frame with needful stamina. At the same time that the Bitters infuse new strength into the system, they correct those functional irregularities and local weaknesses which sap the vital power. Dyspepsia, bladder and kidney complaints, gout, rheumatism, fever and ague, biliousness, constipation and nervous diseases are invariably overcome by the operation of this standard alterative tonic.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the said ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Scales, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever compounded. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked, by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of arient spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment for different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

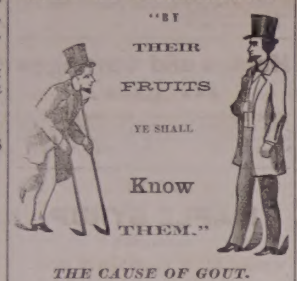
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL Know THEM."



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fornercoy, Vanquillin and Barruell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. A cure cannot take place alone by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, combined with soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which could alone answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

s no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the flung- trying climate of New England!

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pumocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Base Ball Explained.

People who are puzzled at the technical phrases used in base ball reports are commended to the perusal of the following definitions:

Field—The cow pasture where the leather-hunting is performed.

Base—Salt bags scattered around in the grass for the players to jump on.

Nine—The number of roosters in knee-breeches that constitute a base ball deck.

Umpire—The chief baller—he balls out "strike." His other duty is to sit on the top of the bat and smell the ball as it goes by.

Judgment—The umpire's opinion after taking such a smell.

One ball—What the umpire says when the smell proves unsatisfactory.

Strike—A miscue by the batter.

Put out—The fellow who tries to get in without paying fifty cents.

Dead ball—One which comes to life again after being buried—in the hands of the pitcher.

Foul—A ball which bounds just the way one is positive it will not.

Fair foul—A little one for a cent.

Balk—"A breach of promise" indulged in by the pitcher.

Stealing a base—Stuffing a bag in the ear and walking off to the next when the catcher isn't looking.

Beauty—A ball so hot that the second baseman lies on his stomach to avoid it.

Hot ball—One that singes the short-stop's head as it goes by.

Fly—A ball which scorns the earth, and like the gentle horse-fly buzzeth around in the elevated atmosphere.

Wild throw—Slinging at the third baseman, and killing a small boy in the right field.

Shinplaster Currency.

[Boston Herald.]

Take the case of Florida. Florida is under the legal tender law, the same as Massachusetts. She can have all the greenbacks she can attract. She is also under the free banking law. Nothing legal exists to prevent her buying national bonds, depositing them in the national treasury, getting 5 per cent. interest on them in gold, and issuing bank notes to nine-tenths of the amount of the bonds, which could be lent out at 10 or 12 per cent. more. Why don't Florida get all the currency she wants on such easy terms? What more encouragement does capital ask? But Florida is suffering for more money, and, instead of supplying herself in this easy and natural way, the State issues a scrip which is worth about one-third as much as the depreciated greenback. But the suffering Floridan can't get that wretched shinplaster unless he has something to give for it; and when he gets it how much better off is he than he would be with greenbacks of one-third the nominal amount, or gold less than one-third? It is easy enough to see the difference in usefulness between the national greenback and the Florida shinplaster. Why should it not be as easy to see the difference between the national greenback and the universal medium of exchange which is current all over the world? It is not more currency that Florida needs, but more capital, and if the State should be covered three feet deep with shinplasters it would not help her any.

—Detroit Free Press: She said she'd take a dozen of eggs, but while the grocer was counting them out she asked the price. He told her, and she shrieked: "Seventeen cents?" "Yes, ma'am." "Why, that's outrageous!" "Well, it's hard times, and everything is up." She sat down on a sugar barrel, sighed several times, and asked if eggs were likely to be lower or higher. "I don't claim to be a prophet," he replied, as he twisted a sheet of paper in the shape of a tunnel, "but I dare say that they'll be down to 16 1-2 cents in less than a week, and perhaps go lower. Trade, which is naturally depressed during July and August, is looking up a little. Our exports of gold are now equalled by our imports. The calling in of bonds puts more ready money afloat, and capitalists are much more hopeful this week than last. The crops are about ready to move, navigation prospects are brighter, and public confidence in financial measures is rapidly returning. One thing moves around another, you see, and though, as I said before, I am not a financier and my predictions are not entitled to any great weight, it seems clear to me that eggs have got to come down. A great current of eggs is setting toward this point from a dozen different directions, and even if the calling in of bonds and the sale of surplus gold don't produce lower prices, I cannot see why figures should go up." She reached into the pickle barrel, nipped a cucumber, and went away wondering why her husband never knew anything.

—The raising of Beecher's salary to $100,000 a year gives him the largest compensation in the Union. But one salary in the world transcends it—that of the Viceroy of India, which is £50,000 or $250,000 a year, though it is possible the salary of Lord Dufferin, as governor general of Canada, is £30,000 or $250,000 a year. The ambassadors of Great Britain at Paris and Vienna receive but $50,000 a year. We are told that H. B. Claflin pays his "credit man," formerly president of the Bank of North America, Mr. Donaldson, $100,000 a year, on account of his unprecedented knowledge of credits. The firm do a busi-of $70,000,000 a year, and this business is an entirely credit one; therefore a skilful knowledge of the buyers, their standing and personal habits, is of more value than ten per cent. upon this amount; in other words, it is profitable to Claflin to pay less than two per cent. upon his sales to Mr. Donaldson. There are many salesmen in the leading houses in New York with salaries reaching as high as $30,000, while the leading journalist must content himself with $10,000.

The Western Floods.

Heavy rains in the West have been followed by destructive floods. Indianola, Ind., is all afloat. The Vincennes Railroad has suffered severely, as also other roads. The Mississippi, Missouri and Illinois rivers are rising rapidly and millions of dollars' worth of property is destroyed. The Scioto burst its banks, left its bed and broke over a tract of ground south of Columbus, burying extensive cornfields ten feet under water. The water then rushed over a large brickyard, and rose to the first story of ten houses occupied by workmen at the yard, necessitating the removal of the women and children. The men waded out to high ground with difficulty, the whole party, to the number of seventy-five, being saved without serious accident. The Hocking valley is overflowed and the crops there are a total loss. All the streams in West Virginia are rising rapidly. A boom in the Elk river carried away $25,000 worth of logs. The flood in the Wabash valley is very devastating. Small houses, live stock, millions of bushels of wheat in stocks and shocks, and large quantities of hay have floated away. Cotton in Tennessee is suffering from incessant showers and running to weeds.

Andrew Johnson's Funeral.

Ex-President Johnson was buried at Greenville, Tenn., on Tuesday, with Masonic services. Among his papers was found the following:

GREENVILLE, June 29, 1873.—"All seems gloom and despair. I have performed my duty to my God, my country and my family. I have nothing to fear approaching death. To me it is the mere shadow of God's protecting wing. Beneath it I almost feel sacred. Here I know, can no evil come. Here I will rest in quiet and peace, beyond the reach of calumny's poisoned shaft; the influence of envy and jealous enemies; where treason and traitors, or State backsliders and hypocrites in Church can have no place; where the great fact will be realized that God is truth and gratitude the highest attribute of men. Sic itur ad astra. Such is the way to the stars or immortality."

The following is written on the margin of the page containing the above: "Written before leaving on Sunday evening while the cholera was raging in its worst form." It will be remembered that the ex-President left Greenville after being attacked by cholera when, as he said, all seemed gloom and despair.

The following order of President Grant was carried out at Washington:

It becomes the painful duty of the President to announce to the people of the United States the death of Andrew Johnson, the last survivor of his honored predecessors, which occurred in Carter county, East Tennessee, at an early hour this morning. The solemnity of the occasion which called him to the Presidency, with the varied nature and length of his public services, will cause him to be long remembered and occasion mourning for the death of a distinguished public servant. As a mark of respect for the memory of the deceased it is ordered that the Executive Mansion and the several Departments of the Government at Washington be draped in mourning until the close of the day designated for his funeral, and that all public business be suspended on that day. It is further ordered that the War and Navy Departments cause suitable honors to be paid, on the occasion, to the memory of the illustrious dead. U. S. GRANT.

News and Notes.

The schooner Lucifer, belonging to J. P. Hall, of San Francisco, was seized in Magdalena Bay, July 7th, by Mexican rebels, who were endeavoring to escape the Federal troops. They put the crew in irons and set sail. Nothing has been heard of them since. Some United States troops were on a vessel in the bay at the time. The commander declined to interfere, the schooner being under the Mexican flag.

By the recent census of New York city, the population is 1,064,272, an increase in five years of 91,166.

The trunk of the body of Mr. Frederick P. Towne of Petersham, Worchester county, Mass., has been found in a field adjoining his farm. He suddenly disappeared July 4th, and his brother in-law, S. J. Frost, with whom he had a fierce quarrel that morning, reported that he had gone to California. His legs and arms had been cut off and are not to be found. Frost is under arrest.

Kentucky has gone democratic by a large majority.

The next Strafford county fair is to be held in Dover on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Sept. 14, 15, 16 and 17.

The revolver trade at Nashua is reported as being brisk. Tramps did it.

Henry Ward Beecher will deliver the annual address at the New England and New Hampshire Agricultural Fair to be held at Manchester in September.

On Monday, the workhouse at the county farm in Westmoreland will be ready for tramps, and a squad from Keene will be sent over at once.

The shooting of the boys who were picking berries, a short way from Nashua, on Thursday, still remains a mystery.

Great Falls has commenced to arrest tramps, and to send them to the County Farm.

There have been twenty-five deaths from yellow fever out of seventy-two cases at Barrancas. There are two new cases. The Pensacola reservation is perfectly healthy so far.

James McCaffrey has an affidavit in the Chicago Times, stating that he picked up a bottle on the Lake shore, Sunday evening, in which was an almost illegible note signed "N. S. G," and dated July 16, 2 A. M., saying: "We cannot stay up more than an hour longer, as the gas is rapidly escaping." The date is that of the night in which Donaldson and Grimwood started in Barnum's balloon.

Theodore Tilton's attorneys have served a notice on Beecher's lawyers to have their client prepared for a new trial on the first Monday in September.

William H. Randall of Seabrook was arrested on Saturday for rape on a Miss Fowler.

Commodore Daniel V. Ammen, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy Department, is Acting Secretary of the Navy during the absence of Secretary Robeson.

A Terrible Tornado.

[Indianapolis Sentinel, July 31.]

As particulars are obtained of the terrible storm of Tuesday, which swooped down upon the Wabash Valley, come in it is clear that the visitor to Fountain county was a distinct case of the tropical cyclone, or tornado, which destroys everything in its path. In this short instance it is evident that the whirling cone repeated the operation of descending and rising so as to strike certain points and to pass over others intervening. The storm of Tuesday was fearfully heavy over a considerable scope of country extending from Danville, Illinois, twelve miles west of the Wabash river, to Crawfordsville, in Montgomery county of this State. At Danville the fall of water was like a solid cataract, which entirely flooded the city in a manner similar to that described at Crawfordsville below. At Perrysville, a small town on the Wabash, in Vermillion county, nearly half way between Danville and Harveysburg, the tempest was terrific, foreshadowing its work a little further on. The Attica Ledger gives the following account: Houses were swept from their foundations and literally torn into shreds, scattering the pieces for miles along the path of the storm. Huge trees were twisted off or torn up by the roots and carried to great distances. Fences and crops were swept to utter oblivion. Wheat shocks were blown into the air, and the grain as completely threshed out as if run through a machine. The scene is one of utter desolation, and the loss will be very great. No less than four persons were killed. The following is a partial list of the killed and injured: Jefferson Sowers, badly injured—not expected to live; wife and daughter-in-law killed; Wm. Newman, injured: Aaron Johnson's daughter, killed; Jacob Semple's sister killed and mother injured. Charles Marshall's new house, built last year, was torn to pieces and laid flat with the earth. His wife and three children took refuge in the cellar, while he and the remaining child staid in the house. All miraculously escaped without bodily harm. Our informant says the path of the storm was about 160 yards wide, and seemed to extend for miles.

The Crawfordsville Journal has detailed statements: The storm visited some sections with great destruction, passing over the northern part of Vermillion county and the southern part of Fountain in the shape of a furious tornado. It had travelled in about an easterly direction, and seemed to strike the ground with such force that it rebounded like a rubber ball, skipping a farm or two and then striking again with great violence. It cut an average swarth of about a quarter of a mile in width which, however, narrowed down at the most destructive point, on Marshall's farm, to about forty rods.

A large boulder, the lowest estimate of its weight being 1500 pounds, was moved several feet. One house was blown to pieces and the floor found over a mile away. A very valuable orchard, one of two in that section of the country, was completely twisted to pieces. A large amount of clothing and bedding was blown into the woods and torn into shreds. One man was lucky enough in his misfortunes to find an old shoe out by his stable in which he had deposited $99. He also had some silver pieces which were blown around, but he succeeded in finding them all but one piece. Several horses were badly injured.

The Crawfordsville Review gives additional particulars: In this vicinity we hear that there were nineteen persons wounded, and several houses were blown down by the storm. One man had just finished setting up a threshing machine, and before anything could be done it was struck by the harricane, and not a vestige of the machine was left to mark the place it had stood in. It is rumored that one man was blown entirely away, and has not since been heard from. As the storm came up David Pearson's wife and children sought safety under the bed. Just as they had all got under the bed the chimney was blown into a room and would inevitably have killed them all had it not been for their timely escape. One man had just unhitched his horse from the buggy and the buggy was taken up, capsized and carried away as if it had been a mere straw in the wind.

Of the families in the path of the destroyer, S. F. Sower's, in Fountain county, is the most unfortunate. They had just come from the burial of a child that day, and of that household of five persons but one now survives, a little boy with both his arms broken. Mrs. Sowers, a niece who was temporarily stopping with the family, and another person were killed instantly. Mr. Sowers, Sr., died Wednesday night, and his married son was reported dead Thursday morning. The house is a mass of ruins, which is the case of about everything on the place. As far as known, the only case attended with loss of life was that of Mr. Semple. The tornado's fury was at its maximum on the farm of Mr. Charles Marshall who heard it coming, and immediate ly proceeded to put his family in the cellar. All were in but himself and little boy, when the wind blew the door shut, and he was unable to open it. They then started for the smoking house, hoping to get in the cellar, but the building was blown over on them and lodged on a meat barrel, which saved them from being crushed. They were all unhurt. Everything in the shape of grain, timber, etc., is literally swept from this farm. Mr. Marshall said that he had 2500 bushels of wheat, of which he does not think there are now twenty-five left. The wind carried the sheaves up in the air until it was almost black with them, whirling them around in large circles as if they were issuing from a large funnel. The woods are filled and sown with the wheat. All his fine timber is destroyed. This in itself is a great loss, as it was said to have been of a very superior and handsome growth. In one place a great amount of earth was dug up and some beets laid out on the ground.

A Fish Business Fraud.

[St. John, N.B., Globe.]

The largest fishing establishment in St. John is that of Mr. Isaac Noble, near the Old Fort, Carleton. Mr. Noble is the largest dealer and exporter, and his premises are very extensive. He has three large sheds, in which can be piled thousands of barrels of fish. At the present time he has 2000 barrels of pickled alewives on hand, a qunatity much smaller than was in store last year, because there is an increased demand this Summer. These pickled alewives sell at $4 gold per barrel, a higher price than has been commanded for four or five years, and consequently the fishermen are disposing of their stocks. Besides these sheds there are two smaller,—one containing ice, and the other an article not generally to be seen in July—a pile of snow. Snow is considered better than ice for packing salmon, and a supply of it is therefore kept on hand.

A number of gentlemen assembled at Mr. Noble's establishment were shown a piece of fraud recently perpetrated that will certainly injure the standing of the fish business and the trade of the port. Mr. Noble lately shipped a cargo of pickled alewives to Boston in schooner. "Prussian General." When the vessel commenced to discharge her cargo at Boston it was found that out of twelve barrels examined three contained quantities of rocks, old bags, etc., etc. Mr. Isaac Rich, of Boston, to whom the cargo was sent, despatched these barrels of "fish" home again. The first one when turned out was found to contain a few fish, a good deal of slate stone, and some salt bags; the second barrel contained more fish, a few stones, some old bags and nets, and considerable salt. The remaining barrel held more salt than fish, and contained as well some old bags. The fraud perpetrated was certainly of the clearest kind, and the object of drawing public attention to it was that a remedy might be provided in the way of better inspection. At the present time it appears every fisherman can be his own inspector. In former years the Common Council appointed these inspectors, but by the passage of the "General Inspection Act" the power was vested in the Dominion Government. The fishermen never took advantage of that act, and consequently there have been no legally appointed inspectors. It was quite plain to see how the fraud mentioned was committed, For instance: Mr, Noble buys fish from parties all about. He will send his man, to the place where barrels of fish are. He will "inspect" them, and will brand the barrel heads. He will go away, and some time afterward the fish will be brought to the place ordered. In the meantime, however, if the seller of the fish be dishonest, as was the case when Mr. Noble lately bought, he can readily commit fraud. He can empty the barrel of the fish and replace the alewives with stones, etc., and then cover it with the branded head. When these barrels are mixed with those of a dozen other fishermen, if the fraud is then discovered, it is impossible to ascertain who is the guilty party, as he has no distinguishing mark on the barrel. What is necessary therefore to prevent the fraud of that description is a proper inspection. The fishermen favor a personal inspection,—that each shall brand his own barrel and thus be responsible. Had such been the rule now there would be no difficulty in telling who was the offender in the present case.

Blighted Genius.

[Burlington Hawkeye.]

He was a quiet, indifferent, even a bashful young man, and although yesterday afternoon was hot and we were busy as a book-agent trying to get into heaven, his respectful, apologetic manner disarmed our wrath and drove the storm-cloud that was gathering on our alabaster brow. We paused right in the midst of a deathless sentiment, and cooled the glow of genius that was upon us (we were writing a puff of Mrs. Soothlow's Windling Syrup,) and asked the young man in and begged him to sit down. He obeyed, and planted the end of his backbone on the extreme edge of a chair that we felt nervous lest the scanty grip he had on his seat should lose its hold and dash him prostrate on the matting. We saw by the way he came into the room that he had never entered an editorial sanctum before, because he had knocked at the door, and took off his hat when he came in, and said, "Good afternoon, sir," instead of kicking the door open, spitting on the stove, and yelling, "Hello, stealin' editorials, hay?" at the top of his lungs. We mentally blessed the young man for his innocence and even relaxed from our professional dignity sufficiently to assure him that it was extremely warm, an act of gracious condescension on our part which overwhelmed the young man with grateful confusion, and he blushed and stammered out that it was, indeed, "very chilly, ur-ah-caw-yes, yes, quite so, thank you." And we frowned him into silence, or he would be plodding through the mazes of that snarl yet.

Then we glanced ominously at a roll of manuscript under his arm, and in those bland, patronizing tones we were prone to assume with aspiring young authors prior to tearing out their lungs with a nail grab, and rending their quivering bodies limb from limb, we asked, inquiringly, what we could do for him, and stealthily reached for the nail grab.

He said, while his tender face was suffused with blushes, that he had nothing that we could publish—we pushed the nail grab back to its place, but he had come to ask our kind advice. He was a musician, a vocalist, and in a humble way a composer. He had written a ballad, only a simple little thing, but before sending it to a music-house for publication he thought he would let us hear it, as we were so accustomed to dramatic and musical criticism, and then we would frankly tell him our opinion of his abilities, and what we thought of his prospects for the lyric stage.

We were charmed; the idea of having a local musical protege to bolster up and puff and write and lie about made us break out with smiles, like a fat baby with prickly heat. We promised to deal candidly with him, and asked him if he had his music with him.

Yes, he had; he thought that perhaps—if it wasn't inconvenient—that is, if—if—

Oh, yes, we said, we would be delighted. We would lock the door so that no one could disturb us, and he could sing a few bars, or a stanza or two, just to give us an idea of his skill and style in composition and execution.

Then the timid young man took his position in the further corner of the room and began to unroll his manuscript.

"You will understand," he said, apologetically, "that although the music is quite complete and arranged, yet the words need a little final polishing and revision." "You see," he explained, "I write poetry a little, and have written the words as well as the music to this, my maiden ballad. I'm aware that it is far from perfect, and in your criticism please remember that it is my first effort."

We smiled encouragingly, and he put his left hand in the breast of his vest, held his music at arm's length in his right hand, laid his head a little to one side and began in a very altitudinous voice.

"Dar—"

"Hem," he said, in confusion, "that was a little high."

He was right. It was about 120 degrees in the shade. We are no judge of the human voice, else. He started again.

"Darl—oh, no, that isn't it either—Dar—oh, yes, now I have it."

And away he went, in a rich some kind of-a-tone.

"Darling I am growing oh-hold!

Silv—"

And then we rose up and made a sortie for that young man, en masse. We twined our brawny hands in his golden locks and dragged him down to the press-room, and had the boys run him through a double-cylinder press till they had worked off an edition of 3,000 of him, and then we dashed his gory carcass, a flattened, chaotic aggregation of rags and ruin, out on the sidewalk, where the heedless feet of busy men would trample it into the dust of the earth. Send us another original vocalist and composer.

—Pretty young lady in elaborate bathing costume, kicking around the beach, about ten feet from the water, in bare feet:

"Oh!-oho! I'm so 'fraid of the watah!"

Chorus of other girls in like toggery, twenty feet away:

"Ah! he-he-he-he—she's a coward—te-he-he-he-he!"

Pretty girl, No. 1, moving a foot nearer the wet:

"Aw, pshaw! come on now, I'll dare ye all."

The rest, advancing to where No. 1 stands:

"O-ho! who's afraid—who's afraid?"

And there the dear, brave little angels stand, until a wave breaks a little higher than usual on the beach, and a tiny bit of foam touches the end of their aristocratic toes, when they all screech out, run into the bathing house, make their toilette, and, appearing at dinner, tell the yawning young gentlemen that they've been having a swim—"Just too awful jolly and nice for anything."

And the yawning young gentlemen believe them?—Chicago Evening Journal.

Jottings.

A fair in aid of the proposed new Episcopal Chapel at Rye Beach is to be held at the Farragut House, on Friday and Saturday afternoons and Saturday evening next.

A Portsmouth correspondent of Foster's Democrat says: An attempt at blackmail was recently made on one of our citizens, by a young lady of easy morals, who sent some pretty savage letters to one of our citizens demanding spondulicks, but the man didn't scare worth a cent and all the letters found their way at once into the hands of our City Marshal, who intends using them when the case comes to a head.

The astronomer of the Providence Journal promises us glorious moonlight nights this month. It fulls on the 16th, and for five days thereafter rises on successive evenings, with only a difference of about twenty-two minutes in the time of rising.

The Hampton Beach Hotel of Leavitt Bros. was sold at auction by Col. Hackett, Monday, for $6000, under a mortgage to the defunct Exeter Savings Bank of $7500 and nearly a year's interest, by order of the assignees of the bank. The friends of the Messrs. Leavitt bought it.

Golden Wedding.

[Foster's (Dover) Democrat.]

Last Saturday was a festive day at Gonic Village in Rochester. The Golden Wedding of Hon. Nicholas V. Whitehouse and his wife was celebrated in a style, we venture to say, never equalled in this State. Invitations were sent out the week previous, and when Saturday afternoon and evening came round as many as eight hundred people collected at the spacious mansion of Mr. Whitehouse to tender their hearty congratulations and enjoy the liveliest, happiest, and in all respects the best time that ever was in the world. The most lavish preparations had been made for the reception and entertainment of invited guests and friends, and the whole affair was conducted throughout, in every minute detail, in a manner never surpassed in propriety, polite entertainment, and free and easy sociability, and good humor characteristic of the Whitehouse family. The venerable couple, now about 73 years of age, married 50 years ago last Saturday, wore apparently as young and vigorous as twenty-five years ago, and they determined that their golden wedding-day should be one of the most agreeable and happy events of their whole lives. The spacious grounds were most beautifully decorated in all sorts of attractive styles. On the lawn was improvised a dancing floor, and it was occupied by the liveliest sets that ever did honor to Terpsichore. The Rochester Band were there to give the music, which was excellent for the occasion. The most bountiful collation was served, and everybody partook to their utmost desires. As the shades of evening approached, the entire grounds and the spacious house inside and outside were brilliantly illuminated with ornamental lights. The trees and the house-tops were ablaze with Chinese lanterns, presenting one of the most beautiful sights possible to conceive. The doorways, windows and verandas were richly festooned, and, in fact, it was universally pronounced to be the most tastefully arranged and beautifully executed affair ever seen or known in this section of country. Friends were present from Dover, Rochester, Great Falls, Barrington, Farmington, Salmon Falls, Boston, and various other places, and the festivities and pleasures were kept up until midnight, when all who had been there to enjoy the delightful occasion delivered their parting blessings, invoking the constant smiles of beneficent Heaven upon Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse and their worthy family, and bade them a reluctant Adieu.

It was the best time ever recorded, and everybody who had the pleasure of being present, will remember it as long as they live in the world.

A Piano Tester.

According to the Detroit Free Press there is an old man in that city named Steinbardt who possesses a strong mania for testing pianos. Many years ago in the old country he was a manufacturer and tuner of these instruments and he grew old in the business. He is now in his dotage, and having nothing else to do, being well provided for by a daughter, he spends his time in inspecting pianos in different parts of the city. He is a fine-looking old man, and wherever he pays a visit he commands respect. He generally leaves home shortly after breakfast and walks quietly along until he arrives at some stately residence which he imagines must contain a piano. He walks up to the door, rings the bell, and when the summons is answered he bows politely and says that he would like to try the piano. His eccentric ways being kuown by the neighbors for blocks around, he is ushered into the room which contains the instrument, when, seating himself before it, he runs up and down the keys for half an hour or so, usually finishing up by playing some light, old-fashioned selection. This done he replaces the cover of the piano and bows himself out. With a remarkable ear for harmony, he can detect the slightest flaw in a note, which he marks for the tuner with a red pencil. In this he has never been known to err, and the tuners, who are usually sent for whenever the old man finds the instrument out of order, say that he is "reliable as a clock." After having traversed the length of two blocks, during which time he usually tests from six to a dozen pianos, he returns home, and after dinner starts out again for his afternoon tests, choosing a different route from that taken in the morning.

Curing Headache with a Sixpenny Nail.

[Richmond Dispatch.]

A strange and remarkable case was brought under the attention of Dr. Tate of Augusta county a few days since. He was called to see Mrs. Taylor, wife of Mr. Taylor, living about three miles from Greenville, and found that she had driven a sixpenny nail into the back of her head, which, after much difficulty, he succeeded in extracting. The nail had been driven in several days previously, and by her own hand. It was discovered by a daughter of hers while combing her hair one day, and she insisted on keeping the fact secret, but her daughter sent for Dr. Tate, as above stated. She told her daughter that she had driven the nail in several days before, with the flat side of a hatchet; that she had been suffering with violent pains in her head, but since driving in the nail she had been entirely free from them. Some years ago she had been confined in the Western Lunatic Asylum, and has for some time been partially deranged. It the nail penetrated the skull, as I understand it did, it is a very remarkable case, and one of much interest to the medical fraternity.

Wrong Kind of a Shirt.

[Vicksburg Herald.]

It was a respectable looking colored man who brought his washing home.

"Your wife is a good washerwoman isn't she?" said the young bachelor to the polite and obsequious man.

"Yaas, sir, she commonly always give satisfaction," replied the husband of the laundress.

"Well," resumed the young bachelor, in his blandest and most insinuating manner, "You can tell your wife that I esteem her very highly as one possessing many womanly and christian virtues, a domestic gem and household ornament, a social luminary and moral beacon, an exemplary Christian, a gentle, loving wife, a washerwoman among ten thousand and altogether lovely; but there is one objection."

"What's dat, sar?" inquired the smiling African, who had been showing two rows of spotless ivory and a cavernous opening of the head, while his wife was being so extravagantly eulogized.

"What's dat, boss?"

"She puts all the starch in my socks, and none in my shirts; she washes or irons all the buttons off, and forgets to replace them; exchanges my clothes for those of some other patron, and, if you'll look at this (holding up a garment,) you'll see how inconvenient it would be to wear either pantaloons, cuffs or collars with such a shirt as she sends me. It may be that she cuts off the arms and collar to make the tail longer, but I can't see what the deuce she should want to ruffle the edges for."

The darkey looked a little disgusted as he wrapped the garment up to take it home, and he only said, "Idea sending a man dat kin' o' shirt?"

—Col. Anthony, brother of Miss Susan B. Anthony and editor of the Leavenworth Times, who was shot more than two months ago, is yet in a critical condition. The heavy pistol ball passed through the collar bone and in the direction of a large artery. The blood that flowed out was pronounced arterial, and for a short time he was supposed to be dead. His heart was still for a moment, and in the brief interval a clot of blood was formed in the mouth of the severed artery, remaining there thirty-six hours. Then the clot gave way, and death was expected; but the blood surged into the surrounding parts without bursting the tissues, forming a sac, called by surgeons an aneurism. At every beat of the heart the blood rushed into the sac, threatening a rupture. The wound otherwise healed, leaving the difficult, often impossible, task of curing the aneurism. The method adopted was compression, and now the sac is very small, with a new clot forming in the mouth of the artery. He is kept on a low diet, and not allowed to move much, and six weeks more will elapse before recovery is possible.

—The other day a Detroit mother poured some ink on the pantry shelf, near the sugar box, and went up stairs, leaving her small son playing with the cat. When she came down the boy sat by the window wearing a placid, innocent look, but there were ink stains on his fingers. "There! you've been at the sugar!" she exclaimed as she seized him by the collar. "Mother, do you think I'd steal sugar?" "What makes 'em?" "Those stains, mother?" "Yes, these stains." "Well I can't tell a bold lie, mother. I think I've commenced to mortify." She wasn't quite sure, and he was allowed to go on and play circus.

—Jump-up-and-run-away-and-then-come-back-and-sit-down-again, is the Christian name of an Indian who has nervously gone off on the war-path. He ought to be shot with a hundred-pound Parrott. Walking dictionaries are altogether too numerous.

The Key-Note of Health.

The health and vigor of the several organs of the body depend upon the simple condition that the functions which pertain to each shall be regularly and actively performed. If vitality is sluggish or deficient, this condition is not properly fulfilled, and as a consequence disease is soon inaugurated. Prevent it by a timely use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which rouse the vital energies when dormant and endow the feeble frame with needful stamina. At the same time that the Bitters infuse new strength into the system, they correct those functional irregularities and local weaknesses which sap the vital power. Dyspepsia, bladder and kidney complaints, gout, rheumatism, fever and ague, biliousness, constipation and nervous diseases are invariably overcome by the operation of this standard alterative tonic.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than that three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or scores or in streets, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

—A Chicago poet upon hearing that Mlle. Nilsson was about to erect cow sheds upon her Peoria lots, burst forth into the following verse: "Christine, Christine, thy milking do the morn and eve between, and not by the dim religious light of the fitful kerosene. For the cow may plunge, and the lamp explode, and the fire fiend ride the gale, and shriek the knell of the burning town in the glow of the molten pail."

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS.

For Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful prompt action and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Fistulies, Pimples, Tetter, Fever sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and every year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try our medicines.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

"BY

THEIR

YE SHALL

Know

THEM."

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquillin and Barrneil.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by suffers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The compilation of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but cost only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No. 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

BOOK AGENTS wanted to sell "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the cheapest book ever published; 885 pages, over 250 Illustrations, $1.50. Thousands buy it at sight, who could not be induced to purchase the high-priced books treating of Domestic Medicine. Unlike other books sold through agents this work is thoroughly advertised throughout North America. This fact, together with the large size, elegant appearance, and many new features of the book, causes it to sell more rapidly than any work ever published in this country. Those of my agents who have had experience in selling books, say that in all their previous canvassing they never met with such success or made so large wages, as since commencing the sale of my work. For terms and territory, address (inclosing two postage stamps and stating experience) R. V. Pierce, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y. Note.—Mark envelope "For Publishing Dep't."

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

s no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the damp trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are hereby saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

American Hotel Guests.

[Lippincott's Magazine.]

"Ah!" said once the caissier of the Grand Hotel de Louvre, "if all my clients were Americans!" This fervent wish was uttered when Mr. Merrimac, of Marblehead, had just paid his month's bill for lodgment of self, wife and five tall girls, without grumbling at the charges for service, for bougies, carriages, fires and detriment to furniture which decorated and gave incident to that impressive document. It probably never entered into the imagination of this worthy major-domo that there are actually hotels in the world where the guests are substantially all Americans. His fancy would have reeled back from the delicious picture. But at one of our crowded Summer haunts, such as Saratoga, every bill is paid by cheerful American payers in whom is no guile, and the crowd of idealized patrons at any one house is multiplied by the dozens of hostelries composing the resort. The American hotel guest, indeed, is the sanctified and purified ideal of what a client should be in the landlord's view. He has none of the European's traveller's vices. He does not tyrannize over and nag at the waiters, nor jangle the bells as a summons to the proprietor for supposed derelictions, like an Englishman; he does not sputter and sprawl and gormandize, and afterward haggle over the bill, like the big French vicomte; he does not bargain for a cheaper room among the garrets, and befoul his nest with cigar-ends and kirsch-bottles, like the German baron; he does not wail over the quality of his wine, or destroy the riding-horse he has hired with goading, or send a dozen waiters to collect the materials for his salad, and then some night fold up his discontent and insolvently steal away, like the Italian. In contrast to these various insubordinate and undutiful types, the American tourist is a chastened saint. He expects his accommodation to be little or nothing, and the bill for that little long. He is grateful if the hotel clerk will look at him, and a civil remark from this potentate will set him up for a whole morning. He ties on his bib at dinner, and watches with delight the distant waiters talking gossip with each other, meanwhile amusing himself with rattling his knife and fork, as good as gold. When he needs a pitcher of water in his chamber, he peals for hours on his bell, then generally puts his head into the corridor, appealing to some domestic, who chills him by saying that this is not his flo', sah, and perhaps in the end saunters easily into the dining room to replenish his ewer himself from the water-cooler. These particulars, however, do not show the American hotel guest in his very loftiest aspect. His true canonization comes, like Saint Bartholomew's, when he is being flayed. At Saratoga, for instance, in those streets of crazy cardboard, lace-edged palaces, there are mornings when the whole population is caught exhibiting the highest qualities of saintship. There is an hegira; the belle of the place has left over night, or the celebrated millionaire family is summoned to a funeral, and "good form" demands that everybody who is anybody must stay not on the order of his going, but go at once. On such days the matin hotel-clerk is besieged with offers of money. He resembles then at once some popular priest in a Roman confessional and a croupier at San Carlo raking in the night's profits. The crowd ask no questions, make no calculations; they only want to pay. They entreat, they implore, they shove and push each other, they employ little ruses to get ahead of their neighbors, in order that they may strip themselves of their substance and lay the contents of their purses on the altar of the establishment. The liquidation is made without question or complaint. Extras are charged at tremendous rates: carriage, porterage, leverage, average and beverage are computed at strangely-dilated sums; the guest having arrived at twilight of Saturday and leaving early on Monday, is charged, in the clerk's magnificent arithmetic, for three days; there has been an unaccountable failure of provisions, the commonest dishes at table have been lacking or uneatable, and the guest, besides, has perhaps been of a migratory turn and supported himself on clams at little restaurants: yet he never dreams of cheapening. Everybody pays royally, cheerily, and with gratification. It is pretty to hear Mr. Dawkins pluming himself on the enormous magnitude of his bill, and boasting of the discomforts and sufferings of his sojourn. Let no asceticism boast that all the saints are all its own; here is a city of mundane martyrs, the victims of worldliness rejoicing in their torments.

Gill Ward on the Cornell Crew.

In a secluded nook at Cornwall-on the Hudson are quietly living two of those four famous brothers who since Sept. 11, 1871, have been the undisputed champion oarsmen of the world. Josh Ward seldom dips the oar nowadays, but Gill still indulges his old love for the sport by coaching the Orient Club of Hudson and by his presence at the best races. While talking about the late University race, Gill said:

"I stood over by Ramsdell, near one of your newspaper men, and watched the boats with a glass almost from the first. Before they had gone half a mile I had picked out one crew that by their long, clean stroke were doing the most powerful work there. They told me 'twas the Cornell crew. 'Then,' said I, 'New York State's ahead again. Cornell wins this race. They can't beat that.' As they came nearer I observed them closely. When Cornell's oars struck the water they began to exert a force that continued uniform to the very end, and here's one of the secrets of her strength. She didn't seem to get winded once, and I really think when those six fellows reached the finish they were in a condition to row two miles further in the same way. That couldn't be said of any other crew there. Columbia was the next best in stroke, but she had a number of faults, not following her stroke by starting in so well. Harvard, before she takes her oar out of the water, gives a sudden jerk, which sends the boat forward rapidly enough, but tires the men too much. When she spurted she went at once ahead of the others, but nobody could stand such a strain very long, and soon she would fall behind again. She will have to learn to take a longer, easier stroke.

"Cooke claims that Yale has the perfections of the English stroke, but I don't see that she has any stroke at all English, American, or a cross between. No; and they won't win as long as they stick to it: that's pretty certain. And I don't believe they would if they had the genuine English stroke. What reason is there really to claim superiority for that method? Why, here in 1871 we Wards clearly beat the four English oarsmen, although they, with their slow stroke, led for more than two miles. Now, until some crew can show better time with the English stroke than we made with the genuine American, I am going to cling to our own. And it is because Cornell gets this so perfectly that I believe in her. I really don't see any difference between their method and ours, and hardly know how I could go to work to better it. That Ostrom is the man. He knew what he was doing when he got an old crew, shaped as they were and none of them very heavy. I don't believe any crew ought to average over one hundred and sixty pounds. A heavier crew takes a heavier boat, and they don't make up for this loss by the little power they gain. Then, too, their muscles weren't developed to too great a size. I never thought much of those oarsmen like Curtis, with their great swelling biceps like the old-fashioned 'mutton-leg' sleeves that the women folks used to wear. The real power after all lies in the fore arm, and that's all that ever hardens or grows on my whole arm. Just feel of that bicep there. You see it isn't very large, and it never has been, and it's a good deal so with the Cornell boys. If Ostrom picks out another such a lot of fellows next year, and keeps on carrying out his principles, I for the life of me don't see why they shouldn't win again. It'll be a good crew that will beat them.

"About these paper boats I have a good deal of doubt myself. The question hasn't been fairly settled yet, and so far I don't see any reason to go back on the wooden boats. Cornell didn't win because she was in a paper boat, but because her crew was best. Wherever the best time has been made the world over, it has been in wooden ones, and I know a paper one don't jump over the water so lightly. Still there are some good things to be said for them. And then, again, I couldn't make the college boys agree with me about sliding seats. I've tried both ways, and I know I can row faster with the stationary ones. Still I like to see these experiments tried. And of course those bright fellows are going to find out some new things that have escaped us. But till our time has been beaten, we will stick obstinately and comfortably to our old opinions. That's fair ain't it?"

News and Notes.

The Portland authorities arrest all tramps as vagabonds.

The head, chest and arms of the murdered man at Petersham, Mass., Frank P. Towne, have been found buried in different places. His watch and pocket knife have been found on the person of his brother-in-law, L. S. Frost, who sought refuge in an attic before he was captured. Frost is forty-two years old and a shoemaker by trade. The trunk of Towne's body was found in a thick growth of oats by a neighbor who accidentally went there. Frost does not seem disturbed by the discovery and arrest. After Towne's disappearance, his murder by Frost was suspected and Frost complained to the selectmen that the report was injuring him.

There have been many disasters on the coast of New Zealand recently by gales.

Colonel H. W. Blair, republican member of Congress elect from the third district, has appointed Professor G. W. Dimond, Colonel C. H. Long, Hon. N. Weeks, Dr. Childs, C. B. Jordan, F. W. Russell and F. D. Faulkner, a committee to examine candidates for admission to West Point. The boy that passes the best examination will be appointed by Colonel Blair.

A Mrs. Muzzy of Canaan has sold four and a half tons of raspberries this season.

At Newport, while Mr. John Mitchell was getting a load of hay into his barn, he was brushed from the load by an overhanging tree, and was badly injured in the hip by the fall.

A census taken by the selectmen of Andover shows an increase of population of 153 since 1870.

A ten-year-old son of Howard M. Colby, of Andover, has been arrested on a charge of setting fire to his father's house and barn, which were burned a few days ago. There have been more than twenty fires on the premises within a few months.

H. T. Helmbold, the druggist, of New York and Philadelphia, arrived by the Parthia, after an absence of three and a half years, in Europe. He is in Boston and still believes in advertising.

Donaldson, poor fellow, was paid $20,000 per annum for the hazardous services he rendered Barnum.

The Cincinnati Gazette merely suggests, that "The removal of Secretary Delano from the Cabinet, and the appointment of a straightforward, fearless, and honest man, like Bristow or Jewell, in his place, would be worth several thousand votes to the republicans of Ohio in October."

Donaldson and Grimwood are reported safe in Michigan.

Andrew Johnson left his family in good circumstances. His fortune was moderate, but was the honest savings of a lifetime, and ample for their wants.

The Chicago Tribune, independent, sums up the case briefly and pointedly thus: "The fact is the democratic party is not fit at this time to govern anything—from the nation down to a village. It has no leaders who can control the incongruous and discordant elements of which it is composed. Its numerical strength is the result of a combination of the outs and disaffected. It is at present made up of ex-republicans, ex-liberals, ex-whigs, ex-abolitionists, and largely of ex-rebels. These have no common policy or principle. It is a combination of factions, and each faction liberally officered by demagogues."

The Merrimac Valley Visitor says "the Boynton mine has more and richer metal than at any previous date. The Chipman has followed its level 40 feet on the lode, and finds no break. Their last shipment of ore, which was by rail, smelted better than any before, reaching $200 per ton. Through the entire month they have averaged a product of not less than $200 a day; and since they begun, the product has paid all expenses—even the new building and the late complete machinery, and leaves a balance, which is an unheard of result in mining, where they are less than 100 feet down. No less favorable are the reports from the Parsonage, Shaw, Bartlett, Butler, Bay State, and others working on the Little property. We have never seen the prospect better. Nothing is now done from sensation or speculation; nobody asks to sell; and all are upon legitimate work. Stevens' smelting works are going forward, and will be at work within two weeks. The machinery has arrived."

The democratic papers that so zealously abused Gov. Ames of Mississippi, because he was the republican candidate for Governor several years ago, are now calling on him to return home, a negro Lieutenant Governor being in authority during his absence. Which goes to show that their systematic abuse of everything that is republican is only for political effect. If Ames were not a good Governor they would not wish him to return.

The recent storms in Central Illinois have done immense damage to crops, bridges and railroad. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000; that of Morgan county alone is $250,000.

Mr. Morris says undoubtedly the new trial will be short, as they propose now to try Beecher for adultery, as he had been tried on several outside collateral matters. He says there is testimony of great importance, which was not brought to the attention of the jury in the late proceedings, and which will materially alter the complexion of things, and which will prove Beecher guilty. Gen. Pryor says if Tilton had not called this case the Congregational church would have acted on it, and that three leading witnesses of the next trial will be Lees, the druggist, Henry C. Bowen and Joseph C. Richards, Mrs. Tilton's brother.

A Kentucky Tragedy.

The Cincinnati Enquirer gives the details of an extraordinary double tragedy that occurred in Cythiana, Ky., recently, in which a couple of dentists, having no patients to mangle, coolly disposed of each other with revolvers. Messrs. Donnally and Peckover, it appears, had engaged in a little dispute over an account for $10 against a customer. Donnally accused Peckover of cheating him. Peckover, in reply to this assertion, denounced him as a liar. This kind of language was not calculated to smooth the wrinkled front of the enraged Kentuckian. So Donnally brooded over the wrong, and to a friend who was trying to dissuade him from taking any further notice of the insult he said: "I've been thinking the thing over, and the more I think of it the more provoked I get." Nothing further occurred between the rival dentists until the following day, when Donnally stepped out of his office with a revolver, and finding Peckover had just emerged from his own office, which is adjoining that of Dr. Donnally, called to him. He turned around, and as he did so Donnally said, "You called me a liar, yesterday," and the words had hardly fallen from his lips when he fired his pistol, the ball passing through Peckover, near the region of the heart. He got up and walked into a jewelry establishment, and said that Donnally had shot him, and died in about twenty minutes. Donnally was speedily arrested and was taken to the Court House, where Mr. Ridgley, a brother-in-law of Peckover's, soon appeared with a revolver in hand. Before the officer could stop him, Ridgley advanced toward Donnally, saying as he fired, "Blood for blood." Donnally fell over from his chair to the floor, cried out in agony, "My God!" and expired in a few minutes. All the parties to this strange tragedy are said to have been hitherto looked up to and respected in the community.

A Joke on Levy.

[N. Y. Sun.]

Mr. Patrick Gilmore of Gilmore's Garden is one of the most inveterate practical jokers in New York, and since the arrival of Levy, the great cornet player, has exerted his utmost ingenuity to astonish that artist. When his ingenuity fails he falls back upon Mr. Sheridan Shook of the Union Square Theatre, who is always equal to any emergency. After the performance on Tuesday evening Messrs. Shook, Levy, Gilmore, and a few others visited the shooting gallery of the garden (Little Creedmoor, Mr. Gilmore calls it,) and the talk turned upon the relative merits of English and American marksmanship. Mr. Levy and Mr. Gilmore kept up the argument for some time, but finally Mr. Shook proposed a match between them; terms, six shots each, off-hand; wager, a champagne supper. Levy needed no persuasion, and Gilmore conceded him first shot. To the astonishment of all, Levy, who fires with his feet about a yard apart, and braces himself as though he expected a landslide to attack him in the rear, made a bull's-eye. After his second shot the target keeper again called, "Bull's-eye," which was also attended by the ringing of the bell, and so after the third and fourth.

"How's that for a h'amateur, my boy?" asked Levy of Gilmore, as he levelled his piece for the fifth shot. But this time his aim was not true, and the fifth and six shots were proclaimed "outers."

Then came Gilmore's turn. He is not as graceful as Levy; still he is known as a good shot. His first four shots were bull's-eyes, his fifth was an outer, but his sixth was true to the mark, rang the bell, and won the match.

Mr. Shook loaded the air guns, but purposely neglected to put in the slugs, having previously instructed the target keeper to ring the bell at his direction. Levy will not know how egregiously he was sold until he reads the Sun.

A Grand Exhibition of National Industry.

The American Institute of the City of New York will hold its 44th Exhibition this Fall, opening on the 8th day of September next, and continuing until late in November.

This Exhibition promises to be unusually interesting, inasmuch as special effort is being made to have the leading industrial operations carried on upon the premises.

The American Institute is the oldest of all societies now in existence of its kind, and is not in any sense a private corporation, its earnings being devoted by its charter to the encouragement of home industries.

For blanks and all information, address, General Superintendent, American Institute New York City.

A Dear Joke.

[Virginia Enterprise.]

Denver, Colorado, gave an instance of a joke being carried too far. It was perpetrated years ago, but only lately came to light in public dress. Some time after the Atlantic cable had been established, a telegraph operator at Denver sent the following despatch:

To the Emperor Napoleon, Garden of the Tuileries, Paris, France:

Gov. Gilpin will not accede to the cession of Italy to France. Please let Bohemia alone.

The operator supposed it would make some fun in the Omaha office, and stop there, as the station agents had a general understanding in regard to each other's jokes. By some hook or crook the despatch went on, and dived under the ocean and came up smiling in the Garden of the Tuileries, in France. The manner of its reception by Napoleon has been lost to history. All that is known is the Emperor did not pay for it, and the facetious operator was hunted up and obliged to pay a bill of $187.50 in gold for his little joke. That operator was entirely satisfied with the result of Sedan.

Trees.

Dear Chronicle: Trees are to be valued on account of their beauty and usefulness—in these respects they are identical with all other things on which human life depends—in the expressive language of Scripture, "The tree of the field is man's life."

All this is true in regard to trees in their appropriate places, but reverse the place and you reverse the picture. In this case they become destructive of life, and moreover, strange as it may seem, the very careful nurturing which in the former case is so commendable now exhibits the harshness of a despotism which declares to every man, woman and child who are such fools as to immure themselves for an hour, a day or longer in churches, stores, banks, offices, etc., you have no right to these common blessings, light and air, but these must be sacrificed in a blind worship of trees instead of the living God. P. J. A.

—The scant population of some of the mining districts of Colorado renders anything in the way of an accession to the people an event of no small importance. This fact was illustrated recently in what is called the Lake mining district, where the wife of one of the miners gave birth to the first child ever born in the town, and neither father nor mother was more proud of the event than were the honest miners, who dropped pick and drill and hastened to town as the news spread from mine to mine, for they all regarded it as a forerunner of a higher civilization, and were prouder than if they had struck a veritable bonanza. The event occurred in the morning, and when toward evening it was announced that the first born in Lake City would hold a general reception, all were eager to gaze on that little mite of humanity which is to grow with the growth of the mines, and be some day known as the ab initio settler in the metropolis of Southwestern Colorado. He was passed from hand to hand, and it was curious to note the manner in which he was manipulated. Some were there who wished to be considered in the ranks of the singly blessed who betrayed themselves by the easy grace with which they dandled him upon the palms of their outstretched hands; others there were who excited great alarm in the breasts of the doctor and nurse by the awkward way in which they grabbed the little fellow, and held him up as though he had a ramrod in his back and was a natural born drum-major. A number of complimentary remarks were made, after which the crowd adjourned to the wet grocery establishment across the way. So many healths were drank to the little stranger that a passer-by, not knowing the occasion thereof, might imagine that Lake City had lost its calendar, and was celebrating the Fourth behind time.

—The Cleveland Leader does not believe the "pin-back" dresses are desirable for ladies who expect to make a sea or lake voyage. It mentions the case of a young lady who entered a street car on the way to take an excursion steamer for a lake picnic. After her departure two boys held a conversation as follows:

"I say, Joe, they'r goin' on the 'scursion."

A nod from the fat boy.

"It's going to be rough, you bet!"

A nod and chuckle from the fat boy.

"It'll shake 'em up like sixty, won't it Joe?"

A nod, a chuckle, and a grunt from the fat boy.

"What beats me is how in thunder she'll get over it. She can't lean over the gunwale in that there single-barreled stovepipe no more'n if she was one o' them 'Gyptian mummies they tell of. It's too bad to spile that git up, but I tell you, Joseph, anyhow you can fix it, the pins has got to fly."

Then the fat boy went into a paroxysm of nods, chuckles and grunts, and his delighted companion was obliged to slap his back to keep him from choking.

—The drive of Texas cattle bound for Kansas and a market may be said to have passed from Texas, and the herds are now held on the range in Kansas, sold to feeders, contractors, or others or sent to Northern and Eastern markets. The total number of cattle driven North this season is, therefore, as shown by the reports published in these columns, 151,618, including all classes of Texas beef. In 1874 the total drive out of Texas amounted, in round numbers, to 166,000, or 14,400 more than have thus far this season passed over the trail. The greater part of the drive last year was over by the first of July; the heaviest passed between April 15 and June 10. After July 1 about one-quarter of the total drive passed Fort Worth. These facts—together with the other fact that large numbers of cattle have been driven from the Mexican frontier to Northwestern Texas, to avoid raiders, and are now on the range from which they can be put on the trail northward, as soon as the condition of the markets shall fully warrant—sustains the prediction that the drive of this year will exceed that of last.—Kansas City (Mo.) Price Current, July 23.

—Some man has been telling a female correspondent of the Phrenological Journal how his head got out of shape. She says: "He spoke of the astonishing effect the study of the Chinese language had on the shape of his forehead. Over the eyes and along the region of the perspective faculties there seemed to be built on a layer of a bone a quarter of an inch in thickness and about half or three-quarters of an inch in width. 'You see,' said he, 'the study of the Chinese language calls into exercise only the perception and memory. Instead of one or two nasal sounds, as we have in our language, they have thirteen, and it is the most difficult at first for an American to distinguish between them.' Then he gave examples of these nasal sounds, but to my uneducated ear they seemed quite alike. 'For eighteen months,' said he, 'we did little but study the language, and during that time my forehead changed wonderfully in shape. It used to be smooth like yours, and uniformly developed, but this great ridge here spoils the shape of it, and the hat I used to wear will not rest on the top of my head now."

—It is quite unnecessary to say that the following story hails from Detroit: The other day, when a Cass street youth heard of a boy who educated himself to become a great orator, he went home, got his school reader down and began:

"The next gale that sweeps from the North will bring to our ears the clash——!"

His mother arrived just then, and taking him by the ear, she said:

"Bcy! if you don't go out and split me some wood I will make you think earth and sky have bumped each other!"

And as the boy hacked away at an old chunk he solemnly vowed he would go to Missouri and join the James robbers.

—When a newsboy got hold of the information that the big New York bankers had failed he called a number of his best friends together at the post-office, and said:

"See here, you fellers. There's another big bust-up in New York. Peanuts, harvest apples, jaw-breakers, and gum will kite right up, and if you've got any money you want to hump around and get in ahead of the panic."

—In Detroit, recently, when a crowd had collected around a boy who had been run over and badly hurt, a man rose up and said: "I'm sorry enough to cry, but I have not the time. I want to call your attention to my new patent clothes-wringer, which is warranted to—" At this point he came down on the pavement, several parties stepped on him, and as he was being sponged off in a drug store, he inquired: "Is this Texas or Michigan?"

And they "humped."—Detroit Free Press.

—It was at the house of a well-known doctor of divinity, and the little toddling girl, who did not like to see her aunt trim a lighted kerosene lamp, had come honestly by a somewhat modified theory of predestination. "Take care! take care! or we'll get blowed up into the sky, and then God'll say: 'Girls, what are you in such a hurry for?'"

—It is remarked that the more girls are pinned back the more forward they seem.—N. Y. World.

NEW CINCINNATI SUGAR CURED
HAMS AND BACON FOR SALE BY CHARLES E. LAIGHTON & SON.

Local Matters.

Jottings.

The city election comes off on Tuesday, Sept. 14th, that being the second Tuesday in September.

Yacht Resolute, of New York, from the Shoals for Boston, 3d inst., lost topmast and jibboom and returned to this port for repairs, being towed up by tug Clara Bateman.

There is now, we believe, no vessel on the stocks at any yard on the Piscataqua river.

A very striking and beautiful sign is the new one recently raised over the door of the music room and studio of Mr. T. P. Moses on Pleasant street—the work of his own skillful and versatile hand. Not only is the whole design emblematic and artistic, but the lettering would do credit even to Ed. Coffin's experienced brush, and is astonishingly accurate and fine for a first attempt. The early experience of both these native artists in the printing office has doubtless been of much service to them, as it is to all.

Some one has sent us Jesse H. Pomeroy's autobiography (we hope it was not done in malice,) which is published by J. A. Cummings & Co., Boston, and may be had for fifteen cents at the book and news stores.

J. W. Sowersby, the baker, who was burned out on Sunday morning, may be found at the South Ward room, for the present, with an ample supply of bread and pastry. He informs us that his ovens are so little damaged that he will be able to bake his usual batch of brown bread and beans on Saturday night, so that patrons can be accommodated as usual. It is needless to add that this old and well known Bakery is greatly missed, it having been established nearly a half century ago.

The Methodist Sabbath School picnic is postponed to Tuesday next.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Main and son have recently returned from an extended tour in Europe with renewed health, and will remain in the East for several weeks, before going to California.

Amos S. Alexander, Esq., a former editor of the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, has been stopping a few days in Portsmouth.

The Episcopal picnic will come off tomorrow at Pinkham's grove.

There will be a temperance meeting at the Free Will Baptist vestry on Pearl street, this evening, at 7.45.

Referring to Mr. Sowersby's prompt delivery of brown bread and beans after the Sunday fire on Water street, the Worcester Gazette says: "There is nothing like punctuality."

Col. J. C. Butler's excursion to Wolfeboro' and Centre Harbor next Wednesday. Tickets $1.75 each.

Some Base Ball.

Rowell's Newspaper Reporter says: "Chas. H. Chapman, of the Boston Globe, is the oracle of that office in base ball affairs. All consult him on such, and his opinions are unquestioned."

Chapman! We would fain have a word with thee! Imagine Mark Twain as pitcher, Welch of the New York Times first baseman, and Shaw of the Aurora (Ill.) Herald at the bat, with Marden of the Lowell Courier as catcher and Capt. Merrill of the Lawrence American, as umpire. Shaw, who is a hitter of experience and has legs that move with great rapidity when he exerts himself and pays strict attention to the business in hand, gets in a hot one over first base inside the foul line, perambulates over and touches the first, second and third bases, while the ball goes skyward,—and strives for a home run. A tame crow sits on a post watching the coming ball, and takes it on the fly and works rapidly to windward with a four-knot breeze while Shaw meandereth along, regardless of the shouts of spectators and the frantic exertions of Welch to arrest its flight, while the fleecy clouds above for a brief moment shut out the sun, and nature assumes a quietude unwarranted by the the circumstances, and the ball has departed into the interior of the crow, and when he is captured Shaw is nearly at the home-plate, and Welch having no time to extract the ball and send it in, simply hurls the crow and contents to Marden, who seizes it and touches Shaw three-quarters of a second before he is safe at home—what we would know is this, Chapman: Is it an "out" or a "run" for Shaw—or is the ball a "lost ball" and can he have another strike after the bird dies?

A Child's Romance.

[Newburyport Herald.]

There is a little girl in this county who, if she lives to be a hundred years old will not pass through such hair-breadth adventures as were her lot in the first month of her life. Passengers on Conductor Johnson's train on the Eastern Railroad have noticed at a house close to the road just beyond the North Beverly Station, on a piazza next them, a beautiful little girl of about three years old. She is always there when Mr. Johnson's trains pass, as he is a near relative. Everybody notices the child, and she has a history more exciting than most long lives. She was born on board ship in the Pacific Ocean. Before she was three days old her mother died. Before she was seven days old the ship was wrecked and sunk. Her father, who was captain of the vessel, the infant, and one sailor were saved in a boat. The babe was wrapped in a blanket and kept warm, and the sailor paid every attention to her and kept her alive with biscuit soaked in water, and was hardly less attentive to the little one's wants than her father. Ten days after the wreck, the three were picked up by an English vessel and taken to Liverpool. Thence they returned to their native country, and the little one has been brought up at the house of her grandparents, close by the railroad near the North Beverly station, and any one who rides with Conductor Johnson can see his little relative, so young and yet who has passed through so much.

—The following despatch recently sen to the Cincinnati Commercial is a new illustration of the thoroughness with which observations are now made, and marks a new departure in the work of popularizing science:

The report that the crops are destroyed by wet weather is not true. We have in the last thirty minutes received for transmission eight messages announcing the birth of boys, and still they come. Which party is responsible for this state of things?

Yours respectfully, A.

P. S.—Another precinct just heard from.

—Naturalist have decided that no hen can lay over six hundred eggs. Therefore, when you have checked off to that figure you can sell her for a Spring chicken.—Detroit Free Press.

The hen that can do such an extensive business as that in Detroit can lay over any bird of the kind in the East.

—So Sam Cary is on the democratic ticket in Ohio. I should think so much cold water would give the democratic throat cramps. Now, in Pennsylvania, they expect to add together democracy and local option. So planets and things revolve. All eyes are on Ohio.—"Gath." —'Ratio Seymour has been mentioned; but he says no earthly considerations can prevail upon him to try it again. When the great American people sit down upon a man once, he ought to keep still forever. —Washington Republican.

—Prof. Baird announces the death of the entire shipment of 300,000 or 400,000 shad sent to Germany.

A Triumph over Humbug

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Cats.

[Chambers' Journal.]

Cats from time immemorial have been favorites with the old and the young, the rich and poor; and though at times persecuted by some thoughtless schoolboy, have upon the whole been received into the "bosom of the family." Dr .Johnson sent out to purchase oysters for his pet, Hodge, when he was old and sick, and fancied no other food; and the poet, not content with cutting one hole in his library door to let his mouser in and out, fashioned a second smaller hole for the necessities of the kitten. What would Whittington be in history, or in our love and reverence, without his cat? Puss, however, generally falls to the favor of woman kind. The Arab endows the cat by miraculous interposition at the beginning of the world, with the spirit of gentle women; and Dr. Stables, with whom cats are "darlings," assures us in his book on "Cats," that one sitting purring on the hearth-rug to the music of the hissing tea urn, blinking her eyes before a bright fire, is the very personification of feminine virtue. Indeed, in this favorable view of pussy's lady-like character, he was preceded by Mr. Broderip, who tells us in his "Zoological Recreations" that the cat is closely connected with the untranslatable word "comfort"—a word that has neither name nor representation out of Great Britain. The doctor gives us but little, if any, reverse to this amiable picture; but surely out of doors all likeness to womankind must cease, for we cannot be so ungallant as to follow the simile on to the tiles, compare a cat parliament, with its unearthly noises, to the sweet and dulcet vocalisms of the gentler sex, however gossiping may be their tendency. If cats could always be kittens, redolent of fun and mischief as a school girl, we might be disposed to admit some resemblance, but the comparison becomes flighty and far-fetched when it reaches our chimney pots. However, cats are so greatly petted under the doctor's pen that they can afford a little wholesome detraction. It is an interesting sight, that of a cat teaching a kitten its future duties, in which domestic cleanliness, as well as mice hunting, bears an important place. Some instances are given in which greediness is reproved by the mother, but no one in reproof of the errors of late hours. What open atmospheric influence is it that changes cats' nature, swearing and spitting at each other—fur pulling and blood-letting being then their great delight, which nothing short of a descending boot or the discharge of a loaded blunderbuss seems sufficient to disturb?

An English R

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS.

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and some of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most valuable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STUGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourneroy, Vanquilin and Barrnell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

A BLESSING TO MANKIND,

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, or vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again [illegible] years' practical experience in the [illegible] of England and France, as well [illegible] of testimonials held by every one [illegible] cely offered by sufferers restored to [illegible] continued use furnished through [illegible] world-renowned DIAMOND RHEU-[illegible]

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Jules Verne, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and the Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the reading of the work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book $1.75, and is published in No. 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the [illegible] trying climate of New England]

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs;

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,380,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

LAWS
Of the State of New Hampshire.

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1875.

AN ACT to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery in the state of New Hampshire.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION. 1. Each and every medical society organized under a charter from the legislature of the state of New Hampshire, shall at each annual session thereof elect a board of censors, consisting of not less than three members, who shall hold their office till others are elected; which board shall have authority to examine and license practitioners of medicine, surgery, and midwifery, as provided in subsequent sections of this act.

SEC. 2. Every practitioner of medicine, surgery, of midwifery, including all persons who by sign or advertisement, or by any means whatever, offer their services to the public as practitioners of either medicine, surgery, or midwifery, or who by such sign or advertisement assume the title of doctor, shall be required to obtain a certificate of some one of the chartered medical societies of the state,—either from a county, district (embracing more than a county,) or state society,—which certificate shall set forth that said censors have found the person to whom it is given, qualified to practice all the branches of the medical art mentioned in it; and the certificate shall be substantially in the following form:

CERTIFICATE.

No. state of New Hampshire, county of

This may certify that the undersigned, Board of Censors, have found of in the county of and state of qualified in the following branches of the medical profession: and therefore license him to practice said branches within the state of New Hampshire.

Board of Censors of Medical Society.

SEC. 3. Such certificate shall be recorded in a book provided and kept for the purpose by the county clerk of each county in the state, which book shall bear the title and inscription, and shall be styled the Medical Register of County, and the fee for recording the same shall be twenty-five cents.

SEC. 4. Any person to whom a certificate is issued by a board of censors, as herein provided, shall cause the same to be recorded in the medical register of the county in which he actually resides, if a resident of the state; if not a resident of the state, in the county where he obtains such certificate; and for failure or neglect to record the same within thirty days after its issue, the person so neglecting shall be liable to a fine of twenty-five dollars; and any person who shall practice medicine, surgery, or midwifery in the state, or who shall sign a certificate of death for purposes of burial or removal, whose aforesaid certificate is not recorded in the manner aforesaid, shall be liable to the same penalties provided in section eight of this act for the punishment of persons who shall practice without a certificate.

SEC. 5. The censors of each medical society aforesaid, shall in their discretion notify all practitioners of medicine, surgery, or midwifery in this state, of the terms and requirements of this act, and shall require such persons so notified to comply therewith within thirty days after such notification or within such further time as may be allowed by special permission of such censors, not exceeding ninety days

SEC. 6. Any person not a resident of this state shall be required to obtain a certificate from some board of censors in this state, and cause the same to be recorded as herein provided before he shall be permitted to practice the medical art within this state.

SEC. 7. Each board of censors shall issue certificate without fee to all physicians and surgeons who furnish evidence by diploma from some medical college or university, or by certificate of examination by some authorized board, which shall, after due investigation, satisfy said censors that the person so presenting such credentials has been, after due examination by a legally authorized board, deemed properly and adequately qualified to practice the branches mentioned in such diploma or certificate. Any certificate issued by any board of censors as herein provided shall be valid throughout the state after being duly registered. Said censors shall also have power to revoke or annul any certificate, if in their judgment the person holding it has obtained it fraudulently, or has by crime or misdemeanor, whereof such person shall have been duly convicted, forfeited all right to public confidence.

SEC. 8. It is hereby declared a misdemeanor for any person to practice medicine, surgery, or midwifery in this state, unless authorized so to do by a certificate as herein provided. And any person found guilty of such misdemeanor shall for the first offense be fined not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars; for any subsequent offence not less than two hundred nor more than five hundred dollars; which fine may be recovered by an action of debt for the use of any person who shall sue therefor, or by an indictment.

SEC. 9. No person practising either of the branches of medicine, surgery, or midwifery within this state without a certificate as provided in this act, shall be permitted to enforce, in any of the courts of this state, the collection of any fee or compensation for any service rendered, or medicine or material of any kind furnished, in the practice of any of the branches not mentioned in such certificate.

SEC. 10. This act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 2, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter 107 of the General Statutes, in relation to limited partnerships.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Section 12 of the one hundred and seventh chapter of the General Statutes in relation to limited partnerships is hereby repealed, and the following section is enacted instead thereof:

SEC. 2. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, no special partner shall be allowed to claim as a creditor for any part of the capital contributed by him until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership shall be satisfied.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of section 12, chapter 125 of the General Statutes, relating to liens of mechanics and others, and of section 28 of chapter 1 of the Pamphlet Laws of 1868, in amendment thereof.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Such lien shall continue for the term of ninety days after such labor performed or materials provided, unless payment is previously made, and may be secured by attachment of such building and land, the return distinctly expressing that purpose.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to repeal an act entitled an act authorizing towns to reimburse their citizens in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That the act passed June session, 1874, entitled an act authorizing towns to reimburse their citizens in certain cases, be and is hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT providing for an additional term of probate court in the county of Coos.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That in addition to the terms of the probate court for the county of Coos now required by law to be held, there shall be held one term annually at Gorham in said county, on the first Tuesday of October of each year, and the salary of the judge and register shall be increased fifty dollars.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved June 3, 1875.

AN ACT for the better protection of public assemblies.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The outer doors, and the doors of all passages leading outwards of all churches, schoolhouses, depots, public halls, and buildings to be used for public purposes, hereafter constructed, shall open outwards.

SEC. 2. If any person shall neglect to comply with the provisions of section first of this act, he shall pay a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars for the benefit of the county where such building is located, to be recovered by indictment.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of "An act in relation to the trial of causes," approved June 28, 1873.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The provisions of the act to which this is an amendment shall apply to the law term.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect on its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 6, 1875.

News and Notes.

The Worcester papers have the full details of the confession of Dwight F. Steere, the murderer of Frederick White, of Spencer, who was found dead in New London, Conn., recently with five deep gashes inflicted about his head and body. White, a quiet, unassuming lad of 17 years, was employed at a hotel in Spencer until lately, when he visited Worcester in company with Steere, and they decided to take a trip to New York. They took the steamboat train in the evening for New London, at which place they arrived about 11 o'clock, both very much intoxicated. With no motive whatever save the desire to possess $31 in money and a watch belonging to White, Steere led his companion to an obscure place on the wharf and proceeded to cut him down without mercy, his weapon being a three-bladed pocket-knife. With this he inflicted five murderous cuts about the head, neck and chest, from the effects of which White died immediately, making no resistance and not stirring after being thrown down. Steere laid out his victim, placing him as if asleep, putting one arm under his head, extending the other and crossing his legs. He placed White's hat on the top of his head and left him. He then wandered about the streets until the train started for Worcester, when he took the cars, and went home, where he quietly remained until his arrest. He at first stoutly denied his guilt, but upon being locked up his courage failed him, and he confessed the crime. Steere is 27 years of age and is a native of Webster, Mass.

Nashua folks have got one. His name is Randall Hawkins. Poor Randall takes 60 days under the new tramp law.

On the 4th, as a party of men were in the liquor saloon kept by Abram Head, at East Gloucester, Mass., a dispute arose between George W. Hawley and Charles Ramsdell. Ramsdell had an old grudge against Hawley, and after some words drew a knife and stabbed Hawley in the shoulder and neck, severing the jugular vein, from which wound Hawley died instantly. Ramsdell then made his escape from the premises, and after a hot pursuit was captured and lodged in the police station. Hawley was forty-five years of age, and leaves a widow and five children. Ramsdell is twenty years of age and belongs in Wells, Me.

The Secretary of the Navy has issued an order definitely settling all questions of rank between line and staff officers in the navy, which heretofore have caused considerable trouble.

The Ohio inflationists are confident of victory. Thus the Cincinnati Enquirer says: "It is unnecessary to argue the question. The election of Allen is conceded by the most intelligent men in this end of the State. Against him there are no wagers worth taking."

Tramps will please give Mrs. Rodney Griffith of Keene a wide berth, for they say she handles a six-shooter terribly careless when they go to make any cheap talk about her premises.

The army worms have put in their appearance in Dover.

Col. J. W. Forney believes the damage by storms in Europe will be the sort of ill wind which is to blow a great deal of good to America. He writes in one of his London letters concerning the injury to the European wheat crop, and then adds this highly colored bit of prophesy: "The effect upon all our own interests must be lasting if not instantaneous. Gold will now be shipped from England instead of to England. Railroads will be in demand to move the crops, whether of cotton or of corn. Iron works and manufactories of all kinds will be put in operation, and our steam marine will of necessity be largely augmented. Such, indeed, seems to be the outlook as I write, and with this prospect we may begin to discuss, with some show of reason, the vexed question of the resumption of specie payments."

George H. Abbott fell from the third story window of a dwelling in Haverhill, Mass., on the night of the 3d, and was instantly killed, his neck being broken. He was subject to somnambulism and is supposed to have walked out of the window in his sleep. He was visiting his sister, having been ill from the effect of the fall of a box of oranges on his head. His age was 18, and he was a native of Ossipee.

Rescued from an Alligator.

[Hansboro' Democrat.]

Last Saturday about sun-down, four miles east of this place on Biloxi Bay, occurred a scene calculated to send a thrill of horror through every human heart, and to make even the boldest tremble with fear. Two little girls, daughters of Mr. Elam R. Blackwell, living on the back bay of Biloxi, while bathing in the bay immediately in front of his dwelling, were attacked by an enormous alligator. The eldest, a girl about seven years old, holding the youngest, an infant of two years, in her hands, was quietly enjoying her bath, when suddenly her little sister was snatched from her and borne swiftly from the shore. Terrified beyond measure, and unable to render any assistance to her unfortunate sister, the elder girl uttered a scream, which was quickly caught by the ear of her father, who happened, accidentally, to be passing thirty or forty yards from the spot where his daughters were bathing. Realizing instantly, from the tone of the voice, that his children were in some peril, but unable to conjecture its exact nature Mr. Blackwell, who is an active and athletic man, rushed rapidly to their assistance, and arrived at the spot just in time to discover his little daughter being borne out into the bay by an alligator. Comprehending the scene at once, and nerved to almost superhuman effort by the desperate situation of his child, the agonized father leaped madly into the water in pursuit of the would-be destroyer of his daughter, which was then some twenty-five or thirty yards from shore. The water, for a distance of forty or fifty yards out into the bay from the point where the children were bathing, ranges in depth from one and a half to two feet, and then suddenly attains a depth of forty or fifty feet, and both the animal (which by this time had discovered the pursuit) and the father seemed to realize that the deep water immediately in front of them once reached, pursuit and recovery would be alike impossible; both, therefore, redoubled their efforts, the one to reach the point, the other to prevent it. In this struggle, although sinking to his waist in the soft mud at the bottom at each bound, the father was successful. He succeeded in grasping his child by the arm about ten feet from deep water. The alligator, which all the while held the child's foot in its mouth, perceiving itself overtaken, and alarmed and confused by the boldness of the assault, released its hold and made its way rapidly into the deep water in front of it. The father, completely exhausted, raised his child out of water, and perceiving that it still lived, by desperate effort succeeded in regaining the shore and depositing the child safely in the arms of its mother. The little girl is unhurt with the exception of a couple of bruises on its foot made by the teeth of the monster.

We obtain these facts from Mr. Blackwell himself, who is a truthful and reliable man, and we assure our readers this is no fiction, but that every word is true. Mr. Blackwell says the only way that he can account for his child not being drowned, is that at every thirty or forty feet the alligator would raise itself in the water and allow the child's head to come out. At these intervals it would scream, and evidently breathed enough to maintain life.

Parents had better be cautious with their children and keep them out of the water unless accompanied by some grown person. The bayou in front of this town is every day full of children, and there is hardly a day passes without one of these dangerous animals being seen in the immediate vicinity. It would not surprise us at any time to hear of some child being devoured by one of these ugly creatures.

Metric System of Weights and Measures.

An important movement has recently been made throughout the country, to do away with the old-fashioned system of weights and measures, and to introduce more effectually the new Metric system, fast becoming the dominant system throughout Europe, and which has received the sanction of the civilized world.

The people of the United States are already more familiar with the principles of this system than they are aware of, because it is used in the table best known, the table of Federal currency, which consists of mills, cents and dimes, corresponding in their decimal relations to the millimeter, cent-imeter and dec-imeter of the metric system. The Boston Journal says:

"Although, therefore, the system has long been taught in our schools, especially since its legislation by Congress in 1866, no schooling is really necessary to teach principles and a nomenclature with which we are already familiar. As for the values of the several units, they may be learned in a few hours by glancing at full sized models of them exhibited, as was done in Germany at the time of its introduction in that country in 1872, in all the shop windows. No one could walk twenty steps in the business part of a city without seeing before him at every turn full sized charts and models of the metric weights and measures.

With these constantly in view, the most ignorant classes found no difficulty in understanding the decimal system, whereas the so-called English "system" now in use here is a mystery even to such as may have enjoyed a dozen years of schooling therein."

Speaking of the metric tables, Charles Sumner said: "In this brief space you behold the whole Metric System of Weights and Measures. What a contrast to the anterior confusion! A boy at school can master the metric system in an afternoon. Months, if not years, are required to store away the perplexities, incongruities and inconsistencies of the existing weights and measures, and then the memory must often fail in reproducing them. The mystery of compound arithmetic is essential in the calculations which they require. All this is done away by the decimal progression, so that the first four rules of arithmetic are ample for the pupil."

A circular containing an agreement binding the signers to use the Metric System after July 4, 1876, has been sent to all the cities and towns in the United States containing upward of 8000 inhabitants. Every city or town so far canvassed has returned overwhelming majorities. Majorities had previously been secured from New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, Portland, New Brunswick, Newport, etc., and from over thirty other cities and towns co-operation has been promised. The number of signatures of architects from Boston alone amounts to 104, nearly a totality of the profession. Among other suggestions the circular contains the following:

The Metric system of weights and measures has now received the sanction of law among more than half the inhabitants of the civilized and Christian world. It has up to this date, been adopted by the French, Germans, Spaniards, Italians, Portuguese, Dutch, Belgians, Mexicans, Swiss, Austrians, Danes, Grecians, British in India, Brazilians, and a majority of the civilized inhabitants of South America; in all about four hundred and twenty millions of souls.

In 1864 the system was legalized in Great Britian; in Germany, in 1868. After four years of preparation, on the 1st of January, 1872, it was made compulsory in that empire, and no other system was any longer legal.

In 1866 it was legalized in the United States. It is now 1875, and we have had eight years for preparation, twice as long as was allowed to the people of Germany. Its general adoption among us should no longer be delayed.

The metric system, moreover, is already in use in the most important of our great public works—the United States Coast Survey.

Under our republican form of government it is not to be expected that our National Legislature will, in a matter so nearly touching the daily business and habits of every citizens, be in advance of the people themselves. Congress has made the metric system legal, and has power to make it compulsory; but this is a power which that body is not likely to exercise until a call for such action shall come up to its members from their constituents at home.

The work of introducing the metric system of measures of length or distance, for instance, should be undertaken by the architects, engineers and builders. By agreeing to use exclusively the metric measures of length, in all their professional transactions, commencing on a certain day fixed several months in advance, they will necessitate the gradual and harmonious introduction of those measures as well among the workmen employed by them as by their clients for whom their plans are made; for in order to understand the measurements figured upon these plans by the architects, such workmen must familiarize themselves with the principles of the system from which the numbers are derived.

The following simple tables give all that there is in the metric or decimal system of weights and measures:

MONEY.
10 mills	make a cent.
10 cents	make a dime.
10 dimes	make a dollar.
10 dollars	make an eagle.
LENGTH.
10 milli-meters	make a centimeter.
10 centi-meters	make a decimeter.
10 deci-meters	make a meter.
10 meters	make a dekameter.
10 deka-meters	make a hectometer.
10 hecto-meters	make a kilometer.
10 kilo-meters	make a myriameter.
WEIGHTS.
10 milli-grams	make a centigram.
10 centi-grams	make a decigram.
10 deci-grams	make a gram.
10 grams	make a dekagram.
10 deka-grams	make a hectogram.
10 hecto-grams	make a kilogram.
10 kilo-grams	make a myrlagram.
CAPACITY.
10 milli-liters	make a centiliter.
10 centi-liters	make a deciliter.
10 deci-liters	make a liter.
10 liters	make a dekaliter.
10 deka-liters	make a hectoliter.

Signor Blitz and the Parrot.

In his "Fifty Years in the Magic Circle," Signor Blitz gives his account of the way he helped by his ventriloquism a poor cobbler pay his rent. He happened to be ordering a pair of boots, when Squire Sumner, the landlord, made his appearance with a distress warrant.

I looked out and saw, indeed, the squire, his footman and a very shabby, suspicious-looking man, apparently an employe of the broker. I had scarcely time to cast a rapid glance around the scantily furnished shop and call my thoughts together, ere the party were at the door and entered.

"Let them come," cried Penny, with an air of despairing resignation; "I have struggled, Heaven knows, as long as I was able, and can do no more."

"Well, Mr. Penny," observed the squire, leisurely advancing to the counter, "you know of course, the cause of my visit?"

Here a huge, staring poll parrot, sitting in his cage, which formed one of the few articles of furniture in the shop, began to whistle "Call again to-morrow!" to the astonishment of all present, excepting myself, which she followed by, "I know a bank." The squire, however, resumed.

"You are, of course, provided, Mr. Penny?"

"Alas! no, sir," said the poor tradesman; "it is useless to deceive you any further. I cannot pay at this moment, nor do I know how soon I can; take my little property; let it pay as far as it will; I will do the best I can. Providence will not forsake me."

"What's the time?" interrupted the parrot. "Polly wants her breakfast."

The children, who by this time stole silently in, anxious to know what was going on, were as much surprised as their father at Polly's sudden loquacity; their little eyes dilated with wonder and twinkled with delight; but the awful presence of the great man somewhat repressed them.

"Well," continued the prudent man of cotton, after a short pause, "if that's the case, I may as well have the things as anybody else. John Broadman, you do what is necessary"

"Polly! Polly! Polly!" here exclaimed Poll.

"That's a fine bird," remarked the squire, his attention being attracted to it.

"I must leave a man in possession," said the broker; "but before I go, I may as well make out the inventory, for I suppose there is no chance of matters being settled without a sale, Mr. Penny?"

"None whatever."

"Then I'll proceed to my work at once. Item one, Dutch clock."

"What's o'clock? what's o'clock? Polly wants her breakfast," said the bird.

Poor Penny looked stupefied; the children who had been regarding the scene as I have said, half with curiosity and half with fear, could not help clapping their hands at Poll's way of talking; but a look from their father restrained them. Broadman continued:

"One high desk and counter; one chair; one shoemaker's bench and tools; three chairs; two tin candlesticks; two boot-trees—"

"Woodman, spare the tree," sang Poll.

"Clever bird, that," said the squire. "You put the parrot down, I suppose, Mr. Broadman?"

"Oh, no, he never mentioned her," sang the parrot, twisting her head very knowingly.

"Answers quite like a Christian, and seems to understand everything," said the squire.

"What 's o'clock?" cried Poll.

"Wonderful, upon my honor!" ejaculated the squire. "Now I think of it," said he. "my daughter Cecilia has been worrying my life out the last six months to get her such a bird as this; one that can talk, sing and whistle. I'll tell you what I'll do, Penny; I don't want to be hard upon you; let me have the parrot, and give me a note of hand for ten pounds balance, and I'll withdraw the distress, and give you the receipt for fifteen pounds."

"Don't you wish you may get it!" saucily chattered Poll, as if she understood what the landlord was talking about.

"Such a bird as that is worth more money," I observed. "I'll give that much myself."

"Whistle and I'll come to you, my lad," whistled Poll.

"Wonderful!" said the squire. "I must have that bird; I'll take it as payment for the rent in full. Penny, will that suit you?"

Poor Penny seemed thunderstruck; he hesitated as if he had some compunction. The squire observed it, and quickly said:

"That's not enough? Well, then, I'll make it twenty pounds. Here's a receipt for the rent, and there's five sovereigns—will that do you? Broadman, withdraw your man."

"You don't lodge here, Mr. Ferguson, with your ninepence," added Polly.

The squire was delighted; I thought the arrangement honorable to all parties, and poor Penny, apparently unwilling, delivered the bird to the squire.

"Good-bye, Poll!" cried all the children.

"Good-bye! My native land, good night!" sang Poll, appearing very grave, and turning her head first one side and then on the other, placing herself in her swing and violently rocking backward and forward, seeming to give the signal for her departure.

As soon as the shop was fairly clear of the squire's party, Penny turned to me, and with an air of perplexity begged I would look in the following morning, when he would have some skins from which I could choose the leather for my boots, for, just at that moment, he felt quite bewildered.

Highly delighted that John Penny had got so well through his difficulties, I did not intrude, but considerately took my leave. I was, however, a punctual visitor, at John's the following morning, and found the honest cordwainer had laid out the five pounds he received over and above his rent the preceding afternoon to the very best advantage. He had stocked his shop with a good supply of leather and other articles necessary for his trade, and now only wanted customers.

While I was selecting the material for my boots the squire suddenly made his appearance, followed by the footman bearing Poll.

"Well, Mr. Penny," said the great cotton lord, "we have brought back your parrot, and it is very extraordinary that it has never spoken a single word since I took it away—never a single song, nor whistled a single tune; and it has done nothing but squeak, squeak and scream, till my head has been ready to burst; in fact, without any wish to offend you, she is a perfect nuisance. Return me the five pounds I paid you, and I'll forfeit the rent."

"I am sorry to say," said the conscientious John Penny, "that I have laid out the five pounds; but, however, as the bird don't suit you, if you'll take my note of hand for the five pounds——"

"Why, stay! stay!" I said. "Parrots very seldom talk in strange places at first. Put Poll in her usual place and then see."

The cage was accordingly restored to its former place, when to the utter astonishment of all present Poll immediately began to sing "Home, sweet home; be it ever so humble there's no place like home."

"Well, I declare!" said the squire, lifting up his hands, "this is wonderful; but I've heard of such things before. What a sensible, intelligent creature she is! I must give her another trial. Take her back again, John."

"I'll gang nae mair to your towu," whistled Poll; but, however, to no effect, for she was borne off, crying "What 's o'clock? what o'clock?"

"You appear to be surprised at my amazement, sir," said honest John Penny, when the party was out of sight, "but will not be so long when I tell you that until yesterday I never heard that bird utter a single syllable. As Mr. Sumner has said, she has never done anything but squeal and scream, disturbing the whole neigaborhood; but they got used to it at last, although they threatened at first to break my windows and wring her neck. It was a long time before I could get to like it myself; but use reconciles us to anything, and I think now I shall miss her, disagreeable as she was."

I called again the next morning, and while there, who should appear but Squire Sumner, accompanied, as on the previous day, by his man, with Poll.

"Bless me, sir!" said Penny; "is that you?"

"Yes, Mr. Penny, I have come again," returned the squire, "with this diabolical bird, for not a moment's peace have we had."

"What! do you find her too talkative, sir?" inquired the shoemaker, with great simplicity.

"Talk too much! Why, the obstinate brute—confound her—she never talked at all! Put her in her old place again, John."

"Don't I look spruce on my neddy?" whistled Poll.

"You have found your tongue, have you?" said the squire; "but I am not to be done a third time. Keep yours bird, Mr. Penny; I wish you joy of her."

"But I have spent the money you gave me for her," said honest John, "and I don't know when I shall be able to pay it back again."

"Oh! never mind the money; only release me from such a torment as this, and I'll put up with the loss the best way I can."

Poor John was somewhat reluctantly prevailed upon to take the bird, and as soon as the squire had departed, and was fairly out of hearing, said, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good. Had I not been seized for my rent, my parrot might never have spoken."

I could not refrain from having a good laugh, as I disclosed the secret to Penny, and explained to him how I, as a ventriloquist, had talked and whistled instead of the bird, and, as it appeared, to a very good purpose.

"I see it all," said John. "May God bless you."

—General Burnside is at Long Branch. In reply to a remark that the place seemed to agree with him, he said, "Oh, yes, I feel a sense of freedom here that is perfectly delightful. The fact of it is, I always like to get out of Rhode Island. I like to be where I can stretch my legs without being sued by my neighbor for trespass."

The Secretary of the Navy has appointed John B. Hoover and Joseph Feaster, of Pennsylvania, and John F. Hanscom, of Massachusetts, to be assistant naval constructors.

Two attempts were made to throw Eastern railroad trains from the track on Wednesday evening, the 4th. Conductor Eaton's night train which left Boston at eight o'clock, struck a pile of sleepers placed on the track forty rods this side of Wenham. The headlight of the locomotive was smashed, but there was no other damage. Freight H, which was following, also found a pile of sleepers on the track. It is thought that tramps did it, hoping to secure plunder by wrecking the trains.

Live Oak.

To all appearances the fight for the contract of furnishing the Navy Department with live oak for the current fiscal year has ended. The navy yards have been loaded down for months with constantly increasing piles of live oak. An astonished country has looked on with half remonstrant feeling at the arrival of schooner-loads of live oak. Jealous workman needing employment have charged that the Navy Department was spending money for the benefit of bloated contractors, using the fund appropriated for the labor to pay for it. But such was not the case. It was only a strife between contractors. The owner of the live oak landed at the navy yard across the river can take it away again—or he may leave it. He didn't get the contract after all. His name is Swift and his swift delivery of live oak was too swift by several degrees. His bid was some $65,000 more than a bid made by Southard & Co., an energetic young firm of New York. A few days ago Southard & Co. were awarded the contract, and it appears that the government may have a claim against Swift for rent of navy yards, which he has filled "chock-a-block" with live oak. How can mechanics and laborers expect to be employed if there is no room to work in? A funeral procession could not form decently on the navy yard, and might get lost between the sticks of timber and the gate. Dogs that have strayed from their owners while visiting the yard have become so materially live-oakized in their vain wanderings for loop-holes of escape that even their bark is no means of recognition. There are so many "shakes" in these immense sticks of timber that one imagines himself in California or some other earthquake country.

Swift has done himself no great good by his speed. To be sure he has borrowed the navy yards for a time and hasn't yet paid a cent of rent. "But just you wait," thinks Swift; "Southard & Co. cannot conform to the conditions of the contract. They can't get such a large amount of newly-cut live oak before Jan. 1, 1876. Then government must buy the lot in open market and Swift will sell at his own price, and Southard & Co. must eventually lose the difference between their bid and mine." The explanation of this theory is that it is too warm in Florida to cut live oak; Swift has most of last Spring's crop; and Southard & Co. will need an extension—and can't get it. But they claim they can put in every foot they have contracted for in the next five months. Can they?

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and aldermen of the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that, after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vauquillin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the cases, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietors name in thanksgivings and benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it is agreed that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from any newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain some long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; its marine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcription from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No. 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

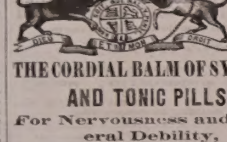
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, and even indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic liquors, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally manifest in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Sodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is on the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself it left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from the effects of alcoholic liquors. It completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprising and special result from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sedorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the [trying climate of New England]

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond can be called.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

AN ACT in relation to tuition in the State Normal School.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Tuition and graduation in the State Normal School shall be free to all those completing either or both of its prescribed courses of study, upon condition they shall, in consideration thereof agree to teach in the schools of this state for a period equal to the time of said course or courses of study so completed.

SEC. 2 The trustees of said school shall make such provisions for the making, entering into, and carrying out suitable and proper contracts of agreements with those desiring free tuition, as shall carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to raise the bounty on bears.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Any person killing or causing to be killed any animal or animals called the bear, shall receive the sum of ten dollars as bounty for each bear killed or destroyed, on application, and after satisfactory evidence has been produced to the selectmen of the town in which said bear or bears were killed, and the selectmen of any town presenting a statement, signed and sworn to by two or more of said selectmen, showing the number of bears so killed upon which bounties have been paid, and the names of persons to whom paid, to the state treasurer, may receive the sum so paid from the state treasurer.

All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT for the better protection of certain birds, their eggs and young.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That if any person shall, at any season of the year, take, kill or destroy any of the birds called robins, thrushes, larks, blue-birds, sparrows, finches, buntings, martins, linnets, orioles, swallows, fly-catchers, warblers, tanagers, bobolinks, vireos, nut-hatchers, creepers, wood-peckers, hummingbirds, or any other of the song birds of insectiverous birds; or shall take from the nest or destroy the eggs or young of any such birds; or of yellow-birds, snipes, woodcocks, rails, yellow legs, or sand-pipers, partridges, grouse, quail, and wild pigeons, he shall be fined five dollars for each offence.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to preserve the reports of county commissioners.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That it shall be the duty of the county commissioners of the several counties to send to the secretary of state annually twenty printed copies of the county reports.

SEC. 2. The secretary of state shall cause the same to be suitably bound, and one copy sent to each board of county commissioners, and the other ten volumes deposited in the state library.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter one hundred and ninety seven of the General Statutes, in relation to sheriffs and deputy sheriffs.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That no sheriff or deputy sheriffs, police officer, constable, or city marshal, shall be suffered to appear in any court or before any justice or attorney for any party in a suit; and any writ, declaration, plea, complaint and warrant, or other process made by a sheriff, deputy sheriff, police officer, constable, or city marshal for another person, shall be void.

SEC. 2. That section twenty-one of the one hundred and ninety-seventh chapter of the General statutes, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

The east line of Grafton county shall be as follows, viz:—beginning on the west bank of Connecticut river at the southwesterly corner of Dalton; thence on the westerly and southwesterly lines of Dalton, Whitefield, Carroll, Nash and Sawyer's Location, Crawford's Grant, Hart's Location, and Bartlett, to the line of the county of Carroll, at the northwesterly corner of the town of Albany; thence by the westerly line of the county of Carroll, to the northerly line of the county of Belknap.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT to amend section 15 of chapter 90 of the General Statutes, relating to firemen.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That section 15 of chapter 90 of the General Statutes be amended by inserting the words "three dollars" in the last line but one thereof after the word November, instead of the words "one dollar and fifty cents," as it now reads.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of Chapter CX of the General Statutes relating to weights and measures.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Section seven of said chapter is hereby repealed, and instead thereof shall be inserted the following: "Every sealer of weights and measures in any town or city shall, once in each year, in the month of April, visit and examine every place where scales or measures are used for the purchase or sale of any goods or commodities, and shall examine all such scales or measures used for the purpose of buying or selling.

SEC. 2. Section eleven of said chapter shall be amended by striking out all of said section after the words "ten cents," and inserting instead thereof the following: "the county sealer shall receive ten cents and the town sealer twenty-five cents for each and every scale-beam, steel-yard or scale, and ten cents for each measure, excepting where more than five scales or measures are sealed, the same belonging to any one person or firm, in which case the fee shall be one-half of said sum for each additional measure; all said fees to be paid by the party or parties whose scales, weights, or measures are so examined, and said sealer shall give to said party or parties a certificate of said examination, which shall contain the number of scales, weights, or measures sealed by him, and the date thereof; and shall keep a record thereof, which shall contain a record of the number of scales, weights and measures sealed by him, the parties for whom they were examined, and the date thereof in a book provided at the expense of the town or county for which such sealer is appointed.

SEC. 3. If any person shall sell or dispose of any goods or merchandise by any scale, scale-beam, steel-yard, weight or measure, not proved or sealed as aforesaid, or shall fraudulently sell or dispose of any commodity by any scale, scale-beam, steel-yard, weight, or measure, which has not been sealed, but is unjust, he shall be punished by a fine of ten dollars for each offence, one half of which shall go to the person making the complaint.

SEC. 4. Sections ten and thirteen of said chapter, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect on its passage. Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT classing Hart's Location, Nash and Sawyer's Location, Crawford's Grant, Crawford's Purchase, and Elkins' Grant, for the purpose of electing a representative.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened;

SECTION 1. The towns of Hart's Location, Nash and Sawyer's Location, Crawford's Grant, Crawford's Purchase, and Elkins' Grant, neither of them having the number of ratable polls required by the constitution for a representative to the General Court, are hereby classed for the election of a representative; the meetings for the choice of such representative to be holden in Hart's Location.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect on its passage. Approved July 3, 1875.

AN ACT in amendment of an act entitled An act to abolish the present judiciary system, and establish a new one, passed July 10th, A. D. 1874.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. In case of the disqualification of any justice of the superior court of judicature to sit in any cause, or in case any justice has tried or heard the cause at a term of the circuit court, any justice of the circuit court not disqualified, and who has not heard or tried the cause, may sit in the cause in place of the justice of the superior court so disqualified.

SEC. 2. The superior or circuit court, or any justice thereof, may commit to one or more referees, to be appointed by such court of justice, any cause pending in such court, which may by law be triable by a jury, or the determination of any question of fact which is not by law triable by a jury, or any cause which may require an extended examination of accounts, books, or vouchers, or which for any reason cannot conveniently be tried in court or by a jury, provided the parties shall consent, or it shall be made to appear affirmatively to such court or justice that it is expedient to make such reference; and any of said justices may in vacation, upon application of either party, and after notice to the adverse party for good cause shown, appoint a referee or referees in any case. The superior court may make such rules, and promulgate the same from time to time, as shall seem proper to regulate the practice of referring causes and the proceedings before the referees; but no appeal from the decree of a judge of probate allowing or disallowing a will, no appeal from a commissioner of insolvency, or from the award of railroad or county commissioners, no appeal from a justice of the peace or police court, no action of review which has been once actually tried, and no cause in which it shall not appear to the court or justice that there is to be an actual trial, shall be so referred, against the objection of either party.

SEC. 3. The proceedings by and before referees, and the proceedings in court upon the report of referees, shall be as now provided by law; provided, however, that any cause may be committed to referees by agreement of the parties, reserving to either party the right of trial by jury.

SEC. 4. So much of the act to which this is in addition, or is inconsistent herewith, is hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect and be in force from its passage.

Approved July 3, 1875.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1875.

News and Notes.

Our good brother Varney of the Dover Enquirer styles Metcalf of the Press "a sneaking tramp who dares not look his fellow citizens in the face,"—a "willing tool of abler though not less corrupt scoundrels." We are more than half convinced of the justice of these quotatsoni.

The Cleveland Leader has propounded a conundrum which none of the rag-money newspapers seem disposed to answer. It asks: "If a circulation equal to $11.30 for each man, woman and child in the country was sufficient for all business purposes before the war, why is not the present circulation, which is equal to $18.75 to every man, woman and child in the country, sufficient for all present purposes?"

A waterspout burst over Kirn, Rheinish Prussia, on Thursday which inundsted the place. A bridge and several houses were swept away and thirteen persons drowned.

It is now believed that Eddy, the missing manufacturer of Franklin, N. H, who dissappeared last week, left voluntarily, as an examination into his affairs shows that they were in a bad way and that bankruptcy could not have been loug averted.

Sixty-one liquor seizures were made in Portland last month, the total quantity of liquor seized being nearly 3000 gallons. This is the largest amount ever seized there in a single month. During the same month there were 218 arrests for drunkenness in the same city.

The widow of Andrew Johnson is prostrated by the shock of her husband's sudden death. It is thought that she will not long survive.

Reuben Day was arrested at Alfred, Me., Friday, on a charge of seduction of the wife of a prominent citizen of that place. He was placed under $1700 bonds. He has also partially confessed to having robbed the house of his employer, Mr. Hammon, and it is also thought he is the person who set fire to Hammons & Co.'s mills. It is thought he set the fire so that in the excitement he could rob the house.

A PICTURE OF THE PAST.

BY GEORGE LIPPARD.

Let me paint you a picture on the canvas of the past. It is a cloudless Summer day. Yes, a clear blue sky arches and smiles above a quaint edifice, rising among giant trees, in the center of a wide city. That edifice is built of red brick, with heavy window frames and a massive hall door. The wide spreading dome of St. Peter's, the snowy pillars of the Parthenon, the gloomy glory of Westminster Abbey—none of these, nor anything like these are here to elevate this edifice of plain red brick into a gorgeous monument of architecture.

Plain red brick the walls; the windows partly framed in stone; the roof eaves heavy with intricate carvings; the hall door ornamented with pillars of dark stone; such is the State House of Philadelphia in this year of our Lord 1776.

Around the edifice stately trees arise. Yonder, toward the dark walls of Walnut street jail, spreads a pleasant lawn, inclosed by a plain board fence. Above our heads these trees lock their massive limbs and spread their leafy canopy.

The walks here, too, not fashioned in squares and circles, but spreading in careless negligence along the lawn. Benches, too, rude benches, on which repose the forms of old men with gray hair, and women with babes in their arms.

This is a pleasant day, and this a pleasant lawn; but why do those clusters of citizens, with anxious faces, gather round the State House walls? There is the merchant in his velvet garb and ruffled shirt; there the mechanic, with apron on his breast and tools in his hands; there the bearded sailor and the dark-robed minister, all grouped together.

Why this anxiety on every face? This gathering in little groups all over the lawn?

Yet hold a moment! In yonder wooden steeple which crowns the red brick State House, stands an old man with white hair and sunburnt face. He is clad in humble attire, yet his eye gleams, as it is fixed upon the ponderous outline of the bell suspended in the steeple there. The old man tries to read the inscription on that bell, but can not. Out upon the waves, far away in the forests, thus has his life been passed. He is no scholar; he can scarcely spell out one of those strange words carved on the surface of that bell.

By his side, gazing in his face—that sunburnt face—in wonder, stands a flaxen-haired boy, with laughing eyes of Summer blue.

"Come here, my boy; you are a rich man's child. You can read. Spell me those words, and I will bless you, my good child!"

And the child raised itself on tiptoe and pressed its tiny hands against the bed, and read, in lisping tones, these memorable words:

"Proclaim liberty throughout the land—to all the inhabitants thereof."

The old man ponders for a moment on those strange words; then gathering the boy in his arms, he speaks:

"Look here my child. Wilt do the old man a kindness? Then haste you down stairs and wait in the hall by the big door till a man shall give you a message for me. A man with a velvet dress and a kind face will come out from the big door and give you word for me. When he gives you that word then run ont yonder in the street and shout it up to me. Do you understand?"

It needed no second command. The boy with blue eyes and flaxen hair sprang from the old bell keeper's arms and threaded his way down the dark stairs.

The old bell keeper was alone. Many minutes passed. Leaning over the railing of the steeple, his face toward Chesnut street, he looked anxiously for that fair haired boy. Moments passed, yet still he came not. The crowds gathered more darkly along the pavement and over the lawn, yet still the boy came not.

"Ah!" groaned the old man, "he has forgotten me! These old limbs will have to totter down the State House stairs, and climb up again, and all on account of that child—"

As the word was on his lip, a merry, ringing laugh broke on the ear. There, among the crowds on the pavement, stood the blue-eyed boy, clapping his tiny hands.

And then swelling his little chest, he raised himself on tip-toe, and shouted a single word—

"Ring!"

Do you see that old man's eye fire? Do you see that arm so suddenly bared to the shoulder? Do you see that withered hand grasping the iron tongue of the bell? The man is young again; his veins are filled with new life. Backward and forward with sturdy strokes he swings the tongue. The bell speaks out! The crowd in the street hear it, and burst forth in one long shout! Old Delaware hears it and gives it back in the hurrah of her thousand sailors. The city hears it, and starts up from desk and workbench as though an earthquake had spoken.

Yet still while the sweat pours from his brow, that old bell-keeper hurls the iron tongue, and still—boom—boom—boom—the bell speaks to the city and the world.

There is a terrible poetry in the sound of that State House bell at the dead of night, when striking its sullen and solemn—one! It rouses crime from its task, mirth from its wine cup, murder from its knife, bribery from its gold. There is a terrible poetry in that sound. It speaks to us like a voice from our youth—like the knell of God's judgment—like a solemn yet kind remembrancer of friends, now dead and gone.

There is a terrible poetry in that sound at the dead of night; but there was a day when the echo of that bell awoke a world slumbering in tyranny and crime;

Yes, as the old man swung the Iron Tongue, the Bell spoke to all the world. That sound crossed the Atlantic—pierced the dungeons of Europe—the workshops of England—the vassal fields of France.

That Echo spoke to the slave—bade him look from his soil—and know himself a man.

That Echo startled the kings upon their crumbling thrones.

That Echo was the knell of king-craft, priest-craft, and all other crafts born of the darkness of ages, and baptized in seas of blood.

Yes, the voice of that little boy, who, lifting himself on tip-toe, wito his flaxen hair blowing in the breeze, shouted "Ring!" had a deep and awful meaning in its infant tone!

Why did that word "Ring!"—why did that echo of the State House bell speak such deep and awful meaning to the world? What did that "Ring!"—the echo of that bell, have to do with the downfall of the dishonest priest or traitor King.

Under that very bell, pealing out at noonday, in an old hall, fifty-six traders, farmers and mechanics had assembled to shake the shackles off the world.

Now let us look in upon this band of plain men met in such solemn council. It is now half an hour previous to the moment when the bell-ringer responded to the shout of the fair haired boy.

This is an old hall. It is not so large as many a monarch's anteroom; you might put a hundred like it within the walls of St. Peter's, and yet it is a fine old hall. The walls are concealed in dark oaken wains cotting, and there among the inclosed windows, the purple tapestry comes drooping down.

The ornaments of this hall?

Over the head of that noble-browed man—John Hancock, who sits calm and serene in yonder chair—there is a banner, the banner of the stars. Perched on that banner sits the eagle with unfolded wings. (Is it not a precious bird? Born only last year on Bunker Hill, now it spreads its wings, full grown, over a whole continent!)

Look over the faces of these fifty-six men, and see every eye turned to that door. There is silence in this hall—every voice is hushed—every face is stamped with a deep and awful responsibility.

Why turns every glance to that door; why is every face so solemn; why is it so terribly still?

The committee of three, who have been out all night penning a parchment, are about to appear.

The parchment, with the signatures of these men, written with the pen lying on yonder table, will either make the world free or stretch these necks upon the gibbet yonder in Potter's-field, or nail these heads to the doorposts of the hall!

This was the time for solemn faces and deep silence.

At last, hark! The door opens—the committee appear. Who are these three men who come walking on toward John Hancock's chair?

That tall man, with the sharp features, the bold brow and sand-hued hair, holding the parchment in his hand, is the Virginia farmer, Thomas Jefferson. The stout-built man with resolute look and flashing eye? That is a Boston man—one John Adams. And the calm-faced man, with hair drooping in thick curls to his shoulders—that man dressed in a plain coat, and such odious home-made blue stockings—that is the Philadelphia printer, one Benjamin Franklin.

Rye Beach Post Office.

RYE CENTRE, Aug. 5.

The Journal seems to say that there never was a post-office at Rye Beach before the one recently established. The Journal may not be very well posted on the length and breadth of Rye Beach, and in order to give the public a correct statement of it and its mail facilities, it can be said that Rye Beach proper, begins at New Castle line, thence southwest six miles to North Hampton line near Little Boar's Head, and this new Rye Beach P. O. is located at the extreme southerly part of Rye, and close to the boundary line of North Hampton. Rye and Rye Beach proper has a post office that was established in the year 1840, with a mail twice a week from Portsmouth, distant 5 3-4 miles, and for the last 7 years a daily mail has been received from the Eastern railroad depot at Greenland, distant 2 3-4 miles, and a large increase of mail matter is delivered to upwards of 200 families. This office supplies the new cable station and all the cottages at Straw's Point and Concord Point, including the Foss Beach boarding houses. Four large and roomy hotels, with about twenty private boarding houses are located between Wallis' Sands and Little Boar's Head, and all of them are nearly full of boarders, with about twenty private cottages occupied with families from Concord, Manchester and other cities. The mail is always on time and brings in the course of the week over four hundred daily and weekly newspapers, together with a very large letter mail, including the English mail for new cable company, at Rye Beach. If the Journal desires further information about Rye Beach Post Office, it can be furnished at short notice.

Tramps Again.

The Manchester Mirror speaking of tramps and the manner of dealing with them, says:

We are not a shooting people,—not one man in twenty can, by daylight, when perfectly calm, hit a foot circle a hundred feet off with a common revolver once in three trials, and the men who can tumble out of bed half-asleep and shoot a dodging burglar in the dark are as scarce as any kind of men we ever heard of. We can all bang away at him, but he stands about as much chance of getting hit by our bullets as he does by the shooting stars. It is his business to understand this and he does it. Doubtless he would prefer not to be shot at, because he never wants to kick up a fuss, but as for any fears that his dirty hide will get damaged by bullet-holes, he hasn't any. It is safe to say then that the common revolver is as good, either as a preventive or as a cure. It neither scares nor shoots a tramp.

A dog is better,—a big one, able and willing to take a burglar by the throat and hold him until morning or help comes, or even a small one, whose honest bark will warn you of the approach of tramping thieves and warn them that they had best not come too near. Upon either of these we should place more reliance than upon a dozen revolvers like those in common use. If a pistol is needed, too, it needs to be a different one from those which have been sold for this purpose. A breech-loading shot-pistol, which will carry a heavy charge and scatter at a distance of twenty feet over the size of a cart-wheel, would very likely be of some service. With such an one a cool man, though shooting by sound rather than sight, would be very likely to plant shot enough in a tramp's carcass to keep him busy some time picking them out. At any rate, the chances of success as compared with a common revolver would be twenty to one. It is characteristic of a tramp that he is "all over the lot," and especially so when dodging out of a house into which he has never been invited, and a weapon to wing him must shoot "all over the lot." A shot-pistol is what the community needs now, breech-loading, single-barrel, of about navy size. One of them loaded with buckshot, or even birdshot, and fired at a tramp would "make him roost low," if he was within a decent distance. If it did not stop him on the spot it would put him in condition to be detected; he would be found at every halting place picking out shot!

Local Matters.

Jottings.

Among the guests at the Oceanic on Friday were Collector Simmons of Boston, Governor Person C. Cheney, Ex-Govs. Fred Smyth and Walter Harriman, Ex-Gov. E. F. Noyes of Ohio, U. S. Senator Cragin, Paymaster General James H. Watmaugh, Hon. B. F. Prescott, Secretary of State, Hon. Charles P. Sanborn, Speaker of the House, Hon. N. G. Ordway, Sergeant-at-arms of the U. S. Senate, Col. James I. Christie, Doorkeeper of the National House, State Treasurer Solon A. Carter, Cols. S. C. Fisher and L. H. Carroll, of Gov. Cheney's staff, Gen. A. B. Underwood, Surveyor of the port of Boston, Ex-Congressman A. F. Pike, Congressman Frank Jones, Hon. Chas. S. Whitehouse, Cols. John E. Bickford, A. H. Young and C. H. Murphy of Dover, Col. William H. Hackett, Senator J. F. Hall, Collector Howard, Inspectors John Pender, John H. Flagg and William O. Sides, Major Daniel J. Vaughan, Postmaster E. G. Peirce, Jr., Postmaster Geo. W. Colbath of Dover, Hon. Edward P. Hodsdon, Mayor of Dover, John R. Varney, Esq., editor of the Dover Enquirer, Gen. M. F. Wentworth of Kittery, Messrs. Aaron Young, N. F. Mathes, C. W. Tyson, Jas. E. Dennett, Frank Boutwell, Miss Boutwell, Mrs. Underwood, Mr. Tewsbury and the Misses Tewksbury, J. H. Nichols, Benj. Payn, a young son of Collector Simmons, Capt. James M. Selden and Lieut. Alfred Weston of the Revenue Marine, and representatives of the daily press of this city. By the courtesy of Collector Simmons, after dinner, the party, whose immediate duty which called them to the Shoals was the inspection of the breakwater which requires extensive repairs, and the discussion of a location for a signal station, made a trip to Boar's Head, but the fog shutting in, it was deemed best to make a harbor, the gentlemen landing at Fort Constitution, from whence they were brought up to this city in teams, Gov. Cheney's splendid span of horses being made especially useful. The trip was unanimously voted a great success.

The annual meeting of the Corporation of the Portsmouth Savings Bank, was held on the 4th inst. Marcellus Bufford, Esq., was chosen a member in the place of the late Dr. John H. Boardman, who had been a member 39 years. The following officers were re-electee: William Simes, President; J. F. Shores, Treasurer; W. H. Y. Hackett, Augustus Lord, Lyman D. Spaulding, Wm. L. Dwight, John Stavers, Joseph H. Foster, Wm. R. Preston, Samuel Adams, Wm. H. Rollins, Geo. L. Treadwell, True M. Ball John Knowlton, Charles Robinson, Joseph H. Thatcher, Charles H. Mendum, John Sise, B. F. Webster, E. P. Kimball, Trustees.

A barn in Newington belonging to Valentine M. Coleman, Esq., about half a mile from the P. & D. R. R. bridge, was struck by lightning during the heavy shower of Thursday afternoon and totally destroyed with 30 tons of hay, mowing machine, ox-wagon, horse-rake and other farming tools. Mrs. Mathes, living near, saw the clapboards fly from the gable end at the time of the stroke and a moment later the flames burst from the roof and spread so rapidly over the barn, which was 40 by 50 feet, that the neighbors, some of whom were on the spot in eight minutes, could do nothing to save anything within. Loss from $1400 to $1500. Insured for $1000 in Farmer's Mutual.

In obedience to the order of President Grant a salute was fired at the navy yard on Friday, one gnn each half hour from sunrise to sunset. The individual in charge seemed to appreciate the importance of the occasion which demanded his early rising from the delights of slumber, and put in a double charge, as if determined to have company in his morning devotions. The first report was what the boys call "an old sockdologer," and evidently satisfied the gun fiend, as it aroused every body within ten miles. There was less noise every half hour after that, there being no slumbers requiring interruption.

The fair at Rye Beach, at the Farragut House, in aid of the proposed church edifice to be erected there will close to-night at ten o'clock. It is in charge of Mrs. Colden, Mrs. Parke, Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. Slafter, Mrs. Abbot, Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Robeson, Mrs. Frazier, Jr., Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Doubleday, Mrs. Chauncy, and Miss Wilkes. A string band furnishes music.

Elder E. A. Stockman will preach tomorrow in the Advent chapel on Hanover street. The public are cordially invited.

There will be temperance meeting tomorrow morning at the Pearl street chapel and in the evening on Market Square.

A barn at Eliot Neck owned by Alex. Dennett and occupied by Henry Fuller was burnt Friday afternoon. Loss on barn about $150, on contents about $100. No insurance. The house narrowly escaped.

An Explanation.

[Communicated.]

Urged by a sense of duty in behalf of my professional interests, I wish to enter a protest in behalf of myself and several of my brother physicians who were concerned in a certain case. Those unacquainted with the facts in question will be apt to impugn the honor and integrity of the parties in the matter unless an explanation is given.

For the first few days, the topic of conversation in public as well as private circles has been directed to the recent unfortunate accident that occurred to John E. Rider, Esq., on the evening of July 30, and in connection with it, some expressions of contempt have been cast upon the physicians who attended him in his critical moments of pain and distress. There is no doubt that some one is the originator of certain reports that have given rise to the ridicule referred to, and the object thereof is well understood. But as only one side of the story has been told it is proper that the "true story" should be given, leaving the public to judge of the merits of the case.

In the first place, three reputable physicians were summoned to the scene of the accident at the urgent request of the patient, and after ascertaining the nature of the injuries, our most respected brother, Dr. J. F. Hall, took charge of the case, acting as head physician. Our personal friendship for Mr. Rider aroused our sympathies, and caused us to exert ourselves in his behalf, determining to do all that could be done to give him comfortable and speedy relief. Upon a minute examination of the case, we found a fractured jaw and some other minor injuries which were properly treated, consuming nearly three hours' time, at the expiration of which we left the patient in as comfortable condition as could be expected after such a severe accident. On leaving the house there was not the least doubt expressed by either of the three doctors in question that proper treatment had not been given, and perfect harmony existed between them in reference to the management of the case.

Two hours afterward another M. D. stepped in, and without our knowledge, a special consultation was called by physician No. 4, who urged as a reason therefor that the jaw was not properly set; the learned and skillful M. D. basing his conclusions upon the fact that the jaw could be moved! We do not dispute the honesty of this gentleman, but we ask what business had he to touch, (even by request of the family) a fractured bone which had been set by other physicians, without their presence? It is a well known fact that a fractured limb can be easily displaced by the simple manipulation of a meddlesome bombast.

Again, our learned friend thought that the restless condition of the patient was owing to an irritation caused by supposed sutures on the back part of the skull; saying that they must be removed. But what was our friend's surprise when he removed the plaster to find no sutures at all.

This unnecessary interference gave rise to the incorrect rumors afloat, which were aided and increased by an item in the Times of the following day, saying, that "at a late hour, the fractured jaw was set by Drs. Hall and Potter."

By the latter statement, it would appear that the fractured jaw was not at all reduced by the first attending physicians, and that such a necessary surgical operation was overlooked through ignorance or incapacity! Now I, for one, protest against such an unjust and contemptible insinuation, based only upon a fanciful whim. It is a pity that three legally authorized members of the medical faculty could not have seen, after three hours' of labor, that the jaw was not properly set. And if our friend and colleague, the ex-president of the Medical Faculty of this State, could not resist with more firmness the insult which was directed to himself and companions it is time for us to raise our voices and protest against farther abuses and ridiculous interferences. We claim to practice medicine in an educated community, and therefore expect to receive the benefits and protection of well developed principles.

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

—An exciting scene was witnessed in a New Orleans Court-room recently, the leading actors of which were a mother and her child and a charitable lady. Some five months ago Mr. Charles Astelle picked out of the street a half-naked and half-starved little girl of about seven years of age. This little waif of humanity was seemingly drifting about the city, without friends or a home. She was kindly cared for by Mrs. Astelle, and became warmly attached to her and her family. About three months ago the mother of the waif came to the surface and visited the child. At first she was satisfied to allow her to remain in the home she had found, but as time passed on she desired the possession of the child. Mrs. Astelle raised no objections further than to advise that the child be allowed to remain where she was. The mother was inexorable, and determined to have her. In this she was foiled, as the child refused to go with the mother, and the mother was not strong enough to take her by force. As a last resort, the mother, Pauline Gravies, applied for a writ of habeas corpus for her child, Cecile. During the hearing of the case in Court last week the child broke out into violent sobbing, and, with tears streaming from her eyes, begged the Judge in piteous tones not to give her to her mother. The little one through her tears said that her mother drank whiskey, and beat her, and that she was afraid of her. The Judge's sympathies were with the child, but he felt that he must obey the law, and so decided that the mother should have the child. The mother advanced to take her child. The child sprang from her chair and fled, screaming with terror, to the Judge. She grasped his arm and clung to him sobbing, begging, pleading that he would protect her. The Judge could stand it no longer. His humanity overbalanced his respect for the law, and he reversed his decision and commanded the child to be placed in charge of the young lady who had brought her into Court.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Forneroy, Vanquillin and Barnell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the urine excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Tree Tops as unsurpassed with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each, yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and interesting works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No work acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days, etc. The novel and awful creatures with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Pervert," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

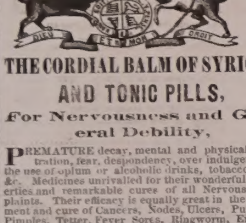
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swellings, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to all health, comfort, and even life itself; it left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

Picturesque Scenery and Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

THE WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL,

WARNER, (Merrimack Co.) N. H.,

Was opened for the reception of guests, July 20th, 1875.

CARRIAGES will be in readiness to run daily from the hotel over the new carriage-road to the top o Kearsarge Mountain, affording the finest views in New England.

Business men in Boston and vicinity can spend the Sabbath with their families in Warner, and still be in the city during business hours each day. Board from $1.50 to $2.50 per day.

EXCURSION TICKETS for round trip from Boston to summit of Kearsarge Mountain and return, good for three days' trip, including railroad fare, hotel bills, and carriage to the Mountain, will be furnished on application, by mail or the proprietor, for the small sum of $15 each person, and parties of ten or more, $12.50 each.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard MR. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

A PICTURE OF THE PAST.

BY GEORGE LIPPARD.

[Concluded.]

The three advance to the table. The parchment is laid.

Shall it be signed or not?

Then ensues a high and stormy debate—then the faint hearted cringe in corners—while Thomas Jefferson speaks out a few bold words, and John Adams pours out his whole soul.

Then the deep toned voice of Richard Henry Lee is heard swelling in syllables of thunderlike music.

But still there is doubt—and that pale faced man, shrinking in one corner, squeaks out something about axes, scaffolds and a—gibbet!

"Gibbet!" echoes a fierce, bold voice that startles men from their seats—and look yonder! A tall, slender man rises, dressed, although it is summer time, in a dark robe. Look how his white hand undulates as it is stretched slowly out, how that dark eye burns, while his words ring through the hall. We do not know his name—let us, therefore, call his appeal the speech of the unknown:

"Gibbet! They may stretch out necks on all the gibbets in the land—they may turn every rock into a scaffold, every tree into a gallows, every home into a grave, and yet the words on that parchment can never die!

"They may pour out blood on a thousand scaffolds, and yet from every drop that dyes the ax or drips on the sawdust of the block a new martyr to freedom will spring into birth!

"The British King may blot out the stars of God from His sky, but he can not blot out His words written on the parchment there! The works of God may perish—His word, never!

"These words will go forth to the world when our bones are dust. To the slave in the mines they will speak—Hope! to the mechanic in his workshop—Freedom; to the coward kings these words will speak, but not in tones of flattery? No, no! They will speak like the flaming syllables on Belshazzar's wall—The days of your pride and glory are numbered! The days of judgment and revolution draw near!

"Yes, the parchment will speak to the kings in a language sad and terrible as the trump of the Archangel. You have trampled on mankind long enough. At last the voice of human woe has pierced the ear of God and called his judgment down! You have waded on thrones over seas of blood—you have trampled on to power over the necks of millions—you have turned the poor man's sweat and blood into robes for your delicate forms, into crowns for your anointed brows. Now kings—now purpled hangmen of the world—for you come the days of axes and gibbets—for you the wrath of man—for you the lightnings of God!

"Look! How the light of your palaces on fire flash up into the midnight sky!

"Now, purpled hangmen of the world, turn and beg for mercy!

"Where will you find it?

"Not from God, for you have blasphemed His laws!

"Not from the people, for you stand baptized in their blood!

"Here you turn, and lo! a gibbet!

"There—and a scaffold looks you in the face!

"All around you—death—and nowhere pity!

"Now, executioners of the human race, kneel down; yes, kneel down upon the sawdust of the scaffold—lay your perfumed heads upon the block—bless the ax as it falls—the ax that you sharpened for the poor man's neck.

"Such is the message of that declaration to man, to the kings of the world! And shall we falter now? And shall we start back appalled when our feet press the very threshold of freedom! Do I see quailing faces around me, when your wives have been butchered—when the hearthstones of our land are red with the blood of little children?

"What are these shrinking hearts and faltering voices here, when the very dead of our battlefields arise, and call upon us to sign that parchment, or be accursed forever?

"Sign! if the next moment the gibbet's rope is round your neck! Sign! if the next moment this hall rings with the echo of the falling axe! Sign! By all your hopes in life or death, as husbands—as fathers—as men—sign your names to the parchment or be accursed forever!

"Sign—and not only for yourselves, but for all ages. For that parchment will be the next book of freedom—the Bible of the rights of man forever.

"Sign—for that declaration will go forth to American hearts forever, and speak to those hearts like the voice of God! And its work will not be done, until throughout this wide continent not a single inch of ground owns the sway of a British king.

"Nay, do not start and whisper with surprise! It is a truth, your own hearts witness it. God proclaims it. This continent is the property of a free people, and their property alone. God, I say, proclaims it! Look at this strange history of a band of exiles and outcasts suddenly transformed into a people—look at this wonderful exodus of the oppressed of the Old World into the New, where they came, weak in arms but mighty in Godlike faith—nay, look at this history of your Bunker Hill—your Bunker Hill—your Lexington—where a band of plain farmers mocked and trampled down the panoply of British arms, and then tell me, if you can, that God has not given America to the free?

"It is not given to our poor intellect to climb the skies, to pierce the councils of the Almighty One. But methinks I stand among the awful clouds which veil the brightness of Jehovah's throne. Methinks I see the recording angel—pale as an angel is pale, weeping as an angel can weep—come trembling up to that throne, and speak his dread message.

"Father, the Old World is baptized in blood! Father, it is drenched with the blood of millions, butchered in war, in persecution, in slow and grinding oppression! Father—look with one glance of Thine eternal eye, look over Europe, Asia, Africa, and behold evermore that terrible sight, man trodden beneath the oppressor's feet—nations lost in blood—murder and superstition walking hand in hand over the graves of their victims, and not a single voice to whisper, 'Hope to man!'

"He stands there, the angel, his hand trembling with the black record of human guilt. But hark! The voice of Jehovah speaks out from the awful cloud—'Let there be light again. Let there be a New World. Tell my people—the poor—the trodden down millions to go out from the Old World. Tell them to go out from wrong, oppression and blood—tell them to go out from this Old World—to build my altar in the New!'

"As God lives, my friends, I believe that to be His voice! Yes, were my soul trembling on the wing for eternity, were this hand freezing in death, were this voice choking with the last struggle, I would still, with the last impulse of that soul, with the last wave of that hand, with the last gasp of that voice, implore you to remember this truth—God has given America to the free! Yes, as I sink down into the gloomy shadows of the grave, with my last gasp I would beg you to sign that parchment, in the name of the God who made the Saviour who redeemed you—in the name of the millions whose very breath is now hushed in intense expectation, as they look up to you for the awful words—'You are free?'"

O, many years have gone since that hour—the speaker, his brethren, all have crumbled into dust, but it would require an angel's pen to picture the magic of that speaker's look, the deep, terrible emphasis of his voice, the prophet-like beckoning of his hand, the magnetic flame which, shooting from his eyes, soon fired every heart throughout the hall!

He fell exhausted in his seat, but the work was done. A wild murmur thrills through the hall—Sign? Hah? There is no doubt now. Look! How they rush forward—stout-hearted John Hancock has scarcely time to sign his bold name, before the pen is grasped by another—another and another! Look how the names blaze on the parchment!—Adams and Lee and Jefferson and Carroll, and now, Roger Sherman the shoemaker.

And here comes good old Stephen Hopkins—yes, trembling with palsy, he totters forward—quivering from head to foot, with his shaking hands he seizes the pen, he scratches his patriotic name.

Then comes Benjamin Franklin, the printer, and now the tall man in the dark robe advances, the man who made the fiery speech a moment ago—with the same hand that but now waved in such fiery scorn he writes his name.

And now the parchment is signed, and now let the word go forth to the people in the streets—to the homes of America—to the camp of Mister Washington, and the palace of George, the idiot king—let the word go out to all the earth.

And, old man in the steeple, now bare your arm and grasp the iron tongue, and let the bell speak out the great truth:

Fifty-six traders and farmers and mechanics have this day shook the shackles of the world.

Hark! Hark to the toll of that bell!

Is there not a deep poetry in that sound, a poetry more sublime than Shakespeare or Milton?

Is there not music in the sound that reminds you of those awful tones which broke from angel lips, when the news of the birth of Jesus burst on the Shepherds of Bethlehem?

For that bell now speaks out to the world that—

God has Given the American Continent to the Free—The Toiling Millions of the Human Race—As the Last Altar of the Rights of Man on the Globe—The Home of the Oppressed Forevermore!

News and Notes.

The republicans have carried North Carolina by ten thousand majority in the popular vote, but, owing to gerrymandering, the Constitutional Convention is close, with the probabilities in favor of the republicans. A Raleigh dispatch states that the republicans gain 17 and lose one delegate. Seven more are required to give them 61 out of 121 delegates. If the republicans hold the vote of 1874 it is more than probable they have elected a majority. There will not be more than six majority either way.

Nashua has lodged and fed 1050 tramps during the last year.

Jenny Lind still preserves the same blended expression of firmness and sweetness of temper, the same winning smile, and the same simplicity of behavior that characterized her earlier days. She dresses her hair precisely the same style as when in America, 25 years ago. It is but slightly tinged with frost, and is nearly as full and flowing as of yore. She has two daughters, one 18 and the other 20.

Joseph Young, eldest son of Brigham Young, died of congestive chills on Thursday at Nianta, Utah. He leaves four wives and a number of children.

Reports throughout the State are to the effect that the prospect for a medium apple crop this year, is very slim.

Mme. Nilson has been compelled to decline the liberal offer of $100,000 for 100 nights, made her by Mr. Max Strakosch of New York, on account of indisposition. She is now in Paris.

The bump of irreverence appears to predominate among the citizens of Marion County, Ohio. Gen. S. F. Cary, the inflation candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, went there to speak recently, and in their efforts to get together the usual "enthusiastic audience," a drummer asked an old settler if he was not going to hear the speech. "Wall, I rather think not," was the reply, coupled with this forcible but not especially polished commentary: "Of the two you may as well expect me to go to a skunk's funeral and kiss the corpse." After the inflation orator had departed, the following inscription was posted opposite the scene of his windy effort: "Cary and Bill Allen—two bushels of wind in a bushel bag."

P. P. Luther, editor of the Echo, at Brazil, Ind., shot at Samuel Riley, editor of the Miner, but without effect. Riley then beat Luther nearly to death in self-defence. Bystanders finally separated them.

It is a striking fact that there is only one democratic journal in the country, the Baltimore Gazette, which has the courage to say that its party cannot afford to succeed in Ohio this Fall. There are many others which believe in hard money, but unlike the Gazette, they follow Senator Thurman's lead, and put party above principle.—N. Y. Tribune.

It is reported from Titusville, Pa., that a combination of capitalists has been formed to buy up all the petroleum in the oil districts, pool it and then burn one-half of it in order to obtain advanced prices for the remainder.

An uncommon mortuary ceremony was that held at the grave of Marietta Ball at St. Albans, Vt., on the first anniversary of her murder. A sermon was preached, hymns were sung, and the cemetery was hung with black. Two hundred persons were present. Miss Ball was killed by a brutal assailant, who has not been discovered, although a society formed for the purpose has labored hard to detect him.

Mr Beecher and his party are said to be enjoying themselves hugely among the mountains, though they are somewhat annoyed by people who will stare at them.

The residence of Mrs Ellen Welsh in Laconia, occupied by herself and two other ladies, was entered by two burglars Thursday night. When the robbers went up stairs the light from the bull's-eye awoke Mrs. Welsh, whose screams frightned the men, who ran, pursued by her in her nightclothes. She followed them, firing a pistol at them three times. Knocking her down, the robbers abandoned their booty and ran. Mrs. Welsh was found insensible in the street with the discharged pistol by her side. There is no clue to the villians.

A small French child fell from a two story window in Conner's Block, at Manchester, and struck plump upon the sidewalk, but strange to say, was scarcely any injured.

Moses D. Page, of Dover, killed a fox on the 3d inst., while the varmint was in the act of making off with a chicken.

Mr. Pope, of Brookline, on his way to Milford, was hailed by a tramp, who demanded a ride. This being refused he drew a pistol, which missed fire three times. As the tramp jumped from a bank of earth his false whiskers dropped off. The affair took place in a thick woods.

The meagre details of a tragedy in the little town of East Fryeburg, on the Saco River, about fifty miles from Portland have come in, and from them it appears that something in the shape of a murder will be the subject of investigation in that township. A man named Hoyt died there recently from the effects of injuries received in a fight with a neighbor named Gilman last week. The cause of the trouble was a little girl, a daughter of Gilman, with whom Hoyt was seen in a barn, not far from the house, by the child's mother. They suspected him of evil intentions, and the father of the girl taxed Hoyt with attempting the ruin of his child. Hot words ensued and the belligerents came to blows, when Hoyt was badly punished. His death has caused the affair to be made public, as it was kept quiet before. Gilman has struck his tent and fled to parts unknown, evidently fearing that he might be needed in the matter. Careful scrutiny leads to the discovery that the girl suffered no injury and no attempts were made to injure her.

Ex-President Johnson was a believer in life insurance, and illustrated his faith by his acts to an extent that is rare indeed, even nowadays. The aggregate of the policies on his life is said to be no less than $350,000.

The question as to whether a woman is to be considered a widow because her husband is in prison for life has been decided in the affirmative by a California judge. The case grew out of the shooting of O'Neil in New York, some time ago, by James C. King. In his will the father of Mrs. King gave to his daughter a handsome annuity, and ordered that in case she became a widow all his estate should be given to her. Mrs. King and her husband lived in San Francisco for several years. King quarrelled with his father-in-law, Mr. Stott, and shot him. Mr. Stott lived two years after the shooting. King and his wife came to New York, and there they disagreed. She instituted a suit for divorce, and while the case was being heard before a referee King shot and killed O'Neil, who was a witness in the case, and was tried and convicted, and sentenced to the State Prison at Sing Sing for life. Mrs. King, through her counsel at San Francisco, recently made application for the distribution of her father's estate, on the ground that she was a widow. The executors of the estate strenuously opposed her application, and the Judge took time to study the case and give his opinion. In New York State a person sentenced to imprisonment for life is civilly dead, but there is no statute on the subject in California, and the Judge therefore took the responsibility of deciding the case in Mrs. King's favor and ordering the distribution of the estate. The San Francisco Chronicle says Mrs. King will receive a large fortune, and it is thought probable by those who know her that she will use much of that amount to secure, if possible, a new trial for her husband. King firmly believes that if he was granted another trial he would be liberated.

The only lady survivor of the Schiller disaster has arrived in New York. Her name is Mrs. Joens and her home is in Davenport, Iowa. After having recovered from the effects of the terrible ordeal through which she and her husband had passed, they went to their native town in Schleswig, Germany, where they spent upward of seven weeks in recuperating their strength. Naturally enough his wife had a strong reluctance to again crossing the ocean, and it was only after the most earnest persuasion that she could be induced to undertake the voyage. All the way over she was in constant dread and did not sleep an hour during any night. Mrs. Joens is a ruddy, pleasant-looking lady, apparently about 35 years of age.

Unless the indications are very deceptive the name of the next republican candidate for Governor of Massachusetts will be Alexander H. Rice. The Boston Transcript says: "Mr. Rice daily gains friends, and republican opinion is rapidly concentrating upon him as the only candidate whose nomination would prevent the re-election of the present popular Governor. Sagacious republicans in all parts of the State, who wish to place the Commonwealth on its old political track, see this to be the case, and are prepared to move accordingly."

A Sperm Whale at Rockaway.

Rockaway beach, always a pleasant spot for its surf bathing, for the past three days has had an additional attraction in the shape of the carcass of an immense sperm whale that was cast ashore on Tuesday afternoon. The storm which swept the coast that day put a stop to all bathing, and there were few persons walking on the beach. A young man employed in the Sea Side House, however, was on the shore in the afternoon, and looking out to sea he saw tossing about among the waves half a mile away what seemed to be a schooner bottom up. Assuming that some craft had been capsized by the storm, he watched the object drifting nearer and nearer. He was joined by several others, and it was soon apparent that the floating mass was not a vessel, but the carcass of some marine monster. The tide was higher than it had been for months past, and when at last the body was cast ashore, it was thrown with great force high and dry on the beach, and left stranded with the head beneath the body. It lay on its back, and was seen to be a sperm whale of the largest size. The stomach was a dirty white color with regular dark stripes, and part of the tail seemed to have been torn off. The great fins were twisted out of all shape, and it was not easy to tell without examination which end was the head and which the tail. There were several small gashes on the body, but no harpoon marks or any wounds likely to have caused the monster's death. That it had been dead several days was unpleasantly evident, and the theories relating to the injury from which it had died ranged from old age to a stroke from the screw of a steamer.

As soon as Mr. Wainwright of the Sea Side House heard of the marine property that his employe's vigilance had secured for him, he drove to the place where it lay, about three miles from the bathing houses, with the enterprising purpose of providing an interesting object for his guests to examine, by having the leviathan towed around into the still water and beached before the Sea Side House. He was astounded at its colossal proportions, and more so when he found, on measurement, that it was eighty feet long and forty-five feet in circumference. It was impossible to get it off the beach, and moreover, Mr. Wainwright was obliged to admit that it was not in exactly a fit condition to place before his house as an object for inspection. He contented himself, therefore, with cutting off one of its fins, which he found to be eight feet long, and removing a few of the smaller bones. Such a carcass ought to yield a rich harvest of the most valuable kind of oil, and with the whalebones, should be worth from $400 to $500. Mr. Wainwright proposed at first to "try it out" at once, but it was soon found that this would be difficult of accomplishment, owing to the lack of the necessary appliances, the exposed spot where the carcass lay, and the decomposition that had been for some time in progress. He therefore abandoned his original intention, and contenting himself with burying his trophies of bones and fin in the sand, he decided to present the remainder of the body to the inhabitants of Barren Island, who with their ripened experience of dead horses and mules, will undoubtedly make the best and most profitable use of the gift.

But there was another claimant to the oleaginous booty. Mr. Egbert B. Conkling says that he descried it far out at sea, and showed it to the other gazers; and that when he objected to Mr. Wainwright carrying it off to make an ornament for the water frontage of his hotel, Wm. Lowe and John Moore, two of the latter gentleman's employes, asserted, by force of arms, their master's right to the carcass, and drove Mr. Conkling off with a battered face. He complained before Justice Bennett of Jamaica that one of them had cut him over his eye with a knife, and they were arrested and held to answer.

Meantime the only profit accruing from the body of the whale has been reaped by the boatmen, who, sailing their craft from the Sea Side House on Wednesday, took large numbers of passengers around to the ocean, and landed them at the carcass.

Unless the inhabitants of Barren Island remove it, piecemeal, it will probably remain where it is, about twenty feet above low water mark, for several months, as the tide rarely rises, even in the stormiest weather, as high as it did when it cast the carcass ashore.

A Man of Nerve.

[Dowagiac Monitor.]

As a test of nerve, the recent experience of a wayfarer, travelling a wood road near Olympia, Washington Territory, was as remarkable as any on record. The man was a speculator, looking out wild land, and he trudged through the forest, following the almost unused path formed by an old road made by pioneers in the wilderness. His mind was devoted to one subject—the critical examination of the kind of trees upon the land about him, and of the character of the soil, and he failed to notice for some time a "pit-a-pat" upon the dead leaves near him. He at first scarcely looked down, when he felt something rubbing against his legs and heard a slight purring sound, but when he did look his heart came up in his mouth and a cold sweat started as suddenly as though he were suspended by a weak rope over Niagara. Pressing itself softly against his legs, twining about him as he walked, moving its flexile body swiftly, but with never a sound, turning up fierce eyes with something almost like a terrible laugh in them, was a huge cougar! No chicken was this man in the woods, but his account of the manner in which his hat was raised by his hair is not to be considered as apocryphal at all. Sleek and supple and muscular the beast glided about, and at intervals it would come closer again, and press its body against the legs of the man, the light touch making gooseflesh of every inch in his form. It was a terrible experience, that interview with the cougar in the forest primeval, and it was well for the man that his nerves were of the kind to do honor to a frontier adventurer. Steadily pursuing his course with steps that would falter occasionally, he kept on, and with him the beast continued its treacherous gambols. At times it would glide a few paces to the front, and roll over and over in the road, and wait for the man to come up, and then it would circle around him again until the impulse, almost too strong to be resisted, would come upon him to spring upon the brute, opposing fists to fangs, and ending the intolerable suspense at any risk. The movements of the terrible animal were but as the playing of a cat with a mouse, and the man knew it. The moment came, at length, when the strain could be borne no longer, and the man kicked desperately at the beast as it passed him. In an instant it bounded in front and crouched for a spring, growling hoarsely and showing its teeth. The man stopped and shouted hopelessly for aid, while the cougar did not spring at once, but appeared waiting to gratify its humor a little longer. The shout, fortunately, was not in vain.

There were hunters and dogs in the immediate vicinity, as rare fortune would have it, and the hounds dashed suddenly from the covert as the cougar, seeing them, leaped for a tree. A few moments later the beast fell a victim to bullets, and the man with whom it had taken a stroll was telling his story and trying to restore the normal condition of his nerves by internal applications from a small flask. It was one of the episodes which turn men's hair gray—one which would, doubtless, have brought death to a man with less nerve than the hero of the affair.

"A long pull and a strong pull" was that made last week by two young men belonging in Boston, John P. Gale and Thomas T. Lewis. They agreed to row from Gloucester to Portsmouth inside of twenty-four hours without a compass, there being a dense fog at the time—for a wager of $50. They left Gloucester on Thursday evening at six o'clock, stopped two hours at Rye Beach, and arrived here on Friday afternoon at five minutes before four o'clock, sixty-five minutes ahead of time. The boat was a small-lap streak, fourteen feet long.

Sad Calamity in Cincinnati.

[Cincinnati Gazette.]

The heroic little jackass which twice repulsed a raging lioness in single combat at the Zoological Garden on the 24th of last March, died yesterday of the wounds received in the encounter. This little jackass vindicated his race from the injustice of the literary similes of all ages. In classical literature, the royal family of the lion looks upon the ass with contempt, and wit found a ridiculous humor in the notion of the ass as a fighting animal. But this lioness was excited to fierce rage by the sight of the little jackass. She bounded through the bars of her cage and with her ponderous jaws seized the jackass by the flank. With great self-possession, he reached for the back of the lioness with the teeth, and gave her such a grip that she was glad to let go and slink away After such a royal encounter, the jackass was in no mood to be seized again by the halter. On evading the pursuit of the anxious attendants, the jackass again came in the vicinity of the lioness, when she bounded for him again, was met with his heels, and sent rolling down a gully. But her first assault upon him, when unsuspecting, wounded him cruelly, and after t his long lingering, he expired yesterday, and has gone where the good asses go. He vindicated his race from the ridiculous traditions of all ages, and showed that honest industry may be combined with heroic courage.

—A Michigan paper tells the following good story: A Front Street saloon keeper is a great historical scholar, and will argue for hours on issues, events and men of past celebrity. Old Preston was aware of this, and he dropped into the place one warm day last week and said: "By cracky, Jim, but this is warm! I haven't been so warm since old General Cass was President of the United States." "What!" said Jim, "General Cass never was President of the United States." Why, yes he was," replied Preston, with well-feigned astonishment. "I'll bet you the drinks for the house he wasn't," said the excited proprietor. "Done," answered the old man, and he drew forth his pocket-book unfolded a page of the Congressional Globe of 1848-9, and proceeded to read that President Taylor, having died on Saturday, and Vice-President Filmore not being at Washington, the President of the Senate, General Cass, became President of the United States until the following Monday, pending Filmore's inauguration. When the old man had finished reading, he looked around and said: "Come up, boys. A little Stoughton in mine, Jim. Must excuse ignorance, you know." Then he rambled out, while Jim rammed the bottles back on the shelf, soused the tumblers in the rinse, and as he wiped up the counter, remarked, "I have seen a good many mean men in my time, but for a first-class star old Preston can take the money."

—This characteristic anecdote of Andrew Johnson is now revived. During the canvass preceding his election as Governor of Tennessee in 1853, he appeared at a meeting with a drawn pistol. Laying it on the desk before him, he said: "Fellow-citizens, I have been informed that part of the business to be transacted on the present occasion is the assassination of the individual who now has the honor of addressing you. I beg respectfully to propose that this be the first business in order. Therefore, if any man has come here, to-night, for the purpose indicated, I do not say let him speak, but let him shoot." After waiting a moment with the pistol before him, he continued: "Gentlemen, it appears that I have been misinformed. I will now proceed to address you on the subject which has called us together."

—Such yarns as the watering-place correspondents get off nowadays! Olive Logan, for example, tells of a St. Louis girl at Long Branch who went to church last Sunday dressed prettily in her favorite color, blue. She got the hotel cashier to change her a five-dollar bill before she left because she wanted to contribute to the collection plate. But at the fatal moment when the vestryman stood before her presenting the plate, and every eye in church was riveted on her, she discovered that the big pin which she had at the last moment skewered into her skirt to make it sufficiently tight-fitting held her pocket in its wiry grasp, and with it the purse containing the five dollars in small currency. She was obliged to say no to the contribution-box, and her cheeks burned painfully.

—Several young ladies were sitting together on the balcony of the Clifton, Niagara, at night, when the moon, although "full" was not demonstrative. A natty little fellow approached the group and softly said, "Pussie, darling," whereupon all the young ladies jumped up and went toward him eagerly. He selected one and walked away with her. The other brides sat down, and told their respective Romeos, afterward, that it was "too ridiculous for anything," and that they "never were so embarrassed in the whole course of their lives."

—"I'll bet a sheep," said an old farmer to his wife, "that our boy 'Zekiel is going crazy!" "Why, what on earth makes you think so?" "'Cause he's grinning at the cart, and grinning at the pump, and grinning at the barn, and grinning at the oxen, and grinning at everything." "Nonsense!" said the experienced matron; "don't you know he received a love letter this morning?"

—"Another trial!" ejaculated the sick man starting up in bed with a look of pain and weariness upon his face. "Another trial," repeated his wife gloomily. "Well, Mary," he replied, falling back on his pillow, "you can discharge the doctor; I guess I want to die."—Brooklyn Argus.

—Sam Wilkeson has not yet contributed a cent toward that $100,000, and it doesn't look as if he meant to. In reply to a letter of solicitation he writes:

"Excuse me; I've bought a plough and a yoke of oxen, and am going West to grow up with the country."

—Woman's revenge—if she dies for it. As the bride got out of the carriage she caught her veil and tore it, and the bride groom was ill-natured about it. Then when the functionary said, "Will you have this man?" etc., she said "No," and that was the end of that marriage.

—A darkey called at Owensboro, Ky. the other day, and wanted to know "Does dis postorfis keep stamped antelopes?".

—The goose that was struck by lightning in St. Louis does not believe that feathers are a non-conductor of electricity.

—The Pope's extraodinary good health this summer is attributed to his daily use of sulphurous water baths.

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city, nor shall any seller of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land owned or occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Taking a Vote on Beecher.

[Detroit Free Press.]

As a train on the Lake Shore road was coming into Detroit recently a long-geared man who had been sleeping for two or three hours, suddenly awoke, rose up, and after a yawn and a stretch he took his plug hat in his hand, held it out to one of the passengers, and remarked:

"Let's vote on Beecher."

"Oh, go to thunder!" growled the man.

The tall man tore five or six leaves from his memorandum book, wrote "innocent" on some and "guilty" on the others, and started down the aisle.

"Madam," he said, as he approached the nearest lady, "I'd like to have you vote one of these tickets. Vote just as your conscience dictates, madam."

She refused to vote, and he dropped a ballot marked "innocent" into the hat," and passed to a man who, overcome by the heat, had fallen asleep.

"Here! you—what do you think of Beecher?" he asked, shaking the sleeping man.

"Durn you, sir—durn you!" roared the man as he sat up.

"Which way do you vote?"

"G'way from me, or I'll mash the top of your head down on to your collar bone!" yelled the aroused sleeper, lifting his big red fist.

The ballot-box man passed to a boy about ten years old, and inquired:

"Bub, what do you think about Beecher?"

"I dunno," replied the boy; "father said he'd lick me if I said anything about it."

A ballot of "guilty" was dropped into the hat, and the man passed down to a dreary-looking old chap, who was rolling a bit of plug tobacco under his tongue.

"Well, old friend, what do you think of Beecher?" was the inquiry.

The dreamy chap got up, tossed his quid out of the window, and calmly took the canvasser by the throat and jammed him over a seat and hit him twice on the chin. It was all over before anybody could interfere, and, as he resumed his seat, he looked back at the canvasser, who, was half stunned and gazing around in the greatest astonishment, remarked:

"I promised my dying wife I'd lick the next man who said Beecher to me, and now you keep away."

The canvasser pushed the dents out of his plug hat, borrowed a pin to mend his coat collar, tied a wet handkerchief around his throat, and sat down and fell into such a train of reflection that the peanut boy had to speak to him four times over before he was aroused.

—Shearman says that Beecher doesn't kiss any more than any other preacher. This makes the annual number of clerical kisses in the United States 27,394,486, without counting the legitimate domestic article.—Graphic.

ZERO REFRIGERATOR

ZERO.

Why the Improved Zero Refrigerator has taken premiums over all others:

It requires less than one half the ice to run it. It dispenses with the nuisance of having a drip pan under it. It is a refrigerator and water cooler combined. It has the dryest provision chamber. It is built in the best manner and style of design. It is the cheapest to buy and it is a perfect Meat, Fish, Fruit and Ice preserver. THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourneroy, Vanquillin and Barruell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would sell in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases there remains but 20 cents to be paid in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the following novels:

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of long ago. Let a guide, familiar as he is with such an air of candor in the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if any of what exists or are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself it left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TILTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial result from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first class accommodations, at moderate prices.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Ice Cream Freezer makes cream SMOOTH, LIGHT and ALL ALIKE from the top to the bottom of the can. The tub being closed at the end, and perfectly air tight, prevents the waste of ice by the action of the atmosphere, and secures a uniformity and intensity of cold within the freezer unequalled by any other machine. ☞ The saving of Ice alone will pay the whole cost of a Freezer in a single season. The Tub NEVER needs refilling with ice during freezing, even with the largest sizes.

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

THE HIDDEN TREASURE.

[B. P. Shillaber, in the Independent.]

John Wentworth, Royal Governor, the last
That in New Hampshire bore vice regal sway,
Held court at Wolfeborough, by a lake, remote
From care of office, then made onerous
By the fierce restlessness of those he ruled,
Who caught the living spirit of the hour
And threatened in the mood of discontent.
Portsmouth was turbulent, although respect
Checked violence 'gainst harm to genial John,
For all owned kindly fealty to him,
Although detesting his authority.
He was of Boston lineage and Harvard brand,
A generous, courtly, cultivated man,
Of tastes refined, with every wish awake
The people of his care to benefit.
Broad roads he builded, and new ways devised
To give New Hampshire her predestined rank;
And Dartmouth felt the kindness of his heart
In many offices of generous care.
But "Royal Governor!" his title, chafed
The temper of his people, and he flew
To this, his sylvan realm, for peace and rest.
He haply found it, did his buxom dame,
Widow of Atkinson, in ten days wed,
Post nubila at Atkinson's demise,
(What time, in going from the nuptial rites,
Did Arthur Brown, the rector, fall down stairs,
And, tributary to the season, break an arm,) Admit of peace domestic, branch of which Were worse than din of direst politics.
His stately manse stood smiling by the shore,
A pile of goodly station, since destroyed
By fire which licked it to its cellar walls.
Broad avenues connected with the road,
O'erarched by sturdy trees, while, back of all,
And far on every side, stretched hill o'er hill,
Giving incentive to the lively chase,
Where game abounded and adventure becked
The daring hunter to his best essay.
A hospitable, cheerful home it was.
Amenities of old-time neighborhood
Existed thereabout without a check,
And one could scarcely dream the cloud suspent
So soon to merge the land in hostile flood!
'Twas springtime, and the glory of the year
Was seen on verdant upland, vale and mead:
The trees were rife with blossom, and the spray
Mellifluous with birds, while the green sod
Sparkled and glowed in jewelling of flowers.
Gay pleasure-bonts went gliding o'er the lake,
Their white sails gleaming in the ruddy sun,
While from the teeming bosom of the wave
Were struggling drawn bright finny denizens,
To stir the taste with gustatory thrills—
When murmurs came, at first, of Lexington,
And the bold stand the yeomanry had made
'Gainst that prerogative which Wentworth held,
And then the full-toned clarion's fearful breath
Proclaiming that the hour of strife had come!
The land was rising, kingly rule was broke,
And gloomy eyes were bent on courtly John,
Though well content that he should o'er remain,
Could he of his commission be divest.
Then came the secret order to depar..
The Governor, too far from Barclay's ships,
Packed bag and baggage for a speedy flight.
The coach of state, roiled to the mansion door,
Hid by the night, received a weighty load.
Gay Lady Wentworth and the precious plate,
With its armorial bearings, and such cash
As then in argent sheen the coffers lined,
The Governor the last, who backed himself,
In stately silence, by my lady's side.
Mount quickly, coachman! Footman, take your place!
On rolls the coach in cumbrous tardiness,
And from the window Wentworth looks his last
On his broad acres, with a painful sigh,
While Lady Wentworth dreams of ball and rout
'Neath better auspices and loyal skies.
But heavy grew the way, the horses strove
And foamed with wearying effort to advance,
Until, quite failing, they no effort made.
The treasure must be left, or else the dame,
Its half equivalent—forbid the thought!—
And there beneath the solemn midnight stars
The earth received in trust the precious store.
No more delay. The harborage was gained.
In Portsmouth, safe beneath the royal guns.
Did Wentworth tarry till rebellion took Such sturdy presence that it was not safe
For royal governor to linger there;
And so he passed forever from the scene.
He ne'er regained the treasure hid in earth,
And no man knoweth who re about't was hid.
The path he went, traditional alone,
Affords no clue to its dark resting.
Though many seekers have essayed the task —Running down through the century of years—
Of finding the so-much-desired prize.
And even now, at times, dim lights are seen
At night, when honest folks should be in bed,
Dancing about the meadow and the wood,
In hands of seekers for the buried pelf,
Led on by those who claim that they can see
Through all the mysteries of heaven and earth.
The earth is honeycombed with punctures made
By prodding iron bars, over all
A monumental disappointment reigns.
Perhaps John Wentworth guards the spot himself,
Not yet selected his adopted heir.

Changes in the Earth's Surface.

[Scientific American.]

It has been proved that the whole Pacific coast, especially California, with all its mountains, is perpetually rising, and that at a comparatively rapid rate. The land containing in its bosom our great American lakes is slowly sinking; while southern Indiana, Kentucky, and the surrounding States are rising. Geological investigations prove that our great lakes, except Ontario, had formerly a southern outlet; until, by gradual northern depressions and southern upheavals, a northern outlet was formed from Lake Erie into Ontario, 40,000 years ago. This outlet, the Niagara river, is still wearing away its channel. The division line of the watershed south of the lakes and the Mississippi valley has since that time been steadily traveling southward; and when Chicago recently turned the waters of Lake Michigan, through the Chicago river, into the Mississippi valley, the old state of affairs was artificially reestablished.

New Jersey is sinking, with New York city and Long Island, at the estimated rate of about 16 inches per century. The coast of Texas is ascending at a comparatively very rapid rate, some observers stating that it is as much as 30 or 40 feet in the last half century.

Combining these observations with the results of the recent deep soundings of the United States steamer Tuscarora in the Pacific Ocean, we find that the bed is evidently a sunken continent, abounding in volcanic mountains some 12,000 feet high, many of them not reaching the surface of the ocean, and others which do so forming the numberless islands of the Pacific. The study of the coral rocks proves that this sinking has continually been taking place during several centuries, and observations of the coast will undoubtedly reveal the fact that it has not yet ceased.

The most eminent German geologists and ethnologists now maintain that the locality of man's primitive origin, the seat of the so-called Paradise, was in the Pacific Ocean south of Asia, whence the race slowly diffused itself northward to Asia, westward to Africa, and eastward to Australia. When the great Pacific continent slowly sank, so that the ocean commenced to fill the valleys man retreated to the mountains, which, by, continued sinking, transformed into islands, and now form the many groups of Polynesia. The insularity of thus preserved races was not productive of civilization, which requires conflict, in which the superiors in the end gain the victory over the inferiors. In those islands, the inferior races where preserved for want of this conflict, hence their savage condition even at the present day; while primitively the greatest advance took place at the spot of the most intense conflict, the continent of Southern Asia.

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1875.

Ohio.

The political event of the year will be the Ohio election, and its great uncertainty makes the present contest exceedingly interesting. Gov. Allen was chosen by about 800 majority at the last gubernatorial election, the struggle for the legislature overshadowing all else. Ex-Gov. Noyes, the republican candidate for re-election, was understood to be an active aspirant for the U. S. Senatorship, and his attention with that of Senator Thurman was principally confined to the close districts, two-thirds of which elected republican members. But the counties where the republicans were strongest returned democratic members enough to give the control of the legislature to the democracy, and greatly to the surprise of both parties, the democratic State ticket was elected. This result was aided by the failure of 60,000 republicans to vote, and William Allen was elected although the democratic vote was 20,000 less than usual. The discontent that spread over the country on account of the Credit Mobilier scheme, the back pay swindle, and the condition of business, led to this result directly.

The present campaign is noticeably different from any that has preceded it. The mortifying failure on the part of thousands of republicans to appear at the polls last year bids fair at the coming election to be followed by an unusually full republican vote. The catering of the democratic legislature to the Catholic element has developed a strong opposition, and the liberal vote of 10,000 is likely to leave the democracy and be cast for Hayes, the republican candidate for Governor, for this and other reasons. The German element, which has gradually been leaving the republican organization, is strongly favoring it now on anti-Catholic grounds. Notwithstanding all these favorable symptoms of republican success, the democracy, encouraged by their unexpected victory of last year, and aided by the united Catholic strength, hope to bring out their reserve and poll for Gov. Allen a larger vote than he received before. This alone will not give them success. A full republican vote for Hayes would elect him by 40,000 majority. But there is another issue—and a most important one, and on that issue the contest is liable to hinge.

The democratic State convention resolved in favor of "rag-money," and the democratic orators are parading the State, pleading for more greenbacks. The republican convention adopted a hard money platform, yet quite a minority of republicans favor inflation. The ignorant and unthinking classes, many of whom are out of employment, are easily convinced by democratic orators that more greenbacks mean more money, and more money means prosperity to them. This is specious pleading, yet effective. Inflation puts specie payment farther off. Contraction brings it correspondingly near. Inflation puts a supposititious value on property. Contraction makes that valuation actual. The nation owes a great debt and every honest man wants it paid. The issue of greenbacks increases the debt and postpones payment. The Ohio republicans occupy the position that the whole party must assume in the coming Presidential election. The Ohio democrats occupy the position that their party is likely to assume next year, if a victory crowns their present efforts.

As contraction tends to the shrinkage of values and inflation makes a bad matter worse, the party that has the control of the nation must suffer directly from a failure to offer any remedy. The hard times of last year have extended to this, and many men unable to see clearly will deposit their votes in a manner to show their antagonism to the present order of things. It is a striking fact that the democratic organization is more likely to be controlled wrongly than otherwise. In an emergency it fails of courage and prompt exertion, in the main. The republican organization contains the same element in a far less degree, but that element is never able to control the organization. The true physician never temporizes, but acts with decision. The country is sick and there are two physicians offering their services—the republican and the democratic. The former thinks cauterizing the best method for a a return to a healthy state of existence. The latter prefers to let the proud flesh grow, for temporary advantage, even though the patient suffer in a few years to a far greater extent.

To put off the day of trouble at any cost is the lesson of the democratic experiment in Ohio. It has its temptations and its immediate sympathy. Few if any democrats will leave their party because it is wrong. History shows it. The few hard money men in the democratic ranks of Ohio will not fail to vote the straight ticket, following Senator Thurman in his abandonment of principle. With an undoubted popular majority of 40,000 in the State, the republicans to-day are not sure of success, because there are thousands among them who are shaky on the financial question, who are even now debating in their minds the question of deserting to the inflation side.

It is this element and this alone that renders Ohio a doubtful State. If Gov. Allen should succeed by a pronounced majority, the inflation heresy would spread like wildfire during the next twelve months, with a probability of infecting the whole democratic party. The issue of the Presidential election would then be forecast-hard money vs. rag money, with the republican party entrenched in the only position where success would be deserved.

News and Notes.

Now let the earth rejoice! The Treasury robbers have been captured and Gen. Spinner is free from all blame connected with the robbery. Benj. B. Hallock, a dismissed clerk, and William H. Ottman, a Washington bar-keeper, are arrested as the guilty parties. Hallock has made a full confession.

The republican majority in North Carolina will reach 15,000. How's that?

Following the example of the Beecher jury the Mormon jury before whom John D. Lee was tried for being a leader in the Mountain Meadow massacre, failed to agree, nine being for acquittal and three for conviction. The Mormon influence over the jury was exactly similar to that of Plymouth church over the Beecher jury.

Donaldson's fiancee thinks he will materialize yet, and she ought to know.

Mr. Wm. H. Fisk, of Manchester, who had a cancer cut from his face in Boston, a short time since, is failing fast, and his death is looked for at any moment by his friends.

Banks and Lamar! The ticket is natty, but it lacks winsomeness.—Graphic.

The New York Graphic clings to the hope that Donaldson and his companion are yet in the Canadian woods and will emerge before long in safety.

An additional recovery of $100,000 in specie has been made from the wreck of the Schiller.

Senator Morton of Indiana has made a speech against inflation. The period has gone by, he says, when any increase of currency would do good in checking the panic, and believes that it must run its course, until times are relieved by economy, industry and the operation of general causes.

Mr. Beecher says that he has "taken Christ with him into the mountains." The same was done long ago; see Matthew iv., 8.

The twenty-seventh assassination has just been reported growing out of a feud between the Ballingers and the Russells in Williamson county, Illinois. This cold-blooded butchery has been going on for two years or more. Men have been shot down while sitting in their houses, riding on horseback or in wagons, or walking along the public highway. Not only members of the two families, but friends or acquaintances, or persons who publicly comment upon the murders, are shot down without a note of warning.

In some portions of Nebraska on Saturday the air was full of grasshoppers which had been flying south for two days. Corn is in danger. The other crops are harvested.

It is now stated that Piper, who was arrested for the murder of Mabel H. Young, will be first tried for the previous murder of Bridget Landergan. The detectives who have been working up the evidence against Piper think the case against him is stronger as to the murder of the Landergan woman than it is as to that of the little girl in the belfry.

The Cocheco Mills at East Rochester, which have been shut down for a month, were started up again on Monday under the management of Hon. Charles S. Whitehouse of Gonic.

The cholera has made its annual appearance in the region where it had its origin. Damascus is represented as suffering terribly under the scourge, the mission schools closed, the Christian quarter deserted, four hundred cases reported daily with an unknown number concealed, and people dying in the streets.

The Brooklyn jury haven't got their extra pay yet.

On Saturday morning, burglars entered the grocery store of Mr. C. K. Sanborn, at Laconia, and, being overtaken just as they were departing by Mark Keason, a clerk in the store, one of them fired a pistol at him, the ball striking his watch exactly in the centre, piercing the case, crystal and dial, and lodging among the works. Had it not been for the watch, which was in the upper left hand pocket, the bullet would have entered his body within an inch of his heart. After the shooting he was struck over the head with a sand billy, and lay unconscious for several minutes. The villains fled and no track of them was discovered, though the country round was scoured by a hundred armed men.

A tramp was put off the night express at Lake Village, Friday night, and immediately arrested and taken to Laconia, Saturday, and sent to the House of Correction under the tramp law.

A despatch from Gaitineau says three children, while picking berries, were killed by a bear. Only the feet and arms of one of them can be found.

—Bismarck now has forty-two decorations. They comprise German, Belgian, Greek, Italian, Dutch, Austrian, Spanish, Swedish, Turkish, Tunisian, Persian and Siamese orders, also the Danish Danneborg grand cross, the grand cross of the French Legion of Honor, the Austrian iron crown, the San Marine grand cross, and a medal for saving a drowning man, this last being the first in point of date.

Finance Explained to Financiers.

["John Paul" in N. Y. Tribune.]

"Who will step aboard of your balloon now, Mr. Paul?" asked my financial friend, when news came that a great firm had failed.

With fine irony Isaac persists in calling the present system of inflation my balloon. And this is the way he always approaches the subject when he wants to get at my financial views.

We were out on the race-course, and I was feeling badly. It was not that I had drawn Olitipa in a hat pool; it was not that I had laid money on Leander when I should have chosen the Countess; it was not that in the steeple chase I took Trouble and had only that and a pool-ticket for my pains; it was none of these aggravations that weighed upon me. But my spirit was oppressed by the thought that possibly I had given my financial views in a late letter from Long Branch—very late indeed in getting into print—prematurely to the public; that I, perhaps, had precipitated a panic, involved "the street"—possibly some sidewalks, as well—shattered credits, destroyed confidence, moved banks to call in their loans, upset the balance of trade, interfered with the iron industry, done a good many other of the things which a man is apt to do if he doesn't shut his teeth together and carefully refrain from telling the truth. Sooner than have brought calamity upon the community in that way I'd have stayed at Long Branch, playing croquet on the sand—with hearts for balls and fans and clouded bamboo canes for mallets—even until now.

Sometimes I think I will never write about finance again. As for theology, that is not for me in the future. It is quite enough to be bowling down long established houses in this way, without bringing the established churches about one's ears in a rain of brick and mortar. Those who can't write without setting folks to thinking, and producing social and business convulsions, had better either not write at all, or else write for the North American Review, where they can do no harm.

Well, Mr. Sherman turned to me—we were sitting in the Grand Stand—and wanted to know who would step aboard my balloon now.

"Everybody," I replied "if only one fool can be found to lead." A drop of nine per cent. in an eight per cent. dividend-paying stock is a tempting thing. People are prone to "buy for a reaction." Sometimes they get it. A friend of mine bought Wabash at thirty and it reacted on him so severely that within the month he went into another branch of business entirely—clamming. He was always fond of fishing, he says, and he finds health as well as a livelihood in his present employment. As compared with the front the clam cannot be called a game fish, perhaps, but then he doesn't react, you know. In this respect it differs from my No. 10 Scott gun. That does. With only five drams of powder aboard, and not much room to stretch out in, either, it reacted on me the other day to such an extent that I went over and lay down on the other side of the lot, and it kept on reacting for five minutes or so—kicked me twice while I lay on the ground and a third time as I was getting up. There's a good deal of dicing and ornamental work about the wood-work of that gun, and a prettier piece of English walnut never you saw, but I don't put that fancy stock to my shoulder again in a hurry. And I don't get behind any fancy stock in the future if I can help it. Lady Clipper and Warlock reacted on their riders to-day. Warlock's jockey didn't get up as soon as the horse did. I'm not riding Warlock's nowadays so much as I once was. One must have long legs when he straddles lightning, and then I don't know that he has an easy thing of it.

A friend of mine well known for his philanthropy as well as for the breadth—I might say the exceeding latitude—of his financial views (do I violate any confidence in saying right out that his name is Briggs?)—has one formula by which he figures up in a moment the worth of any stock on the market. Thus: "If a New York Central Railway First Mortgage bond which only pays seven per cent. per annum, semi-annually, is worth one hundred and sixteen, what is a canal or telegraph stock worth that pays two per cent. quarterly? Easy enough to get at it." And out comes a proof-sheet of an article in a religious journal for figuring paper, and a pencil. "A simple problem in the Rule of Three. As 7 is to 8, so is 116 to the answer. Here you have it—7 : 8 : : 116 to 132 4-7. Any stock that pays two per cent. quarterly is worth 132 4-7, gentlemen."

I remember we once operated in South Carolina Januarys and Julys together. Briggs figured up what they were worth, and I bought them. They carried on their face six per cent. in gold, and sold at 62 1-2. Briggs' famous equation was this: "If New York Central stock which only pays 8 per cent. is worth par, what ought South Carolina Januarys and Julys that pay six per cent. in gold to sell for?" The gold rate fluctuated so frequently that it was difficult to make an exact calculation, but where figures fail Briggs has a wonderful genius for guessing. And he guessed they were worth 85. John Swinton guessed they were, too, and bought a hat full. Then we went over to Adams Express—so called because of the irregular way it leaves, I fancy,—and told Gen. Sandford we guessed he had better buy some. But he guessed not. We thought he was mistaken then, but it has since occurred to me that possibly we had the wrong of it. However, do not let anything I may have said lead you to believe that my friend Briggs has not a great financial head. Daboll was a fool to him, so far as figures are concerned; and when it comes to the Wealth of Stagnations, or The Origin of Specie, the little treatises of Adam Smith and Darwin are literally nowhere.

As I was going on to say, Mr. Sherman only asked me who was going to get aboard of my balloon, as the simplest way of getting at any financial views.

"Everybody will get aboard of it," I replied; "everybody, not excepting Russell Sage. None of them want to go up in a balloon exactly; it isn't a through trip that they contemplate—only a little turn. Each man intends to get out before his neighbor; none goes in to stay. The banker on this side of the way expects to step safely out, and, himself standing on the ground, see the banker across the way, who is not quite so smart, and will leave a moment later, floating about high in the air. That the balloon may burst before anybody steps down and out, or get away with them all before the most timid sees that the ropes are frayed, is a contingency which suggests itself to none. It's only for a turn, boys; the gas is all right and with a 'put' for a parachute the fall will be easy to you at the worst—step aboard."

"What do you really think of this failure of Duncan, Sherman & Co?" demanded my friend petulantly. "These glittering generalities are all very well, but please bring your great intellect down to the contemplation of details for a moment."

"Since you wish my honest opinion, I reply that the failure of this one house is a trifle in itself considered—a thread in events of very little importance, when separated from the complex web of the present and the future wherewith it is inextricably interwoven. True, as Briggs says, the failure of Duncan, Sherman & Co. will not reduce the earnings of the New York Central Railroad or the Western Union Telegraph in any appreciable degree; it does not in reality make the stock of either of those great corporations one dollar the less valuable. But that house was one of the great depositories of the surplus money of the public. Notwithstanding the immense crop of prophets after the event, which has so suddenly sprung into luxuriant life, that house stood as a synonym for safety. I have never kept any money there myself, but I have always thought that if ever I had any to keep, to that house I would go with it. Now if it suddenly appears that a house which so long stood a seeming tower of strength, a commercial pillar on which it was safe to lean; if it suddenly appears I say, that this tower, this pillar, has been honey-combed for years, dry-rotted at the base, what are we to think of houses of less character and prominence, of houses which there is more reason to regard as shaky? Where are we to put our surplus money? In whom are we to trust—I say we, but I mean they; they who have treasures of earth, vile dross, filthy lucre, spondulix, National currency, the ready? Suppose all these fortunate ones suddenly make up their mind that a man's money is nowhere so safe as in his own keeping, and ask for it at about the same time? The little stream that occasionally trickles through the walls of a reservoir is of little consequence in itself; it becomes serious only when viewed as an exponent of the mighty but silent and secret force at work behind. As the forerunner of an army of waters, the herald of a break in the dam, it has a terrible meaning. At this time, when a vast amount of capital is lying idle because of the general unwillingness to invest, an unwillingness consequent upon a want of confidence in existing values, a failure of this kind has rather a serious significance. If to the distrust of investments you add a distrust of depositories, men may feel like putting their money into a dry goods box and sitting down on it—then you have a panic."

"You have alluded to New York Central several times, Mr. Paul. Do you not consider that a safe security at present prices, Sir?"

"When you put this question to me, point blank, Mr. Sherman, my position becomes an embarrassing one. You know the close terms of confidential relationship which existed between Commodore Vanderbilt and myself, ever since he declared his scrip dividend of eighty per cent. As he did not inform me that he contemplated such a movement, and consequently I incautiously permitted myself to be caught short of the stock, a feeling thus sprang up between us, a feeling of love on the one side and respectful admiration on the other, which continues to this day. When you further know that he killed several of my relations above Forty-second street before the present Fourth avenue improvements were completed, you will understand in some degree the obligations I am under to him. Nevertheless, common sense, justice, a sense of my own position, a consciousness of what I owe to the world, all compel me to ask of you, calmly and dispassionately, if New York Central be worth the price it has been selling at for some time past, why in thunder and the name of a most unconscionable Congress does it drop several per cent. on the mere rumor of Commodore Vanderbilt's illness? If it drop so on the rumor of his death, a rumor so oft repeated that the thing has become so monotonous, a rumor which no one ever believes—how much will it drop when he really does die? And that he will not, cannot, live forever is reasonably certain, I think. For all men must some day die; the Commodore is but a man—therefore some day the Commodore must die! I hope I have proved this fact by a syllogism too clear and direct to admit of contradiction—for if it can be contradicted, his satellites will be round me in a minute. 'Tis a general impression, evidently, that when the Commodore dies Central stock will drop from ten to twenty per cent. Now that death-day cannot be very far distant. He is in his eighty-second year, and more signs of failing are evident upon him this Summer than ever before. Seldom if ever does he go out to the races; he falls gently to sleep in the afternoon with a good book either in his hand or by his side; he has reduced the play in point-euchre from five dollars to one; he does not disembowel his antagonists now so completely as formerly. In this he shows signs of failure, mentally as well as physically. His nearest friends watch his health like hawks; no one intends to have much Central stock on hand at the time of his death, but in the meantime pretty much all are willing to trade in it. They take the chances of an old man's life. Only a feeble pulse, a fluttering breath, only, stand between many an operator and beggary; yet they court the chance. To me it looks like skating on thin ice; but—each to his own fancy. Now if New York Central stock be really worth its present price, tell me, will you, why the Commodore's death should depress it at all? Certainly the taking off of almost any other railroad president you can name would be a signal benefit to the road he represents. Do men of means, men of influence, men of brains, men like myself, in fact, propose to wrap the drapery of a stock around them and lie down to dream upon it when its value depends so much on an old man's health, to say nothing of his life. If the stock had not been watered to a most unprecedented degree, if it, like almost every other security dealt in at the Stock Exchange, were not inflated, ballooned, to bursting, would it throb in mad unison when the President's blood was stirred with fever? rise with his recovery? sink like lead with a suspicion that his eyelids were drooping in death? I only ask these questions, understand; I assert nothing. But it does seem to me that only a terribly watered stock could be so wildly upheaved by a pain or a pimple. If it cannot stand to-day on the merit of the road, if the direction be incompetent, and all hinges upon one man, be that man young or old, I want none of it. So with religion when it was claimed that its very life hung trembling in the balance of Mr. Beecher's innocence or guilt. If there were nothing of religion more than that, better far, it seemed to me, that the feeble light should flicker out at once. But the contrary was true. And more than this, I tell you, Mr. Sherman—"

A deep breathing broke on my ear; I turned round to see who had a fit. There sat my friend Sherman, a programme of the race in his hand and a peaceful smile upon his face, fast asleep with his head upon Mr. Stranahan's shoulder—who was also asleep.

"How long have those gentlemen been thus comatose?" I asked of a bystander.

"Ever since you've been blowing," he whispered; "don't stop now, or you'll wake 'em."

But these are my views of the situation, and if the reader sleeps over them he may wake to them. I am sorry I was born this way, knowing nothing about anything but theology and finance, but I can't help it. Some pork always will boil so.

—A Frenchman more noted for his conceit and for a certain amount of success with the fair sex than for the cleanliness of his linen, was posing the other day before a beautiful and witty woman, when he delivered himself of this rather arrogant sentiment: "Women, I change them as I do my shirts." Ah," said the fair one, looking attentively at the collar of his shirt, "I should never have believed you so constant."

Jottings.

On Friday, as a team in which were two ladies and five children was crossing the bridge at Dover Point, the horse became frightened by an awning on a boat which was passing underneath, and began to prance. The lady who was driving, fearing that he might wreck the carriage or spring over the rail, whipped him into a trot, being desirous to get over the bridge quickly. As she did so she casually noticed a sign forbidding horses to go over the bridge faster than a walk on penalty of a fine. This led her to pull in the affrighted animal, and just as she had done so, she saw that she was within a few feet of the open draw, which is a swinging draw. Had she allowed the animal to have gone on at the speed he had attained he would have plunged into the boiling flood below, and seven lives would have been lost. There is a gate or bar on the bridge to prevent just such occurrences and the criminal neglect of the toll-gate keeper to use it might have resulted in a very serious catastrophe.

Walking down Washington, street, Boston, recently, on our way to the depot, we dropped into Beal & Hooper's old store to pay a call to the new firm of Messrs. Mendum, Whidden & Co., and were astonished at viewing their elegant stock of new furniture and upholstery goods, never before realizing that mere wood could be brought into such artistic shapes or so handsomely embellished. We would strongly advise our friends who go to Boston, to visit this store, as they will be heartily welcomed by several Portsmouth boys. Mr. Chas. A. Mendum is well known as being a grandson of Portsmouth (as is also Mr. Whidden, his partner,) and having been with Beal & Hooper for many years. We were also pleased to meet Mr. E. E. Bradbury, who we are sure will be glad to see his numerous Portsmouth friends. The famous designer, Mr. J. Wayland Kimball, is also connected with this house, and attends to all ordered work. We found the salesmen all pleasant and agreeable gentlemen, and are confident that a half hour can be profitably spent in visiting this establishment.

—Every person should know how to ascertain the state of the pulse in health; then by comparing it with what it is when he is ailing, he may have some idea of the urgency of the case. Parents should know the healthy pulse of each child—as now and then a person is born with a peculiarly slow or fast pulse, and the very case in hand may be that of peculiarity. An infant's pulse is 140; a child of seven about 80; and from twenty to sixty years it is 70 beats a minute, declining to 60 at four score. A healthy grown person's pulse beats 70 times in a minute; there may be good health down to 60; but if the pulse always exceeds 70 there is a disease; the machine is working itself out; there is a fever or inflammation somewhere, and the body is feeding on itself, as in consumption, when the pulse is quick—that is, over 70, gradually increasing, with decreased chances of cure, until it reaches 110 or 120, when death comes before many days. When the pulse is over 70 for months, and there is a slight cough, the lungs are affected. The pulse decreases when a recumbent position is assumed for any length of time, and is increased by exercise, stimulants, and the presence of food in the stomach.

—"How would you feel, my dear, if you were to meet a wolf?" asked an old lady of her little grandchild, with whom she was walking along a lonely country road. "O grandmamma, I should be so frightened!" was the reply. "But I should stand in front of you and protect you," said the old lady. "Would you, grannie?" cried the child, clapping her hands with delight. "That would be nice! While the wolf was eating you I should have time to run away."

—A girl has recently gone through a remarkable attack of catalepsy at a public hospital in Paris. She fell into a lethargy, and her respiration became almost imperceptible, but her color and pulse were natural. Soon afterward her muscles became hard and stiff, and during six days she lay rigid, taking no food, and being wholly unconscious. Her recovery was slow, and attended by relapses into a cataleptic condition.

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

—Danbury: Mr. Culver, on Nelson street, got his hose out to sprinkle the road in front of the house Friday morning. He dragged the hose to the front and put the nozzle on the fence, and then hastened down to the cellar to turn the water on. Just as he disappeared in the door an elderly couple, accompanied by a young lady, appeared around the corner and approached the premises of Mr. Culver. The gentleman was swinging a gold-headed cane and discoursing on the beauty of the evening and the trimness of the cottages they were passing. "Now, that place," observed the old gentleman, stopping exactly opposite the nozzle, which none of the party observed, and pointing at Mr. Culver's pretty house, "is a place which just suits my eye. It is not too large nor too small. It has the requisite amount of room inside and outside. The yard is a model of— "And just at that unhappy moment the water was turned on by the unconscious Mr. Culver, and the old gentleman's beaming face being in exact range with the dreadful nozzle, the stream struck him with such blinding force as to knock him completely off the walk, and he went over backwards in the street, bareheaded, swinging his cane in the air, and vehemently sputtering, "Ooh, Kawwish, boo, dosh, wicherwish, goo-woo, thunder and lightning! M-u-r-d-e-r!" They got him up on his feet and his hat on wrong, and tried to direct his attention to the scenery, but he wasn't to be diverted. He shook his fist at Mr. Culver and called him a scoundrel, and declared he would have satisfaction if it took every penny he owned. And then he knocked his hat over his eyes, and stalked moodily away.

ZERO REFRIGERATOR

ZERO.
Why the Improved Zero Refrigerator has taken precedence over all others:
It requires less than one half the ice to run it. It dispenses with the nuisance of having a drip pan under it. It is a refrigerator and water cooler combined. It has the dryest provision chamber. It is built in the best manner and style of design. It is the cheapest to buy and it is a perfect Meat, Fish, Fruit and Ice preserver. PULMONICE

FACTS PROVEN
BY THE
TEST OF EXPERIENCE.
"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL Know THEM."

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquillin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that pains once should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing.

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it, to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents. You can buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Sea," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"
By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,
For Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cure of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the Flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked, by the early and proper application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.
I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.
JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.
We take great pleasure in furnishing one of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN
HOTEL.
WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,
FRED. SMITH, - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.
The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,
Picturesque Scenery and Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,
within five miles of the Hotel, the
BEAUTIFUL BEACHES
at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish
EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Fences A Burden on the American Farmer.

[Turf, Field and Farm.]

We have more than once expressed our faith in the order of the "Patrons of Husbandry," and our belief that it will inaugurate a new era in agricultural history and lift the nursing mother of all the arts to the exalted position among the industries of the world which is her undoubted right. Our expressed sympathy with the order entitles us, we think, to submit to its most earnest consideration the question of farm enclosure, a system more burdensome to the agricultural interest than all the taxation, State and Federal, inflicted upon it by an unwise and too often a corrupt legislation. Without obtruding any arguments or reasoning of our own, we will simply submit the following statements derived from authorities which have always commanded the highest respect. Mr. Biddle, in an address before the Philadelphia Agricultural Society, stated that the cost of the fences in Pennsylvania alone amounted to $100,000,000 (one hundred millions,) and their annual expense he estimated at $10,000,000 (ten millions.) A distinguished writer on national wealth says: "Strange as it may seem, the greatest investment in this country, the most costly production of human industry, is the common fences which enclose and divide the fields. No man dreams that when compared to the outlay on these unpretending monuments of human art, our cities and our towns, with all their wealth, are left far behind. In many places the fences have cost more than the fences and farms are worth. It is this enormous burden which keeps down the agricultural interests of this country, causing an untold expenditure, besides the loss of the land the fences occupy."

Thoroughbred Cattle.

The Baltimore American says:

Within the last month or two a number of well-bred horses have been sold at public auction in New York for prices that seem to bear no proportion to the value of the animals. Beautiful colts, the sons and daughters of the kings and queens of the turf, have been knocked down for less money than can be obtained for second-class cart horses in Baltimore. We suppose that race horses are very unprofitable animals, except as the possible winners of jockey club stakes, and when they make no record that entitles them to be entered at the great meetings, the owners are glad to get rid of them at any price. A horse may be wonderfully fleet, but if he always falls a half second behind his competitor, he becomes an incumbrance to the stables, and his room is wanted. He sells for a mere song, because nobody wants a race horse except to make him run. He can not be put to drawing a wagon or a cart; he is no trotter, and is therefore, comparatively useless for light driving, and, unless somebody happens to want a spirited saddle horse, the auctioneer has to call attention to his pedigree many times before he can get a bid. Very probably the capricious dispositions which these animals inherit, and the careful grooming that they require, help to reduce the price.

But if thoroughbred horses that can not win races sell for less than it costs to subsist them for six months, thoroughbred cattle bring prices that are almost astounding when compared with the market value of ordinary animals. There was a sale at Mr. Vanmeter's farm, Winchester, Ky., on the 21st instant, at which thirty-three head brought $55,830. They were the elite of the herd, most of them being cows and calves belonging to the two celebrated families of short-horns, "Roses of Sharon" and "Red Roses." A cow 5 years old, Julia's Rose by Fourth Duke of Geneva dam traced to imported Rose of Sharon, sold for $3,900. Another of the same descent sold for $3,200, and her calf, 2 months old, brought the snug little sum of $1,400. Another of the same family, 3 years old, brought $3,150, and a heifer, 11 months old, brought $2,250. A heifer, 21 months old, $2,400; while another, 12 months old, rejoicing in the aristocratic name of "Lady Cambridge," brought $5,500. The "Rose of Sharon" cows and heifers brought prices ranging from $2,000 to $5,000. The "Red Roses" sold for something less; eight male calves brought $3,560, the average price being $445.

We say that these prices, large as they may seem to persons accustomed to handle common cattle, are regarded as low. Most of the animals were bought by Kentuckians, but it is supposed they were acting as agents for English stock-breeders. Nearly all of these splendid cows will be taken to England, and some of them will no doubt become famous in the herd-book. On the 22d instant another sale of short-horn cattle took place at Ashwood, Fayette County, Ky., the animals sold being the property of J. G. Kinnaird and the estate of Dr. W. H. Cunningham. At this sale, as at the Winchester sale, the "Roses of Sharon" were the favorites. One of them, a cow two years old, sired by Eleventh Duke of Geneva, brought $4,150, but as a general rule the prices were not so large. Twenty animals sold for $26,945, the average price per head being $1,347.25. The buyers were generally Kentuckians and Western men—farmers from Indiana and Illinois. One cow, a "Rose of Sharon," was purchased by Mr. Benjamin Sumner, of Woodstock, Conn., for $2,650. Stock-raising has been carried on in the Blue Grass region of Kentucky for nearly half a century, and it might be supposed that by this time fine short horns had become so common that they would bring but little more than the market price of cattle of the same weight and condition, but it seems that the "flowers" of the herd were never so valuable as now.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1875.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.

The population of Washington is greatly reduced in the Summer—every body getting away who can, if only for the month's leave which the government gives its employes here yearly. Hotels do a starving business, as a rule, though I think it is different with your old friend Pierce of the Imperial, who profits by the closing of the old National for repairs and changes. The summer here has been quite comfortable, except for a short time in June and early in July. The last half of July there were

and August opened with a settled storm, but with none of the damage done farther west. The corn crop, which was a failure last year from drought, is looking magnificently now. Peaches are pouring in with an abundance the oldest inhabitant has never seen, while melons lie about the grocery stores in cartloads, and of the best quality. The small fruits have been very abundant and cheap. Strawberries did not give the grower more than a cent a quart, much of the time, while blackberries, which line the roads and old fields of Virginia, have been wholesaled at three cents a quart. Washington to live in. There is not a consuming population within forty miles of it and it has a navigable river and canal and fine railroads draining a farming country for long distances, centreing here. It must be that the middle-men get too much or the people complain without cause.

OUGHT TO BE A CHEAP PLACE

The improvements about Washington still go on under the Board of Commissioners, who have already issued nine and a half millions of 3.65 bonds ordered by Congress, and it will take two or three millions more to finish up the work begun by the Board of Public Works. It can't be said too often that

WOOD PAVEMENT IS A FAILURE.

Streets paved with wood three years ago are as rough as the old corduroy roads built across swampy places. That treated with a preserving process, some of it, is rotted worst of any. It is so rotted now, that the streets won't be passable another year without repaving.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

The statistical bureau have published the exports and imports for the year ended June 30, 1875, which stands as follows for merchandise:

Imports	$533,000,309
Exports	513,343,618
Excess of Imports	$19,656,391

Now the man who expects to go to specie payments and maintain it with trade in that condition, is as wild as the fellow who SEES SNAKES.

I shall be told England has specie payments and other nations with a much greater adverse balance of imports over exports. That is true; but England is a money-lending nation and receives immense sums from other nations for interest, while we are paying her and other nations many millions yearly for interest. While we get thirty millions from the earnings of our shipping, England and other nations are getting seventy millions for the ocean part of it.

OUR EXPORT TRADE

fell off sixty-three million dollars in eleven months in the articles of wheat, flour and cotton. The year before 1874, our merchandise exported was nineteen millions more than our imports and the price of gold fell to 109, while the present year it has been up to 116 because the debtors had to buy forty-six millions of gold in eleven months to ship to Europe to pay for interest and the adverse balance of trade. I think for the year it amounted to sixty-nine millions. In 1874, we sent over only thirty-three millions for the same purpose. I may be set down as a heretic in financial matters, but I maintain you cannot go to specie payments while you ship out of the country nineteen millions of specie a year to pay for an adverse balance of trade, and have an interest account of seventy-five millions or more against you to be paid in specie, besides, or added to the debt abroad. I should like to have some one who thinks me heretical, show how it can be done.

THE ELECTIONS.

The reports from North Carolina now looks as though the republicans had elected a majority to the Constitutional Convention which will prevent a change of the Constitution of the State. Kentucky would seem to have been submerged with water and democracy. Most of the interest centres in the Ohio election, where the democrats have made an issue in favor of putting greenbacks in place of national bank notes, and increasing the currency. What occasion there is to increase currency when there is more than is needed or can now be used, I do not understand. The tone of the fight is against contraction on one side, and in favor of specie payment, which can only come by contraction on the other. The central idea is, as near as it is practical to get it, contraction and specie payments against greenbacks and inflation. In a fight of that kind I conclude the chances in favor of the greenbacks, which have had the field of discussion for three weeks at the start unopposed, and thereby occupying the offensive ground. As I said before, I may be heretical, but a party that proposes to go to specie payments by an increase of the interest bearing debt and destroying greenbacks for the benefit of banks and in a manner to take an additional bushel of wheat in every twenty, to pay debts and taxes,—especially in communities whose bonds have been issued to build railroads and are owned by outsiders—is'nt on the road to success.

News and Notes.

The evidence against the Treasury robbers is accumulating, and a large part of the booty has been recovered.

Reports from the Mississippi river are quite favorable, and not much further damage is apprehended.

No new cases of yellow fever at Fort Barrancas have been reported since Saturday.

There has been an election for the Chiefs by the Cherokee Nation, but the returns are not all received.

The N. H. Prohibitionist State Central Committee met at Concord Monday.

Shearman says he refused to take any fee from Mr. Beecher for his services as counsel. If he worked for nothing, he received the value of his labors.

The London papers are well supplied with letters from the people expressing their disgust and indignation at Brother Shearman's remarks on the Beecher scandal. Shearman should take his departure for home—in a leaky steamer.

A too persistent tramp met with his deserts at the hands of an Irish woman, who keeps a saloon at Newburyport. Having thrown away a cherry pie that she had given him, and come again next day for a glass of ale, Mrs. Mahoney grabbed from a barrel of tripe-pickle, a heavy piece of tripe, and gave the fellow such a blow with it, full in the face, that it laid him sprawling. She then dumped him out of the door, and he tramped.

We notice the following advertisements in a city paper that will serve to illustrate the way a thing is looked at by different people. The Clothes Pin Line announces its route from Boston to Oak Bluffs as the "Shortest, Quickest and Best! No Dust! No Seasickness! Avoiding the disagreeable passage across Buzzard's Bay." The Hair Pin Line advertises its route as the "Shortest, Quickest and Best. The only Line offering passengers a beautiful sail upon the smooth waters of Buzzard's Bay!" A greeny would infer that either the disagreeableness of the passage lay in the smoothness of the waters of the Bay in question, or that a difference of opinion existed between the managers of the rival lines in regard to what constituted "smoothness."

A remarkable incident occurred near Viroqua, Iowa, a few days ago, in a family whose name my informant could not remember. There were three little children, the eldest being five years, two of whom went to the barn to find hens' nests. They found one, and crawled to it, and one thrust his hand forward to get the eggs, when he quickly withdrew it, saying the old hen had bitten him. The other said he wasn't afraid, and thrust his hand forward, when he, too, was bitten. Both then screamed, which quickly brought the mother to the spot, when it was discovered that they had been struck by a rattlesnake coiled in the nest. The mother seized the little boys in her arms and hastened to the house, where a new horror met her gaze. In her haste to secure the boys at the barn she had set down a boiler of hot water, into which the babe had fallen. In thirty minutes all her children were dead.

A Remarkable Love Story.

Charles Zimmerman, an intelligent, well educated German, came to this country several years ago, and by his industry and economy managed to lay by upwards of $40,000. Some time ago he made the acquaintance of a German lady named Anna Ehlers. The friendship ripened into love; and although Zimmerman was a widower and had five children, his love was reciprocated, and, as Miss Ehlers says, an engagement of marriage was made. For some time the German and the beautiful young woman loved each other warmly. Zimmerman was making money; and, according to her account, the wedding-day was fixed. On the appointed day all was ready. but the bridegroom failed to appear; and when the lady's friends hunted him up they found him in his office quietly smoking his pipe. He refused to proceed with the ceremony, and Miss Ehler's friends employed a lawyer, and a warrant was obtained for Zimmerman's arrest. Zimmerman was arrseted, the charge being breach of promise, and Miss Ehlers being the complainant. He was taken to the Ludlow Street Jail. and there he remained for several days. Finally one of the deputies in unlocking the cells to give the prisoners an opportunity to go to the sink and wash, saw Zimmerman lying on the floor at the foot of his bed, apparently asleep. He saw that the cell was in disorder, but as he supposed that Zimmerman, after being awake so late the night before, would not wish to be aroused, he locked the door and did not disturb him. After he had unlocked the other doors the keeper went into Zimmerman's cell to see what had been done to the furniture. The bedding was pulled from the little iron bedstead and torn to fragments. The mattress had been ripped open, and the straw was scattered ankle deep over the floor. The looking glass had been broken and the frame wrenched to pieces. The tin basin was bent to shapeless mass. The chair was pulled apart, and with its rounds part of the plaster had been scraped from the walls and ceiling, and was strewn over the floor. The glass was broken from the windows, the washstand was not only in pieces, but lay in the jail yard outside the cell window, and the water pitcher lay in fragments alongside the pieces of mirror, having apparently been thrown against the wall where the glass hung. The keeper, still supposing Zimmerman to be asleep, went up to him and shook him. But he could not arouse him. He put his hand down to feel the prisoner's pulse. The minute their hands met the keeper realized that Zimmerman was dead, for his hand was cold and clammy; and when he looked in the prisoner's eyes he saw that they were set in death.

The Coroner and the Warden tried to lift Zimmerman's body from the floor, but they found his head fast between two of the slats in the iron foot board of the bedstead. The examination showed that the prisoner, in the ravings of his delirium, had got his head wedged in between two slats. The bedstead works on hinges, shutting up and standing in a corner through the day. In his struggles Zimmerman had bent back the foot board, and, at the same time, twisting his body to one side, the sharp edge of the iron slat had pressed upon his throat, and he had been strangled. The Coroner's verdict was death by strangulation while under the influence of delirium tremens.

A Sweet Discovery.

[San Bernardino (Cal.) Argus.]

A few days since, as the workmen on the Cajon Pass were hauling over some rocks, they came across a deposit of honey, and taking a pole and running it into the mountain were surprised to find no bottom. They got a longer pole, some twenty feet in length, and were unable to touch the bottom with that. Upon withdrawing the pole the honey began to run out, and soon tubs, buckets and two barrels were filled, and still it flowed. Some parties came in town and loaded up with barrels, and propose to make a business of it. They put in a charge of powder and blew off a portion of the rock which disclosed tons upon tons of honey. Our informant states that after exploring it from below to where the bees were found to enter, it was found to be one-fourth of a mile, and it is his opinion that the whole cavity is filled with honey. He estimates over one hundred tons in sight, and believes that 1,000 tons would not be an unfair estimate. This immense deposit cannot be equalled by any ever found. According to the above estimate, it would take every barrel and hogshead in San Bernardino to hold it.

—During the recent epidemic of measles in the Fejee Islands the natives became imbued with the terrible idea that now the Papalagi (English people) had become possessed of their land, they desired to get rid of them. In many instances it was impossible to dispel the idea that the King had been taken to Sydney for the purpose of communicating to him a fatal poison, with which utterly to destroy all his people. Sick men and women would look you fairly in the face, as though convinced of their inexorable fate, and say, "I am going to die," and at once settle down to inevitable death. To tell a Feejeean he looked sick was as certain destruction to him, in many instances, as a bullet through the heart would be.

—A woman on a steamboat shooting the Lachine Rapids, lately, fainted away and fell into a tub of raspberries. The expense to her husband is thus summed up by a sympathizing correspondent: Edward paid for the raspberries at ten cents a quart, $5.10; the dress was a new one and cost just an even $100; a pair of striped balbriggan hose, very pretty by the way, were worth $1.50; a lace handkerchief, with an embroidered cupid in one corner, was valued at $6; sundry other things, such as one pair five button kid gloves, one light brown chignon, one very long bustle, etc., counted up $20 more. All these things were ruined completely, so that the exact cost of Kate's faint was $132.60.

—A Hebrew merchant from a western city went into a large wholesale house, and said he wished to buy about $1500 worth of goods. He was willing to pay $1200 cash, and give his note for ninety days for the rest of the bill. The firm looked up the house which the customer represented, and came to the conclusion that his note wouldn't be of much value. They concluded, however, to sell him the goods he desired, making a sufficient advance in the usual price to cover the amount of the note. The sale was made, and the bill amounted to $1,450. The purchaser paid the $1200 and drew his note for the remainder.

"Now, mine friends," said he, "I vants you to gif me von present. I always has a present after so big a bill."

"Well, replied the merchant, "we can't give you much of a present, but you can pick out a necktie for yourself, if you wish."

"No, no. I vants no neckties. I vants a silk dress for mine vife."

"O, we can't do that!" said the merchant, "but I'll tell you what we will do. We will give you your note."

"My note! No, py my gracious, I takes ze necktie!"

—Olive Harper, in a letter from Palermo, says: "There is a paradise here for the young men, for the women are, without exception, beautiful, and they can love well—only, as Joaquin Miller says, they are apt to love well—so well, in fact, that their love 'slops over,' generally on two or three. And then, too, even if they do love copiously themselves, they are not willing their adores adore another; and they carry sharp little knives in their pockets, as well as sweet words on their lips. But then honey is all the sweeter when you have the fear of a sting from the bee."

—An Ohio ruralist was asked if he was going to hear Sam Cary. "Wall, I rather think not," was the reply; "of the two, you may as well expect me to go to a skunk's funeral and kiss the corpse."

—The Baltimore girls who go to the White Sulphur Springs eat a great deal more than those who frequented that resort before the war. They clear the breakfast table in no time.

—Law-abiding liquor sellers in the neighborhood of City Hall square complain of the partiality of the police in allowing the Tribune's rum shop to be open on Sunday, when all respectable bars are closed.

—A certain minstrel manager advertises in one of the sporting papers for a tenor singer, "whose vocal abilities are first-class, and who knows how to work up a laugh when the end man is getting off a joke."

—"As to being conflicted with the gout," said Mrs. Partington, "high living don't bring it on. It is incoherent in some families, and is handed down from father to son. Mr. Hammer, a poor soul, who has been so long ill with it, disinherited it from his wife's grandmother."

—On one of the Anchor Line boats the other day was a young man of decent look, but a good deal the worse for whiskey. He persisted in singing at the top of his voice, and it was the poorest kind of singing.

After a brief pause he removed his hat and said:

"Now I'm going to sing something sad."

"Hadn't you as soon wait until we get to Vicksburg?" inquired a passenger.

"Wh—what f'r?" gasped the young man.

"Because, I've got a young mule on the lower deck, and if he gets an idea that he can sing as good as you do he'll never be worth a nickle to bray!"

There was no more singing.

—It was the opening remark of an ebony Evangel to a congregation of his colored brethren: "Let all de good niggahs cl'ar out. De Lawd moves me dis ebenin' to spoke only to de bad niggahs." And in three minutes there wasn't a "niggah" in the meeting-house.—Brooklyn Argus.

—With a most cadaverous countenance and crape on his hat he waited at a Paris station for the coffin to be lifted out of the train; but it was heavy, for it was lined with lead. And while the people looked on with sympathy and wondered if it was his wife, his mother, or his father, the well informed police invited him into a private room, where they opened the coffin and emptied it of its load of Brussels lace.

—"If you dare to play marbles for keeps again," said Mr. Hurtlescamp to his eldest boy, "I'll whip you within an inch of your life." And then Mr. Hurtlescamp went on 'change, and lifted up his voice at the call board, and raised his hand and shook it in the air, and got red in the face as he cried: "Sixty-seven! sixty-seven! for fifty thousand cash or July! Put up or shut up! Sixty-seven cents a bushel, cash!"

—Andrew Johnson's old tailor shop at Greenville, Tenn., is a small one-story building, about 20 by 16, and is still in a good state of preservation. Over the door is the old sign, a board four feet long and a foot and a half wide, painted black, with the words "A. Johnson, Tailor," in yellow letters. This building has two small windows, at one of which Mr. Johnson used to work as the village tailor.

There have been 4500 tons of coal landed at this port within the last three days.

Temperance meeting this (Wednesday) evening at New Castle.

Beware of summer sickness from cholera fruit about this time.

Both of the Shoals steamers were crowded with passengers on their outward trips on Tuesday morning.

M. T. Botton & Co. will sell the large dwelling house, on South Mill street, next to Mr. J. E. Ham's, at fifteen minutes past twelve Thursday.

A young man named William Spinney, a baker, living on Water street near Liberty Bridge was found dead in his bed on Tuesday morning, although he appeared as well as usual on retiring. He was subject to epileptic fits, and it is supposed that his sudden demise was caused by one of these attacks. His age was 28.

Steamer S. E. Wetherell, with a party of excursionists from Pigeon Cove, on Tuesday ran upon a rock situated between Star Island and Lunging Island, Isles of Shoals, and came near rolling over. The steamers Major and Appledore went to her assistance and the former succeeded in getting her afloat. The passengers were taken ashore in a fishing boat. The steamer is not believed to be greatly damaged.

On Monday, David Stringer, a sailor from the U. S. sloop Kansas, complained to the police of having been robbed of seventy dollars by three men who attacked him on Noble's Island, knocked him down and rifled his pockets of their contents. City Marshal Marden at once commenced a search for the villians and in less than two hours had two of them under lock and key, and shortly after found the other of the trio named Neal and placed him also "where he could look at him." On Tuesday, they were brought before Judge Page who deemed it proper to hold them till the October Court in the sum of $1000 each. They gave their names as John Wright, Thomas Cotter and William Neal.

H. S. Vanderbilt, Esq., of Washington, has accepted the Superintendency of a company which manufactures a newly patented adjustable chair, which is to be introduced in railroad cars. By a system of the simplest mechanism the passenger occupying these chairs may assume various positions, from sitting bolt upright to reclining at full length, after the manner of reposing in the berth of a sleeping car. The back and foot rest of the chair can be graduated by a simple contrivance under the control of the occupant, and change of position for the wearied body obtained with the slightest physical effort. The chairs have been introduced on one train of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and attract general attention for their convenience and elegance of design. Judge Thacher of Indiana, formerly Chief Examiner in the Patent Office, is the patentee, and Senator Jones of Nevada is a large owner in the company, which starts off with $1,000,000 capital.

Rev. Wm. L. Gage writes rather loosely of the Shoals—saying they were probably named because the water is shoal, and that it is perilous for a first-class ship to sail inside of them, the exact opposite being the case. The water is very deep off the Shoals and navigable for ships of double the draft of the Great Eastern. He errs in saying there is no opportunity for bathing at these islands, evidently not knowing of the pond at Appledore whose gates let in and out the salt water, and whose fame as a bathing resort for children and ladies is spread far and wide. And while we are criticising his recent emanation in pamphlet form called "The Isles of Shoals in Summer Time," we may as well remind the "reverend gentleman," that his sneer at firemen, whom he speaks of contemptuously as not to be supposed to attend church, is unjust and wholly uncalled for, as is his rude allusion to a woman whose fortune it was to be reared at the Shoals and to be taught common sense, and perhaps to be used to point a moral whereby a "teacher of Christianity" may adorn a tale, in order to enable his readers to realize his superiority of intelligence and culture. Firemen do their duty faithfully and "Christian teachers" do well when they do as much.

Hunking Street.

Editor Chronicle: I was sorry to notice in your columns of a recent date an opinion expressed against the proposition to widen the above-named thoroughfare. You are probably unfamiliar with the geography of that locality and possibly unacquainted with its inhabitants. The chief object of widening the said street is not to enhance the value of the property of any private citizen, but to remove the present facilities for fighting across the way. By the present arrangement two families living on opposite sides of the street, can lay out of the windows of their respective houses and after chatting a while and a disagreement ensues, they can claw and scratch each other to their hearts' content, so narrow is the street. There is no doubt about this, as it has been practically demonstrated. Now, if the street could be widened ten feet, more or less, it is obvious that it would conduce to the morals of those precincts, and who knows what a tidal wave of goodness might grow out of it?

—In spite of the frequent expressions of disapproval on the part of the Roman Catholic clergymen, the practice of waking the dead still prevails to a very great extent in the north of England. At Birkenhead, on July, 23, a wake took place, at which all present became intoxicated; and in lamenting the loss of the subject of the wake, an old woman let fall a candle into the coffin. The shroud and clothes instantly caught fire and blazed up, and as all were incapable of extinguishing the flames, they continued until a police officer, hearing the noise and confusion, went and extinguished them.

—Seventeen bears have been killed in Mattawamkeag, Maine, this season. The State pays five dollars for each capture.

—The accusation made by Miss Allen against the Rev. Mr. Porter, of Weybridge, Vermont, is under investigation by the church.

—One of the lady teachers in a Detroit school is name Mecca, but she has a pilgrim who worships at her shrine, and is presently expected to Mecca change her name.

—The University of Copenhagen now admits women stud ents the same as men, only they can't study theology or pass examinations that would authorize them to preach.

—Miss Mollie Allen of Lakeport, Cal., has again received $26.50 from the Supervisors of Lake county on account of squirrel tails, the work of her own rifle in less than two weeks.

—George Perkins of Topeka can afford an expensive wig. The jury gave him $2300 damages because a party of young scamps shaved his head.

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat as the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisances or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Daily Chronicle.

—A Hartford correspondent of the New York Sun describes a visit to the Connecticut State Prison at Weathersfield where he came across the remarkable convict, Andrew D. Wells, who has been a prisoner there from his sixteenth to his sixtieth year, and who now, though pardoned and released, still remains at work in the prison. Wells is described as a man of strong natural build, but the impress of age is visible in his wrinkled and somewhat emaciated face and in his stiffened bearing. His countenance told of a life of silence, of uncheered labor, solitude and imprisonment. In conversation, however, he is lively and chipper, and he told the story of his life to the scribe with ease and animation. He was thrice sentenced for robbery, a business, he says, that was taught him by his mother when he was a mere boy. He never attended school but a month in his life, and when he entered the prison he could neither read nor write. He managed to improve his mind gradually, however, learning to read in his cell at night with an old copy of the Bible and an almanac. A fellow-prisoner taught him to write and now he is a regular subscriber to several periodicals and papers. He has a son whom he never saw, and he has not seen his wife for eleven years. The Warden describes Wells as "a sensible old chap" and a first-class mechanic. He exhibited a box full of his handiwork, consisting of small knives and hammers three-quarters of an inch long, to be attached as charms to watch chains. Wells feels the prison walls his home, and cannot bear to be at liberty, so he still works in the shop and boards and lodges with the chaplain.

—For the first time since the inauguration of Thomas Jefferson there is nobody living now who has been president of the United States except the actual incumbent of that high office.

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourneroy, Vanquilin and Barrnell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is [illegible] as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; but the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Land That The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. Experience all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of truth is the story told, that many can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No. 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

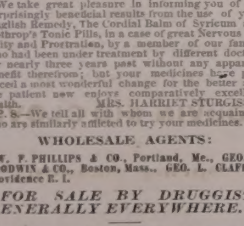
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swellings, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous ills from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is on the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself: to let it run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years, but without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

WASHEE-WASHEE.

BY JOAQUIN MILLER.

Two days after the widow arrived in this mining camp, Washee-Washee, as the "boys" had named him, stood out on the steps of his cabin all the afternoon, looking up the forks and down the forks, and wondering what in the world was the reason the "boys" did not come creaking along and screeching their great gum boots together, with their extra shirt for wash waddled down in one of the spacious legs.

Three days after the widow had arrived she had absorbed all the business. Four days after she had arrived she absorbed Washee-Washee. And now it was the brown hand of little moon-eyed Washee-Washee that reached through the door, took the clothes, and handed them out again—or at least such portion as he chose to hand out—to the bearded giants standing there in line, patiently waiting at the door of the widow's cabin.

The face of the widow was now almost entirely invisible. It was as if there was no sun at the forks, and all the sky was in a perpetual eclipse of clouds.

Soon there was trouble. Clothes began to disappear. One bearded sawyer, a gallant man, who refused to complain because there was a woman in the case, was observed to wear his coat buttoned very closely up to his chin, and that, too, in midday in summer. This good man had at first lost only his extra shirt. He did not complain. He simply went to bed on Sunday, and sent his shirt early to wash, expecting to rise in the afternoon, "dress," and go to town. A week went by. The man could not stay in bed till the day of judgment. So he rose up, buttoned up to the throat, and went down town to buy another supply.

Other circumstances not dissimilar in result began to question whether or not, after all, the camp had been greatly the gainer by this new element in its population.

One afternoon there was a commotion in the door of the widow's cabin. Sandy was in trouble with Washee-Washee. The moon-eyed little man tried to get back into the house, but the great big giant had been too long a patient and uncomplaining sufferer to let him escape now, and he reached for his queue and drew him forth, as a showman does a black snake from a cage.

The widow saw the great hairy face of this grizzly giant, and retreated far back into the cabin. She was perfectly certain she was terribly afraid of this great big awkward, half-clad, exasperated man, and therefore, with a woman's consistency, she came to the door, and in a voice softer than running water to Sandy's ears, asked what could be the matter.

Sandy was taken by surprise and could not say a word. He only rolled his great head from one shoulder to the other, got his hands lashed up somehow in his leathern belt and great gum boots, and stood there like a born idiot.

But whoever saw an embarrassed Chinaman? The innocent little fellow, turning his soft, brown almond eyes up to the widow, told her, as poor Sandy started on down the hill like an awkward bull, that this dreadful "Amelican" wanted him to leave her, to go home with him to be his wife.

When Sandy heard this last he disappeared, crestfallen and utterly crushed. He went home, but not to rest. He told Limber Tim all about what had happened. How he stood it all in silence till it come to the last shirt. How the Chinaman had lied, and how he was now certain that it was this same little Celestial who was boning all the tackle. Limber Tim raised himself on his elbow, where he lay in his bunk, and, looking at Sandy, struck out emphatically with his hand and said:

"Lay fur him!"

Sandy drew on his great gum boots again. Limber Tim rose up, and then the two men kept creaking and seething and whetting their great boots together as they went silently and in single file down the hill toward the town.

There was an expression of ineffable peace and tranquility upon the face of Washee-Washee that twilight as he wended his way from the widow's cabin to his own. His day's work was done, and the little man's face looked the soul of repose. Possibly he was saying, with the great, good poet, whose lines you hear at evening time on the lips of nearly every English artisan:

"Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose."

Washee-Washee looked strangely fat for a Chinaman, as he peacefully toddled down the trail, still wearing, as he neared his cabin, that look of calm delight and perfect innocence, such only as the pure in heart are supposed to wear. His hands were drawn up and folded calmly across his obtruding stomach, as if he feared he might possibly burst open, and waited to be ready to hold himself together.

In the great little republic there, where all had begun an even and equal race in the battle of life, where all had begun as beggars, this tawny little man from the far off flowery kingdom was alone; he was the only representative of his innumerable millions in all that camp. And he did seem so fat, so perfectly full of satisfaction. Perhaps he smiled to think how fat he was, and, too, how he had flourished in the little democracy.

He was making a short turn in the trail, still holding his clasped hands over his extended stomach, still smiling peacefully out of his half-shut eyes.

"Washee! Washee!"

A double bolt of thunder was in his ears. A tremendous hand reached out from behind a pine, and then the fat little Chinaman squatted down and began to wilt and melt beneath it.

"Washee-Washee, come!"

Washee-Washee was not at all willing to come; but that made not the slightest difference in the world to Sandy. The little almond-eyed man was not at all heavy. Old flannel shirts, cotton overalls, stockings, cotton collars and cambric handkerchiefs never are heavy, no matter how well they may be wadded in, and padded away, and tucked up, and twisted under an outer garment; and so, before he had time to say a word, he was on his way to the widow's with Sandy, while Limber Tim, with his mouth half-open, came crawling up the the trail and grinding and whetting his screechy gum boots together after them.

There is a fine marble statue in the great garden at Naples, near the massive head of Virgil, which represents some great giant as striding along with some pigmy thrown over his shoulder, while he carelessly holding on by the heel. Sandy looked not wholly unlike that statute as he strode up the trail with Washee-Washee.

He reached the door of the widow's cabin, knocked with the knuckles of his left hand, while his right hand held on to an ankle that hung down over his left shoulder, and calmly waited an answer.

The door half-way opened.

"Beg pardon, mum."

He bowed stiffly as he said this, and then, shifting Washee-Washee round quietly took his other heel in his other hand, and proceeded to shake him up and down and dance him and stand him gently on his head, until the clothes began to burst out from under his blue seamless garment, and to peep through his pockets, and to reach down around his throat and dangle about his face, till the little man was nearly smothered.

Then Sandy set him down a moment to rest, and looked in his face as he sat there, and it had the same peaceful smile, the same calm satisfaction as before. The little man now put his head to one side, shut his pretty brown eyes a little tighter at the corners, and opened his mouth the least bit in the world, and put out his tongue as if he were about to sing a hymn.

Then Sandy took him up. He smiled again, sweeter than before. Sandy tilted him sidewise and shook him again. Then there fell a spoon, then a pepper-box, and then a small brass candlestick; and at last, as he rolled him over and shook the other side, there came out a machine strangely and wonderfully made out of whalebone and brass and stays and hooks and eyes, that Sandy had never seen before and did not at all understand, but supposed was either a fish trap or some new invention for washing gold.

Then Limber Tim, who had screwed his back up against the palings and watched all this with his mouth open, came down, and reaching out with his thumb and finger as if they had been a pair of tongs, took the garments, one by one, named them, for he knew them and their owners well, and laid them silently aside. Then he took Washee-Washee from the hands of Sandy, and stood him up or tried to stand him up alone. He looked like a flagstaff with the banner falling loosely around it in an indolent wind. He held him by the queue awhile, but he wilted and sank down gently at his feet, all the time looking up with a half-closed eye and half-parted lips, as though he was enjoying himself perfectly and would like to laugh, only that he had too much respect for the present company.

"If I could only shake the lies out of him, mum, as easily as I did this 'ere spoon, and this 'ere candlestick, and this 'ere—this 'ere"—Sandy had stooped and picked up the articles as he spoke, and now was handing them to the widow in triumph.

"Poor little helpless, harmless fellow!"

The widow was looking straight at the Celestial, who sat there piled up in a little bit of a heap, the limpiest thing in all the forks party, save Limber Tim.

"Let him go, please; let him go. Bring the things and come in."

"You can go now, John; but don't do so any more. It is not right." The widow smiled in pity as she said this to Washee-Washee. The Chinaman understood the first proposition perfectly, but not the last at all. To him this was simply a bad investment. To him it was only a little shipwreck, and having been taught by the philosophers of his country to prepare for adversity in the hour of prosperity, he was not at all lacking in resignation now. He rose up, smiled that musical and peaceful smile of his, and wended his way to his home.

Sandy looked a moment at the retreating, hungry-looking little Chinaman, and then thrust his two great hands into his two great pockets, and, tilting his head first on the left shoulder and then on the right, tried hard to look the widow in the face, but found himself contemplating the toes of his great gunboats in a second.

"Will you not come in?"

The man rolled forward. He sat down in the widow's cabin in a perfect glow of excitement and delight.

I am bound to admit that, upright and great as Sandy was, he kept thinking to himself: "What will the judge and the boys say to this?" He was even glad in his heart that Limber Tim stood with his back glued up against the palings on the outside, and his hands reached back and wound in and around the rails, so that he could testify to the boys—tell it, in fact, to the world—that he had entered in and sat down in the widow's cabin.

It was not an easy work for Sandy sitting there. He soon began to suffer. He hitched about and twisted around on the broad wooden stool as if he had sat down on a very hot stove.

The widow sat a little way back across the cabin, a bit of work in her lap, looking up at Sandy now, and now dropping her half-sad blue eyes down to her work, and all the time in a low sweet way, doing every word of the talking.

Sandy's hot stove kept getting hotter and hotter. He began to wish he was down with the boys at the Howling Wilderness, consulting the oracle of cocktails. All at once he seemed to discern his great long legs. They seemed to him as if they reached almost clean across the cabin, like two great anacondas, going to swallow up the widow. He fished them up, curved them, threw his two great hands across them, nursed them affectionately; but they seemed more in the way and uglier than ever before. Then he thrust them out again, but jerked them back instantly and drove them back under his bench, as if they had been two big and unruly bull-dogs—and he nearly upset himself in doing it. They had nearly frightened him; they were surely never half so long before. It seemed to him as though they would reach across the room and through the wall, and even down the Howling Wilderness. He twisted them up under the bench and got them fast there, and was glad of it; for now they would not and could not run out and rush across the room at the widow.

But now poor Sandy saw another skeleton. His eyes came upon them suddenly, in a sort of discovery. It seemed as if he had just found them out for the first time, and knew them for mortal enemies, and determined to do away with them at once, and at any sacrifice. Such hands! Had the widow really been looking at them all this time? The back of that hand was big and rough as the bark of a tree. That finger nail had a white rim of dough around it; that thumb nail was as big and about as dirty as a crevicing spoon! He picked up that hand, thrust it under him, sat firmly over on that side, and held it down and out of sight with all his might. The other one lay there, still in the way. It was uglier than the one he had just slain and hidden away in the bush. There was dirt enough about the nails to make a small mining claim. He rolled the hand over and over in his lap, as if it had been somebody's baby, and a baby with the colic. At last, in a state of desperation, he rolled it off and let it fall and take care of itself. It hung down at his side like a great big felon from the scaffold. It twisted and swung around there as if it had just been hung up by the neck in the expiation of some awful crime. It felt to Sandy as if it weighed a ton. He tried to lift it up again, to take care of it, to nurse it, to turn it over on its stomach, to stroke it and talk to it and pity it and soothe away its colic; but lo! he could not lift it. He began to perspire, he was so very warm. It was the warmest time that Sandy had ever seen. All this time Sandy had sat close by the door and not one word had he uttered.

The widow rose up, laid her work on the table, all the time smiling sweetly, half sadly, and, going up to the fireplace, took from the box in the corner pine-knot after pine-knot, and laid them on the blazing fire.

"Come—the evening is chilly—will you not sit closer to the fire?"

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1875.

News and Notes.

California is not complaining of hard times; on the contrary, it appears that the State is more prosperous than ever, both mines and crops producing amply. She deals in hard money.

Brother Shearman's impudent slander upon the clergy and women of America has been promptly rebuked by the Rev. J. E. Irvine, a United States army chaplain at present in England.

Newspaper bummers are earning their board at the various summer resorts, if we can judge from the fulsome scibblings with which our exchanges are daily filled.

East Kingston has a centenarian, Mrs. Webster who is 102 years of age, and in the enjoyment of excellent health.

Deputy Sheriff Rufus N. Wallington of Milford was found dead in the highway near the Fair Grounds in that place this morning, he having committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. He was fifty-eight years of age.

A boy twelve years of age, named George Malsham, living at Wolfeborough, has for the past three years been a great sufferer up to the time of his death, which was on the 25th of July. One evening, some three years ago, he was skating on a pond, when he fell into the water, and then walked home, his clothes freezing on him. His folks were abed on his arrival home, and he slipped off his clothes, and in this wet and chilled condition went to bed. At first he did not feel the effects of it, but after a short time he experienced a slight lameness, and after awhile his joints became dislocated and continued until nearly every joint in his body was dislocated—his shoulder joints, elbows, wrist and finger joints, while the lower limbs were all unjointed, even to his the joints. To add to his other sufferings several large sores broke out upon his body a short time before his death. During all this time he was confined to his bed till death in mercy relieved him.

The fortunate discovery of the thief who abstracted the package of $47,000 from the Treasury Department at Washington is supplemented by the recovery of the larger part of the sum stolen. This is welcome news to that large public whose sympathy went out to Gen. Spinner when, at the close of a long term of honest and able service, he was saddled with so serious a loss through the rascality of one of his subordinates. The rescue of the stolen money is a cause of almost equal gratification with the capture of the criminal; for the administration of Gen. Spinner has been so generally acceptable that such a sorry conclusion, muleting him in a considerable fortune, has been universally regretted. Hallock, who has confessed to the theft, was an appointee of Gen. Spinner, and was probably honest and trustworthy when he entered the service. His recent promotion to the post of assistant shipping teller was made at a time when, according to revelations now made, his habits had become loose and his associations disreputable. With the opportunity and the incentive to crime, the act became easy.

—Down in Vineland recently a convention which was to "mark an era in the progress of the world," started off, all things considered, rather tamely. Thirty-three people, six of whom were press representatives and several of whom were children of tender years, met together in solemn convocation, and with oppressive seriousness bent their intellects to the consideration of dress reform. Mrs. Woodhull had promised to be present and tell what she herself knew about it, but she failed to put in an appearance, and the company was forced to evolve its own theories as to what rightly constituted progressive petticoats. "Anybody, from a Hottentot to Henry Ward Beecher, is welcome to speak here," said an active little man, who appeared to be a sort of deacon. There were perhaps a dozen people who exhibited some striking eccentricity in personal appearance. There were men with long hair and women with short hair. One young man wore a chevelure that many fashionable ladies would be glad to possess; his glossy brown hair hung down to his waist, and was confined at the back of his neck by a black ribbon. Among the ladies a few Bloomer costumes were seen. The wearer of one of these costumes was scarcely distinguishable from the other sex. She wore a man's Panama hat, and her outer garb consisted of a pair of blue flannel pantaloons and a blouse of the same material falling to the knee. Men and women were obviously very much in earnest, though it was hard to gather from their speeches and conversation just what they wanted to do. They eagerly sought to demolish old systems, but showed no talent for constructing new ones.

—A funny story comes from Long Branch. At a hop recently given there, a bald-headed musician, who was sitting fiddling away near one of the windows, felt something on his head. Clapping his hand to it he found that a little mouse, which had been concealed in the lambrequin, had landed thereon, and was waltzing around like the other guests. Instantly the musician dropped his bass viol and gave chase to the intruder, who sought refuge in the biggest hole in the neighborhood by rushing headlong into the bell of the large bass horn. The performer on this instrument not discovering at once the source of trouble continued fruitlessly to blow on his horn, when, by a sudden blast, he expelled the little mouse, who scampered off over the floor much to the consternation of the dancers.

—The Sultan of Zanzibar went to the grand opera in Paris, and was highly pleased with the dancing of the ballet corps. The ladies of the corps requested respectfully his attendance behind the scenes in the inter acts, but Zanzibar was too sharp for them, and refused positively, on the ground that he couldn't think of throwing his handkerchief to such barefaced sultanas as they appeared to be. On the other hand, he exhibited a mania for eating watermelons, and giving over to his secretary the seed, to be planted on his return home.

—Joseph Hines, a negro farm hand at Rock Wharf, Virginia, was deeply attached to a valuable horse of which he had the care. He slept in the barn near the animal, and was assiduous in his attention. The horse was injured so badly by a collision with a gate that it was necessary to kill him. Hines said that if the horse was killed, he would die too; and he meant it, as the sequel proved. The horse was taken to the edge of a wharf and shot. At the discharge of the gun the negro jumped into the river, and, although planks were thrown to him, he would not save himself.

The Life of Christ.

When Mr. Beecher agreed with the projectors of the "Life of Christ," some years ago, that it would be more profitable to write the work from an orthodox rather than a liberal standpoint, he received $10,000 on account, and promised to finish the book in two years. His failure to keep the contract, it is conceded, has led more than almost anything else, to the failure of J. B. Ford & Co., his publishers. "You would be surprised," said one of his church members, in an excusatory way, to a reporter, "to know how irksome it is for Mr. Beecher to write. He hates the labor of using a pen, and while he could talk and talk all day with pleasure, he would be pestered to death if he had to write. He has frequently put off writing for Mr. Bonner until the last minute, and then dashed off something which came into his head and was worth reading because he had his name to it. He knows the printer's cry for 'copy,' for he has written the 'Life of Christ' under the habitual prodding of Mr. Ford, and he has often had to write while the messenger waited for his manuscript." Mr. Beecher is said to have made another promise to begin to labor diligently on the last third of the second volume of the "Life of Christ" when he returns in the fall.

Why Some People are Poor.

Silver spoons are used to scrape kettles.

Coffee, tea, pepper and spices are left to stand open and lose their strength.

Potatoes in the cellar grow, and the sprouts are not removed until the potatoes are worthless.

Brooms are not hung up, and soon become spoiled.

Nice handled knives are thrown into hot water.

The flour is sifted in a wasteful manner, and the bread pan is left with the dough sticking to it.

Clothes are left on the line to whip to pieces in the wind.

Tubs and barrels are left in the sun to dry and fall apart.

Dried fruits are not taken care of in season and consequently become wormy.

Rags, strings and paper are thrown into the fire.

Pork spoils for want of salt, and beef because the brine needs scalding.

Bits of meat, vegetables, bread and cold puddings are thrown away when they might be warmed and served as good as new.

—Says the Indianapolis News: "A Western Judge has declared it to be a good ground for divorce for a woman to tie her husband to a gate-post during a violent thunder-storm, with a patent lightning-rod hitched to his spinal column."

J. C. Butler's excursion train leaves Eastern Depot at 7:45 A. M.

A noon prayer meeting will be held today at half past twelve at the Methodist Vestry on Daniel street.

M. T. Betton & Co. will sell the large dwelling house, on South Mill street, next to Mr. J. E. Ham's, at fifteen minutes past twelve today.

Eduardo de Anguera, the piano tuner, will visit this city in a few days to attend to orders in his line of business.

The Eastern Railroad will run a Sunday camp-meeting train from this city to Seabrook Aug. 10th, leaving the depot at 8 o'clock in the morning, and leaving Seabrook at 5 P. M. to return.

The first annual picnic of the St. Mary's Benevolent Association will be holden at Pinkham's grove to-day. The managers intend that it shall be the best picnic of the season.

There will be a united Mass Temperance meeting at the chapel of the North Church, Middle street this (Thursday) evening at 1-4 before 8 o'clock. All lovers of Temperance are urgently requested to be present.

Steamer Appledore met with an unfortunate accident on Wednesday, breaking her propeller shaft, on her passage in from the Shoals. She was towed up to the wharf by the Major, an act of accommodation on the part of her pilot, Capt. Robinson, that is praiseworthy, considering the fact that he was pressed for time to connect with the trains.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth and Dover railroad, held in this city Wednesday, the following gentlemen were elected directors: Frank Jones, Moses H. Goodrich, William H. Sise, Andrew H. Young, Oliver Wyatt and Charles H. Sawyer. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Hon. Frank Jones was re-elected president, and William H. Hackett, Esq., clerk.

The South Mill Pond Nuisance.

Editor Chronicle: Once more the use of your columns is asked in the well nigh desperate hope that the City Fathers may be aroused to such action as will give relief to the residents near the hundred-acre quagmire called the South mill pond: for ten days and nights, previous to last Sunday, breathing and living in comfort thereabouts was impossible, and the belief was current that the long continued complaints of this dreadful nuisance verified by the recent testimony of our physicians and the report of the Board of Health, had been heard and a remedy, which necessarily could only be for the moment, applied: but on Sunday morning, those living near were half suffocated and for the last two nights the stench has been insufferable. It would seem, that the report of the Board of Health, that complaints of this awful nuisance had not been exaggerated, and that danger to health was imminent, would have been sufficient to secure effective action, but it appears otherwise, and that we are to expect nothing until lives have been sacrificed to the deadly miasma. Twice in each twenty-four hours the water is so drained from this so called pond that a small dog could cross it in places (provided he was not suffocated by the way) without wetting his body; the deposits are of the vilest and most pestilential nature, some three or four feet deep, and the exhalation under our blazing August sun beggars description. Were it not that the stench is intermittent the people would have been aroused for its cure long ago; but it is becoming more intense and deadly every day and unless we are willing to see pestilence stalking in our midst a remedy must be speedily applied.

It is believed that the deposits in this pond would well repay the cost of removal but whether so or not is not a question—it must be done—if not to prevent decimation, then afterward choose!

SELF PRESERVATION.

The Wonders of the Squash.

Those of our readers who take any interest in agriculture and farm products will find the following extract from a private letter received in this city, (written by a young farmer, a son of Portsmouth, residing in Amherst) worthy of perusal. It relates only to his experience in the squash line, but if he exercises the same close observation in other departments of farming, there is no question in regard to his ultimate success.

"I now have a squash, just three weeks old, measuring fourteen inches in diameter and weighing not less than fifty pounds. To say I can see it grow would perhaps be a little too strong an expression, but I can not help being forcibly impressed with the idea that here is the embodiment of vegetable strength and vitality; a vital energy equalled by few of our known vegetable farms, overcoming the resistance of pressure or when injured resisting the action of decay to a wonderful degree and throwing out an impervious coating with great rapidity, whenever the delicate tissue is exposed. But after all, this is no less marvellous than the strange action of the tendrils, which, stretching out like slender snakes, slowly and silently revolve in fruitless endeavors to grasp some near support, or having come in contact with a suitable object, wind about it like a Boa grasping its prey in its relentless folds and finally accomplishes its purpose by completing a double spiral, and thus draws the vine to a firm support, from which no wind can loose the elastic grasp or weight of fruit tear it. To determine any fact definitely, however, requires a vast amount of patience and many times I have watched a single tendril slowly coiling, for four hours without cessation, and then felt that I had really only commenced the beginning of my observations."

A Proposed Fire Alarm.

It has been suggested by a number of citizens who have formerly belonged to the Fire Department that an improved fire alarm would be an advantage to the firemen in giving them early notice of and in helping to locate a fire. A gentleman well acquainted with fire matters, and a good mechanic, suggests a simple plan which we regard as a good one; viz: to have placed in the bell tower of the North Church a powerful spring near the bell, with a hammer attached, to operate similar to the alarm of a common clock. To this, connect a wire leading to the Police station, that by a slight pull would set the spring in motion and control it at the same time. Then, by the number of taps on the bell locate the fire, or nearly so, thereby saving delay. By the method that is used now, some little time is wasted in getting from the Station to the Church, finding the bell rope, and perhaps after getting at the rope it would slip from the pulley as it did on Sunday morning at the time of the Water street fire. Five minutes saved at the beginning of a fire sometimes saves a large loss of property. If the spring is powerful encugh, the alarm can be heard all over the city and the stroke being much faster will attract more attention and be more effectual in arousing heavy sleepers. After the spring had run down, the bell could be used the same as it is now, or the spring be wound up again. It could be regulated to run long enough for a man to get there in season to again set it in motion. We hope our city government will give it their early attention and see the wisdom of the proposition.

—A crazy man who threw stones at a train on a Boston Railroad has explained his motive. "All trains," he said, "carry the globes. These globes are of glass, and inside painted red; their use is in the hands of villains, to discover the thoughts of those who may happen to get within the circle of their influence."

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL Know THEM."

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroy ag the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fornercy, Vanquillin and Barruell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and contained, one furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

ZERO REFRIGERATOR

Z E R O.

Why the Improved Zero Refrigerator has taken premiums over all others:

It requires less than one half the ice to run it. It dispenses with the nuisance of having a drip pan under it. It is a refrigerator and water cooler combined. It has the dryest provision chamber. It is built in the best manner and style of design. It is the cheapest to buy and it is a perfect Meat, Fish, Fruit and Ice preserver. PULMOCINE

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the changeful trying climate of New England;

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know ing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

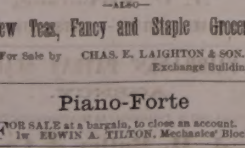
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

for Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivaled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Barbers' Itch, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself it left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely removes the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOUSE.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

THE WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL,

WARNER, (MERRIMACK CO.) N. H.,

Was opened for the reception of guests, July 20th, 1875.

CARRIAGES will be in readiness to run daily from the hotel over the new carriage-road to the top Kearsarge Mountain, affording the finest views in New England.

Business men in Boston and vicinity can spend the Sabbath with their families in Warner, and still be in the city during business hours each day. Board from $1.50 to $2.50 per day.

EXCURSION TICKETS for round trip from Boston to summit of Kearsarge Mountain and return, good for three days' trip, including railroad fare, hotel bills, and carriage to the Mountain, will be furnished on application, by mail or the proprietor, for the small sum of $15 each person, and parties of ten or more, $12.50 each.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS

WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

WASHEE-WASHEE.

BY JOAQUIN MILLER.

Sandy sat still as the statute of Moses in the Vatican; but that abominable felon hanging by the neck at his side kept twisting around and around, as if he never would die or be still. The widow sat down with her work, as before, and this time she began to talk about the weather, trusting that on this subject, at least, her great good friend could open his lips and speak.

"How very cold it is, this evening. The chill of the snow in the air. It blows down from the banks of snow on the mountain, and I fancy it may be cold here in this rickety cabin the whole summer through."

Still the ugly convict that now began to grow black in the face swung and twisted at his side; but he did not speak.

"Do you not feel cold?"

"Yes, 'um."

The two words came out like the bark of a bull-dog, as if one of the brutes he had drawn back under his bench had stuck out his nose and yelped in the face of the widow, and Sandy was frightened nearly to death. The perspiration dropped from his brow to his hand, and he knew that things could not last in this way much longer. The bull-dogs would be out, and he knew it; the dead man that he was sitting down upon would rise up to judgment; and the felon at his side was only swinging and turning and twisting more than before.

Sandy shut his eyes and attempted to rise. His gum boots screeched, the bench creaked as he began to undouble himself, and turned up and hung on behind as if it had been a lobster. He shook it off, and began to tower up like a pine. He feared he would pierce through the roof, and began to look out through the half-opened door and to stretch out the prostrate hand. Then he stood still, and was more bewildered than before. The widow was looking straight at him and expecting him to speak. He wished he had not got up at all. If he was only back on that overthrow bench, with the dead man beneath him, and the bull dogs below, and the felon swinging loosely at his side, how happy he would be. He tried to speak—tried it like a man; but if it had been to save his life, to save her life, the world, he could not find form to shape one word. He backed and blundered and stumbled across the threshold, and drew a breath—such a breath! the first he had drawn for half an hour—as he stood outside, with the widow's little feet following to the threshold, and her pretty miniature face looking up to his, as if looking up to the top of a pine.

"You will come again, will you not? You have been so very kind. Please to call. Step in as you pass and rest. It is so lonesome here, you know nobody that anybody knows. And then you are such good company."

And then the pretty little widow, with the sad, sweet face, laughed the prettiest little laugh that was ever laughed this side that other Eden, with its one fair woman.

Limber Tim closed his mouth and unscrewed himself from the palings on the fence without as Sandy appeared, and the two took their way to their cabin.

"And you are such good company." That was all Sandy could remember. What could he have said? He tried and tried to recall his observations, whatever they may have been, on the various topics of the day, but in vain. He could only remember driving two ugly bull dogs back under his bench, of slaying and hiding away his mortal enemy, and then hanging a felon for high treason; and then, chiefest of all, "You will come again—it is lonesome here; you are such good company."

"You are such good company." The wind sang it through the trees as he wended his way home. The water away down in the canon below the trail sang it soft and low and sweet, sang it ever and nothing more. And the teakettle that night simmered and sang, and sang this one sweet song for Sandy.

He took the first opportunity after supper to slip out and away from Limber Tim, and there in the dark, with his face to the great black forest, he stood, saying over and over to himself, in his great coarse voice, trying to catch the soft tones of the widow, "You are such good company."

That evening Limber Tim leaned up against the logs of the Howling Wilderness and told all that had happened, and how Sandy had seen the widow, how he had set in her cabin, how he had called and how she had smiled, and what a very hero his "pardner" had become. He told of Washee-Washee. The story of Washee-Washee went through the forks, and then the next morning the forks rose up and "went through" Washee-Washee.

Perhaps it was what the widow had said about "poor, little helpless, harmless man" that saved him; but certain it was, for some unknown reason, the miners dealt gently with this strange little stranger. Had this been one or even a dozen of their own kind, some tree in the neighborhood of the forks would have in less than an hour one or even a dozen strange and ugly fruit. They went to Washee-Washee's cabin. He smiled as he saw their approach, half shut his eyes as they entered, laid his head a little to one side as they tore up his bench, and looked perfectly happy and peaceful as a lamb as they pulled out from under it enough old clothes to open a shop in Petticoat lane, or even in Bow street.

They found a rifle-blanket in one of his wooden shoes, and it was heavy with gold dust. Poor Washee-Washee, when called upon to explain, said timidly that he had found it floating up the river past his cabin, and took it in to dry it. He seemed hurt when they refused to believe him. They found a hose coiled up in his great bamboo hat. One of the men took hold of his queue—his beautiful long black queue, that swept the ground with its braided folds and black silk tassels tipped with red and gold—and found it heavy with nuggets hidden away, for what purpose goodness only knows. It was heavy enough to sink it like a shot were it a fish-line. And all this gold was his!

They threatened hard things to Washee-Washee, these rough, outraged, hairy fellows, who had patronized him and helped him and tried to get him along in this world; but he was perfectly passive and tranquil. A man who stood there with a bundle of recovered treasure-trove—in the shape of shirts and coats of many colors, because of many patches—took Washee-Washee by the little pink ear and twisted him up and around till he saw his face. Then he let him go, and catching his clothes up under his arm, strode on out of the cabin and on down to his claim and his work. The meekest man that the world has seen since Socrates was Washee-Washee. He sat there with the same semi-grin on his face, the same half-smile in his almond eyes, though a man shook a rope in his face, jerked it up, thrust out his tongue, pointed to a tree, and hung himself in pantomime before this placid Chinaman.

"What will we do with him?" A bearded citizen stood there, with a bundle of clothes under his arm, waiting to be gone.

"Poor, lonesome, helpless harmless little man. Sandy, stood there repeating the words of the little widow, without knowing it.

"He does lie so helplessly," said one. "If he could only lie decently, we might hang him decently."

"Tell you what; flog him and send him adrift." The man who proposed this was a stranger, with an anchor and other saltmarks of the sea on his hairy arms.

"Wolves would eat 'im in the bush."

"Wolves eat a Chinaman!" They'd eat a gum boot fust!"

"Tell you what we'll do," growled the gopher. "Reform him."

"Reform hell!" said the sailor to himself.

"Come, let's do a little missionary business and begin at home," urged the gopher.

"Get the judge to reprimand him. Have him to talk to him an hour; then let the parson speak to him another hour. If he lives through that he will be an honest man; or if not honest, he will at least be harmless."

Now they had no parson at the forks—not even a semblance for one yet; neither had they a lawyer or doctor. But this parson was a person in the camp. He was perhaps the most popular man there. He was certainly the most influential, for he was a man who could talk. They called him the parson because he was certainly the wickedest man in all the mines.

The idea was novel, and was at once adopted.

Here, at least, was a practical application of the popular feeling in older republics that the officers are the servants of the public.

The little judge here was certainly the people's servant. If he had not been, if he had asserted himself at all and taken up arms and fortified himself behind a barricade of books, they would simply have called a miners' meeting in half an hour, and in half an hour would have had the little man ousted, and another man in his place, and then back to their work as if nothing had happened. Never in the world had men known such absolute liberty as was attained there. There was not even the dominion of woman, and yet they were not happy.

They marched Washee-Washee to the Howling Wilderness, told the sentence and called upon the parson to enforce judgment.

He now took a cordial and began. Washee-Washee sat before him on a bench, leaning against the wall. The little man seemed as if about to go asleep. Possibly his conscience had kept him awake the night before, when he found that all his little investment had been a failure in the forks.

The parson began. Washee-Washee flinched, jerked back, sat bolt upright, and seemed to suffer.

Then the parson shot another oath. This time it came like a canon ball, and red hot, too, for Washee-Washee was almost lifted out of his seat.

Then the parson took his breath a bit, rolled the quid of tobacco in his mouth from left to right and from right to left, and as he did so he selected the very broadest, knottiest and ugliest oaths that he had found in all his fifty years of life on the border.

Washee-Washee had lost his expression of peace. He had evidently been terribly shaken. The parson had rested a good spell, however, and the little, slim, brown man before him, who had crawled out over the great wall of China, sailed across the sea of seas, climbed the Sierras, and sat down in their midst, to begin the old clothes business, without pay or promise, was again settling back, as it about to surrender to sleep.

Cannon balls! conical shot! chain shot! and shot red hot! Never were such oaths heard in the world before!

The Chinaman fell over.

"Stop!" cried the barkeeper of the Howling Wilderness, who didn't want the expense of the funeral. "Stop! Do you mean to curse him to death?"

The Chinaman was allowed time to recover, and then they sat him again on the bench. A man fanned him with his broad bamboo hat, lest he should faint before the last half sentence was nearly through, and the judge was called upon to enforce the remainder of the sentence,

"Washee-Washee! In this glorious climate of California—how could you?"

Washee-Washee nodded, and the judge broke down, badly embarrassed. At last he recovered himself and began in a deep, earnest and entreating tone:

"Washee-Washee, in this glorious climate of Californy you should remember the seventh commandment, and never, under any circumstances or temptations that beset you, should you covet your neighbor's goods, or his boots, or his shirt, or his socks, or his handkerchief, or anything that is his, or—"

The judge paused, the men giggled, and then they roared and laughed and danced about their little judge, for Washee-Washee had folded his little brown hands in his lap and was sleeping as sweetly as a babe in his cradle.

Poor little Washee-Washee. When the widow got married he had to go. He could not embark in business again, and he would not go away. The widow always gave him all he asked when he came to her, but that was very little. She even tried to persuade him to accept little gifts and to take some delicacies for his stomach's sake; but the little pagan would only shake his head, smile the least bit out of the corner of his mouth, and then go away as if half-offended.

Every five years there is a curious sort of mule caravan seen meandering up and down the mining streams of California, where Chinamen are to be found. It is a quiet train and quite unlike those to be found there driven by Mexicans, and bearing whisky and dry goods. In this train or caravan the drivers do not shout or scream. The mules, it always seemed to me, do not even bray. This caravan travels almost always by night, and it is driven and managed almost altogether by Chinamen. These Chinamen are civil, very respectful, very quiet, very mournful, both in their dress and manner.

These mules, both in coming in and in going out of camp, are loaded with little square beechwood boxes of about three feet in length and one foot square.

When a train arrives in a camp these boxes are taken from off the backs of the mules, stored in some Chinaman's cabin close to the trail, and there they lie, so far as the world knows, undisturbed for two or three days, when about midnight, the mules are quietly drawn up to the cabin door, the boxes are brought, and the mules are loaded, and the line winds away up the hill and out on the mountain to the sea on wheels.

The only apparent difference in these boxes now is the lead label at either end, which was not there when they entered the camp.

This is the caravan of the dead. No Chinaman will consent to let his bones lie in the land of the barbarian. The bones of every Chinaman, even to the beggar—if there ever were such a thing as a Chinese beggar in California—are taken back to the land of his fathers.

Washee-Washee stood watching the train climb the corkscrew trail in the gray dawn one morning, and then, shaking his head, he went to the window and said:

"By'ee, by'ee. Washee-Washee allee sammee."

And it was so. His first great commercial enterprise had been a disastrous failure, and the brown little fellow never recovered. Other Chinamen poured into camp, and he certainly had friends among them all; but he went to none in his griefs as he did to the widow—she who had been his friend in his first great trouble.

The little brown man took to opium, and gradually grew almost black. His little bright black eyes grew brighter, his thin face grew thinner, and he became a little more than a shadow. Still he would smile a bit out of that corner of his mouth—would smile as if he were smiling at death, and was trying to cheat him into the idea that he felt perfectly well.

The caravan camp in due time. As before, it rested, loaded, climbed the hill, and as the train laid up against the morning star, you might have read on one little box, wherein a skeleton lay doubled up like a jack-knife, this name:

"WASHEE-WASHEE."

News and Notes.

Mr. William Merrill of Thornton, N. H., is about opening a mine of black lead that he has discovered on his farm.

The manufactory of T. H. Curtis of East Jaffrey, N. H., usually employing one hundred hands, has suspended operations on account of the depression in business, although it is probable that the mill will be opened again in a few weeks.

Simon Snow and wife, of Cambridge, Mass., guests at the Seashore House, at Old Orchard Beach, while in bathing, on Tuesday forenoon, had the keys of their hotel room and trunks stolen from their clothing by a thief, who then entered their room and secured valuable jewelry, diamonds, a gold watch and money amounting in the aggregate to about $1000.

A department for the Feejee Islanders is to be reserved at the Centennial. The New Bedford Mercury hopes that for modesty's sake they won't come along in their every-day clothes.

The China and Webster Manufacturing Companies and the Pembroke Mills, all at Suncook, have reduced the rate of the operatives' wages in the mule room and weaving departments ten per cent.; all other departments will remain as heretofore. These mills employ upward of 1500 hands, and expect to run on full time and at present rate of wages all winter.

Spinner's remark that he "doesn't care a d—n for the money, but that he wants to see the d—d thieves punished for the trouble they've made him," looks as queer in print as his autograph.

Capt. Bogardus offers "to shoot any Englishman on equal terms."

The latest wrinkle, according to a fashion correspondent, is tying the tail of a long-haired poodle in a queue and turning it up with a large bow of bright ribbon, set quite high on the back. It's quite bewildering, they say.

Hon. William A. Graham, candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Gen. Scott in 1852, is dead.

The North Carolina Constitutional convention will consist of 60 democrats, one independent democrat, and 59 republicans.

Capt. Simpson, of the United States steamer Omaha, now at Panama, states that the British Consul has requested the American Consul, in the absence of any British war vessel, to ask the commander of the Omaha to protect the person of Mr. Taylor, a British subject, who was imprisoned by President Mitre, of Colombia, for shutting off the supply of gas. Before any action was taken, however, by Capt. Simpson, Taylor was released. Simpson says trouble is imminent between the State and General Government, and a general war is probable. The Omaha has been instructed to remain at Panama to protect American interests, and Admiral Collins, of the South Atlantic squadron, is ordered there with the Richmond. The gunboat Shawmutt is also ordered to-day to leave Hampton Roads for Aspinwall.

We learn from the Boston Journal that some time since a man calling himself Billings J. Hood and representing that he was a United States Secret Service Officer, passed through the northern part of New Hampshire into Canada ostensibly on Government business. In a short time he returned through New Hampshire into Maine in such a manner that caused suspicion that he was not what he represented himself to be, and the Chief of the New England Department of the Secret Service, Mr. Kent, was notified of the transaction and laid a plan to catch the pretended U. S. official, but did not succeed until Hood had made another trip into Canada and got out as far as Dixville Notch, where his team and smuggled liquors were seized by a Vermont officer of the Customs who had pursued his trail, Hood proceeding into Maine.

Chief Kent then visited Maine and consulted with U. S. Marshal Marble, the result of which was that Hood was arrested at North Andover, Me., on Monday by the U. S. Marshal. He will probably have to answer in both New Hampshire and Maine for the offences committed. Investigations in Maine, if persons in authority can be believed, show Hood to be a "confidence man" of considerable experience. He is now in Portland jail awaiting examination on the 19th inst.

The Old Tribune Clock.

The N. Y. Tribune having published a description of the new clock in their building, Orange Judd writes to the paper as follows:

The account in the Tribune of its new clock, with the appearance of a false story that has just now met my eye for the hundredth or thousandth time, leads me to send you a true account of an incident in my business experience, of great interest to me and probably usefully suggestive to others. The old Tribune clock was an important factor in the transaction.

Some twenty years ago, having just succeeded from the editorial chair to the proprietorship of the American Agriculturist, I decided to ascertain by trial whether advertising would not do as well for a good thing as for patent medicine and other humbugs. Though having a small working capital, I resolved to do what was then a rather large thing, viz., to take 40 lines under "Special Notices," all in one advertisement. I reached the Tribune office at 3 P. M., with the advertisement still to write, while an engagement in the country required me to take the 4 o'clock boat from Fulton-slip. Securing 40 lines space at the head of the first column, I went to the little desk on the southwest side of the office, over which had stood the old clock for many years. I intended to write rapidly a variety of matter during 30 minutes, and in the next 20 minutes pick out the strong points, and condense to the 40 lines. Keeping my eye on the clock occasionally, I wrote on "letter-backs" furnished at the desk, and pasted them together until I had four feet or more of copy to condense from. I turned to the clerk and asked if I could have a line or two more than 40. "Yes," he said, "you have the first place; take all the space you want." Chancing to notice the City Hall clock, it pointed to 10 minutes of 4. The old clock had stopped at 20 minutes past 3, unnoticed by me. I attempted to draw the pencil through some portions of the manuscript, and in despair threw the whole at the clerk with an order to insert it, and ran for the boat, to save a nine-mile night walk.

The matter troubled me all night, as an over-hasty thing, and I feared to see the Tribune and the probable bill. Starting before daylight the next morning, I bought the first copy in the hands of a newsboy, and counted 196 lines, costing $24.50 at that time, when ordinary advertisements were 8 cents and specials 12 1-2 cents a line—a terrible dose for a literary man, new in business, and with a small capital. Hastening to the Tribune office I paid the bill, and slowly and sadly went down to my second-story office, fully resolved to act more deliberately in the future.

The result: The bold advertisemont, conspicuously inserted, attracted the attention of the multitude coming in on the morning trains. Over 100 dropped in and subscribed on their way to business; others sent in messengers, and others called on their way to a noon lunch. At 3 P. M. I had received 226 subscribers from that one advertisement and more came next day by mail. I repeated the dose in the Tribune and other papers. This experience taught me that if I wanted to move a crowd with a big rock, I would hurl it at them, and not throw it out in bits of pebbles or sand. From that day to this I have never been afraid to advertise largely and boldly—the only limit being the time I could devote to preparing good, truthful advertisements and to selecting good mediums—the latter a work of no little difficulty. My success in business has been abundantly satisfactory to myself and I trust, to my patrons also. My rule has been: Find customers by free advertising, and keep them by supplying good articles and by fair dealing, and whatever of success I have had has been largely due to the old Tribune clock, which stopped so quietly and at the proper time for me.

ORANGE JUDD.

New York, Aug. 3, 1875.

—Four men have had a terrible experience in Panamint Valley, California. Water is scarce in that region, and it is customary for those who make the journey to carry a supply. This party, however, took too little, and were soon suffering with thirst. The first to succumb was told by his comrades to lie still and they would return to him with water. An other very soon gave out, and was advised to return to where the other had been left. At length another became exhausted, leaving only one—an old mountaineer named Phillips—to struggle on until he reached a spring. He filled his canteen and started back to succor his comrades, but when he found them one was dead.

—My heart was heavy, for its trust had been abused, its kindness answered with foul wrong—so turning gloomily from my fellow men, one Summer Sabbath day, I strolled among the green mounds of the village burial-place; where, pondering how all human love and hate find one sad level, and how, soon or late, wronged and wrong-doer, each with meekened face and cold hands folded over a still heart, pass the green threshold of our common grave, whither all footsteps tend, whence none depart, awed for myself, and pitying my race, our common sorrow, like a mighty wave, swept all my pride away, and, trembling, I followed.—J. G. Whittier.

—There are over 2700 varieties of apples known by over 1800 names, 2200 of pears, 200 of cherries, 159 of plums, 300 of our native grapes; 50 of currants, 80 of raspberries, and 30 of blackberries, according to a counting-up of somebody.

—In Philadelphia they have an ordinance of councils which requires that hackmen shall have registered numbers on their carriages and shall carry at night two lighted lamps with the number of the license marked thereon of a proper size.

A Drunken Excursion.

[Foster's Daily Democrat.]

"Last Sunday afternoon about four o'clock Frank Waldron and two other young men named Kelley and Gentleman hired a horse and carriage in this city to go to Portsmouth, and they had some strange experiences before they got back. They reached Portsmouth sometime in the evening and it seems from the story of Waldron that he separated from the other two near the depot in that city and Kelley and Gentleman with the horse and carriage went one way and Waldron went another. They had been drinking some, but not very much, as they say. But soon after they separated, Waldron was assaulted by two or three roughs and came very near being killed. He was knocked down and pounded until he was senseless. He had several bad wounds on his head and one of the roughs drew a knife and cut a gash about four inches long on the back of his neck or just above the neck on the back of his head. Had it been a little lower down it would have killed him instantly. Some time in the night the other two went from Dover with him, and returned to the place near where they had previously left him in Portsmouth and found him lying upon the ground apparently nearly dead. He could give him no intelligent account of himself. He had been bleeding badly and Kelley and Gentleman instead of summoning a physician and having him properly cared for, took him up, dumped him into the bottom of their wagon and started back for Dover. When they got out of Portsmouth they took the wrong road, lost the way and drove all night long over through New Market and nobody knows where else, finally reaching Dover about four o'clock Monday morning. And all the while Waldron was stretched out helpless in the bottom of the wagon. The wonder is that he did not die on the road.

On reaching our city a physician was summoned, and by heroic treatment Waldron's senses were restored and his wounds were properly dressed, so that now he will recover. The loss of blood was the worst part of the case. He relates the story substantially as we have told it, but has no idea who it was that assaulted him in Portsmouth. It is, all in all, one of the strangest cases we ever heard of. We are inclined to think that the little they drank of Portsmouth lightning was really a pretty big load. It is strange that anybody should have been so treated in that city without the knowledge of the night police. But we give the story as told us, and presume it to be substantially true. What Kelley and Gentleman may have to say about it we know not. But we presume they will not care to repeat that Sunday night excursion very soon."

The above story is no doubt true to a certain extent, although it has a Dover coloring. The probable facts are that they got well filled up with liquor before starting, and by the time they reached this city they were anxious to vent their surplus steam and in finding a market for it in a fight, Waldron got the worst of it.

If it is true, however, that a drunken row, wherein one of the parties was nearly fatally wounded, occurred in or near a principal thoroughfare at early evening, it reflects badly on our police force. The truth is, there are too many rum holes in full blast in this city on Sundays, and the wonder is that so few heads are cut or broken. If our Dover visitors will let liquor alone before they start from their city and after they arrive here, we will guarantee them freedom from rows or broken heads.

An Abandoned Waif.

On Wednesday, an unknown woman carrying in her arms an infant three months old, called at the house of Mrs. Fitzgerald on Water street and requested permission to there leave the child while she returned to the Eastern Depot to recover a bundle, that she had left at the Station. She cautioned Mrs. F. against feeding the infant until she returned, and her manner seemed so honest and her circumstances so pitiable that the too confiding and generous hearted hostess readily acceded to the request and the mother or woman departed. Hour after hour passed awdy, and no signs of the stranger. The little deserted one, in the meantime, became hungry, and its cries for food were not only annoying, but alarming. Mrs. F., finding that she had been imposed upon, at once set about to relieve the famished babe, but it steadily refused all sustenance and cried nearly all of Wednesday night. Every mechanical means having been exhausted with no satisfactory results, the good woman was forced to apply to the city officials to relieve her of her charge. The Marshal informed her that she must care for the child until he could get a permit from the County Commissioners to send the infant to the County Farm at Brentwood. Pending an answer to the application the City Marshal will endeavor to find the recreant mother. He has already discovered her name and it only remains for him to ascertain where she has gone, an easy task, when it is known that she has a husband at work in Great Falls. Her name is Haines, and she has another child, about seven years old, whom the mother had with her at the time of her visit to Mrs. Fitzgerald.

Grievances.

It has long been a wonder to all maritime men who have occasion to cruise around the Isles of Shoals that Half Way Rock has never been buoyed by the Government. It is in a dangerous place, and directly in the way of vessels running in to the anchorage at the Islands. And it is a matter of surprise that among the large number of vessels which pass between Star and Lunging Islands more of them do not run on this rock. The accident to the steamer S. E. Wetherell came very near resulting disastrously, and would have occasioned a loss of life if the steamer had rolled over, of which there was great danger. Another matter of complaint is that of the spar buoys in the river which dip under when the tide is running swiftly, swaying backward and forward, so that if a boat should pass over them when coming to the surface, there would be great danger of upsetting it. They should be replaced by can buoys, which would always remain in sight. There is also danger of a steamer's propeller striking them, an accident that would result in its ruin. At a meeting of the Board of Trade it was voted to confer with the Pilot Commissioners in regard to the needed improvements in the river. So far, so good; but would it not be better to consult our river pilots who are on the river a large part of their time at all stages of the tide and in all weather? We think their judgment would be of more value. If the Board of Trade should move promptly in the matter, there is no doubt that they would have the assistance of the members of Congress from this State who would do all in their power to have the improvements made.

Drowning Accidents.

Charles Ross, a young man about thirty years of age, was knocked overboard on Thursday afternoon in the Narrows by the boom of a sail boat. There were two or three ladies accompanying him down river when the unfortunate accident occurred, and a passing boat at once went to their relief, but all efforts to find the drowning man were unavailing.

Jottings.

The S. P. C. A. Lyceum course will open Nov. 6, Carl Schurz delivering the opening lecture.

Temperance meeting this (Friday) evening at the Methodist Chapel on Daniel street.

A little fellow living on Dover street named Johnny Kiley, aged six years, fell overboard and was drowned on Thursday evening in the pond near Eldredge's Brewery. Coroner Whittier was called but deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Two young sailors, named Louis Senac and John Heron, were arrested by the City Marshal on Thursday for driving at a breakneck speed through the principal streets of the city, and upon being tried they were found guilty and made to replenish the city treasury to the amount of $10 each and costs.

An excursion to Old Orchard will take place next Wednesday, Aug. 18th, if fair. If not, the next day. Fare $1.70. A good dinner will be provided for the party at 75 cents per head. The excursion will not take place unless the manager sells ninety tickets by Saturday at 7 o'clock, P. M. Tickets to be had at the Dye House Office on Penhallow street.

Mr. Chase Gray was insured for $650 on his house and furniture that was recently destroyed by fire at the corner of Water and Hunking streets. The insurance adjusters, however, gave him about $350, claiming that he was over-insured. This leaves Mr. Gray a small sum indeed, wherewith to furnish a shelter for him in his declining years, and being a steady and industrious man, whose chief misfortune is, to be poor, we think him a worthy object of charity.

We are requested to announce that during the Advent Camp meeting fare will be reduced from Portsmouth to Alton Bay, Wolfboro, and Centre Harbor over this road via Boston and Maine, from Aug. 10th to Sept. 1st inclusive. Fare from Portsmouth to Alton Bay, $1.00; to Wolfboro, $1.60; to Centre Harbor, $1.85 for the round trip. The above entitles one to go and return any day within the dates above. Leaving Portsmouth at 9 A. M. and 5.10 P. M., direct to Alton Bay.

--The Stockton (Cal.) Independent calculates that an able-bodied squirrel that will attend strictly to business, and not waste time in discussing political questions, will steal and transport to his underground warehouse, a pound of wheat per day.

A Triumph over Humbug.
The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.
THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.
CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding section, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over or adjoining any of the public streets in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

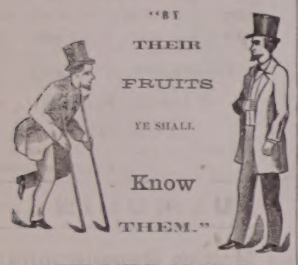
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemist Wallaston, Fornercy, Vanquilin and Barruell.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is at bed as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Pulmocine Cordial.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the slimy trying climate of New England;

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

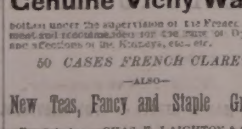
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM

AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Barber's Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, these a most fearful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself is left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under the care of the best doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change in her case, and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first class furniture, was opened July 29th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

A Clairvoyant's Efforts.

[Grand Rapids, Mich., Eagle.]

Is Donaldson dead, and is his spirit traveling through the infinite realms of that space he so long sought to navigate and explore while living; or is he alive, and struggling for life in the pathless forests of the great North land beyond us? It is claimed that he is in both positions, and by so called spiritual mediums.

In this city resides a widower, a man of about forty years of age, who has a daughter aged sixteen. Her father is a spiritualist of the most pronounced kind, and a devout believer in the "power and calling of all true mediums." He is one himself, and has lately, on several occasions, endeavored to get news of Donaldson by interrogating the spirits with whom he claims to hold familiar converse, but they know nothing, and declare that the spirit of the aeronaut does not inhabit their world.

Now, as the father and daughter were said to possess, in a remarkable degree, the gift of clairvoyance, a reporter of the Eagle called upon them, and requested that they test their powers in this direction, and see what would be the result. Both declined making the experiment, on account of the notoriety that would follow, were a report of the trial made public, but on a promise being given to withold their names, and guard carefully against giving any clue whereby their names or habitation could be traced, they finally consented, and the following is the result: Let it be distinctly understood, right here, that neither the father or daughter, nor the writer of this report, claims that the result of the experiment settles, conclusively, the fate of the missing men. All that is claimed is, that the revelations made by the young girl, while in a clairvoyant state, were received by her two auditors in wonder, and that she did not remember what she had stated when the spell was removed from her, but experienced a feeling of languor and weariness, and complained of feeling tired and nervous on awakening.

By holding one of her hands and gazing intently into her face, the girl was soon thrown into a deep slumber. So quiet did she lay that one would have thought her dead, but for the slight glow upon her cheeks and the warmth of her hands. In a sharp, stern voice the father said, "Search for knowledge of what I would know; look everywhere to the Northward." The girl lay quiet for a long time, sighing wearily and gasping occasionally. Then she commenced in broken utterances to talk. She described a large city, then the lake, upon which she saw ships sailing, and logs and pieces of timber flosting. Then came other large sheets of water, and rivers, and woods, which she described, and which she was commanded to search. For a long time, wherever she went, she described cities, villages, farm-houses, people walking and riding, and hunters, and fishermen in the woods. Then she spoke of a "large pond of water, as big as the sea; larger than the lakes, covered with islands." Then the waters grew narrower, and the islands larger, and she described rivers, connecting large lakes, over which white birds flew in flocks and sometimes rested on the surface. On an island "near the end of the sea," she saw a "large piece of yellow cloth snarled with ropes, lying stretched across the trees and reaching the ground." But nowhere, in all her journeyings in the region in which she saw neither man nor habitation of man, did she see signs of hunter or fisher. Before awakening she spoke of seeing "white sails away ever so far over the water," and when asked how far this sea and island were from here, she said they were "a long, long way off; ever so far." But she could give no direction or detailed description of the land she saw. It was all sea and woods and rivers and islands. On coming out from under the spell she remembered nothing of her journeying, and when told of the tale she had related to us, had no recollection of it. She soon complained of being tired and sleepy, and feeling as if she had been traveling a long distance, and quickly fell asleep.

It was concluded that the only large body of water, after leaving the lakes, that she could have seen, was Hudson's Bay, and the island spoken of by her was thought to be that of Southampton, situated at the Northern limit of the bay. The balloon, with its varnish, would resemble a large mass of yellow cloth, and the drag and grapnel of a wrecked balloon might easily be in the position of the ropes she described. Whether what she saw, or told of seeing, was the balloon or not, we leave it for the reader to settle for himself. That the father and daughter were honest in the exhibition of their powers of clairvoyance, we do not doubt.

—At Banbury, in England, recently, there was a great demonstration against the Compulsory Vaccination act, the occasion being the release from Northampton prison of a man who suffered fourteen days imprisonment rather than have his child vaccinated. He was met at the railway station by a great number of persons, some of whom carried banners denouncing the Vaccination act, and bands of music played' Speeches were made by Rev. Horne Rothery and others connected with the National Anti-Vaccination League. White, the released man, received a purse of gold, and resolutions were passed against the act.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14, 1875.

Editorial Pencilings.

WARNER, N. H. Aug. 12.

This thriving town has been the scene of unwonted excitement these two days, consequent upon a visitation to its beautiful precincts made by Governor Cheney and wife, Ex-Gov. Straw, Gen. A. F. Stevens, and other distinguished citizens whom New Hampshire has delighted to honor. The press has been well represented under the lead of its most successful member, Col. John B. Clarke, the genial, humorous and intensely good natured editor and proprietor of the Manchester Mirror, who beams upon the party with a self-complacency that robs life of half its troubles and plants no envy in any heart. Nashua is represented by O. C. Moore, Esq., whose incisive editorials in the Telegraph are as much dreaded by political opponents as were his speeches in the ponderous General Court. Capt. Stevens of the Concord Monitor attends to the capital city's interests here just now, as fearless as if he never had been threatened with a summons before the Weston Judges for expressing his just contempt for their pettifogging abilities; while Bros. E. H. Cheney, of the Lebanon Free Press, and T. J. Lasier of the Claremont Eagle, two sterling men who make sterling newspapers, have thrown off the irksome duties of their daily life for the nonce, and are adding dignity and influence to the party which has rendezvoused here at the Warner and Kearsarge Mountain Hotel by invitation of Col. N. G. Ordway, its owner.

Col. Ordway and Hon. Wm. E. Chandler have their Summer residence here, retiring annually from the scenes of excitement at Washington to the cool retreats among these mountain fastnesses. They are men who are a positive benefit to the places in which they reside, and by Col. Ordway's efforts largely seconded by Mr. Chandler, Warner has become prominent as a resort during the Summer season, it being through their efforts that a road has been built eighty rods from the summit of Kearsarge Mountain. The completion of this road and a fine new hotel situated a gunshot from the depot, by Col. Ordway, were thought favorable to a public celebration. So the dignitaries came, and the ladies, and the members of the press, and have been enjoying themselves hugely these two days. Gov. Cheney held a reception in the spacious parlors, Tuesday evening, which the citizens generally attended. During the early hours the Warner Cornet Band discoursed some excellent music, and this was followed until late into the night by dancing in a cosy tent leading from the parlor, the Concord quadrille band furnishing most enticing invitations to those who have music in their soles to participate. The hotel was finely illuminated and made a brilliant appearance filled with gay guests.

Wednesday, the party ascended Kearsarge Mountain in teams, a distance of eight and a half miles. The drive is simply magnificent, the view from the summit, where the party picnicked, being far preferable to that from Mounts Washington or Lafayette. A hundred towns and villages are spread out as in a panorama before the eye, and full half that number of lakes and bodies of water. Trains on the railroads can be seen passing up and down the valleys, and the faint echoes of the whistle of the locomotives convey to the senses the realization of the vast distance in which the eye may rove. And Kearsarge is but 2950 feet or thereabouts above the sea. The mountain has about four-fifths of its limits in Warner. On the North are the villages of Sutton, Wilmot and Salisbury; on the East, Boscawen; on the South, Hopkinton and Bennington; and on the West, Bradford and Sutton.

Warner is a growing town. By the exertions of Col. Ordway an excellent fair ground has been secured and county fairs are held here, at which the exhibitions of neat stock are remarkably numerous. A rapid stream waters it, rising in the Sunapee Mountains; and there are four ponds in its limits—Tom, Bear, Bagley and Pleasant. The summit of Kearsarge is of naked rock and the view is unobstructed, and that view on a clear day includes the White Mountain range, the Franconia range, Mounts Tom and Holyoke in Massachusetts, the Uncanoonucs, Joe English, Monadnock and Lake Winnipesaukee, with lesser peaks by the hundred.

No Summer tour is complete which does not include a trip to the mountains. Kearsarge is visited annually by thousands and is easy of access from Warner over the new carriage road constructed by Civil Engineer H. H. Harriman. This road cost some $8000, $2000 of which was voted by the town. The remainder was assumed by Messrs. Ordway and Chandler, who secured subscriptions from Ex-Governors Stearns and Straw and other eminent citizens. Hotel and boarding house rates here are cheap and the fare as inviting as the mountain views. The hotel is in charge of an experienced landlord, Major Fred. Smith, who attends to the wants of patrons with fidelity and discrimination. That great desideratum, sound sleep, is here arrived at with ease and the bracing air invigorates the system and renews the health of visitors.

News and Notes.

The mystery attending the assassination of Deputy Sheriff Wallingford in Milford, is still unfathomed. Mr. Wallingford's house was among those recently entered by burglars, and he had since devoted his nights to trying to discover them. He frequently retired in the early part of the night and about midnight would begin his watch. His bed shows that it was occupied the early part of Tuesday night, the 10th, and it is supposed that he started out on his watch as usual and was shadowed by assassins, the size of a cart-wheel, would very likely who attacked and murdered him. Several people living in the vicinity heard a carriage go by their houses at break-neck speed during the night, and a lady heard a carriage stop suddenly above her house; she heard suppressed talking, and soon afterward saw a flash and heard a report of a pistol. The deceased evidently fell upon his face, as it bears marks of contact with the earth, but when found he was lying upon his back, with his vest unbuttoned, which must have been closed when the shot was fired. These circumstances, with the missing pocket-book, the finding of his papers at a place far removed from the scene of the murder, and the seeming lack of any cause for suicide, lead to the belief that the murder was committed by some unknown assassin, and the verdict of the coroner's jury was to that effect. Mr. Wallingford was about 60 years of age, was a highly respected and honored citizen of Milford and a trusted and efficient officer as well. His family, consisting of his wife, a daughter and three sons, are heart-broken by this terrible bereavement, and, indeed, the whole State is excited by this frightful evidence, added to all that has preceded it, that New Hampshire is the stamping-ground this year of a gang of desperate law-breakers.

The body of Mrs. D. L. Magoon, who died suddenly in Candia, a year ago, has been disinterred at the request of the town authorities, who claim to have discovered evidence that she was poisoned with strychnine by her husband. The affair causes much excitement.

Details of a recent sad casualty at Niagara Falls, where two visitors were engulphed in the Cave of the Winds and drowned, are of thrilling interest. The party, numbering six persons, among whom were Mr. Ethelbert Parsons and Miss Lottie Philpott, started for a visit to the Cave, where the rainbow can be seen in such perfection. Declining the services of a guide, they started down the Biddle Stairway and clambered out upon the rocks in front of the cave. Here they remained for sometime, amusing themselves in the water, which brawls over the rocks and rushes through the crevices with great force. Finally Miss Philpott went still further down the river and entered an eddy, which was partially protected by encircling boulders. Here she was soon joined by Mr. Parsons, who entered the water with her, and while he was getting a foothold, Miss Philpott slipped. He had hold of her hand, and, as she fell, he caught her, and together they were swept away into the current, which bore them down thirty feet toward the river. They were now in a powerful current, and both seemed to be making endeavors to save one another. Mr. Parsons could have easily saved himself, but thinking that he could rescue Miss Philpott, he seized her and tried to reach the rock above them. Though he battled bravely with the current, they both were swept from their vantage ground and whirled into the maddening flood below. Parsons was a strong swimmer, and was seen floating on his back supporting her for whom he had risked his life, and struggling against the current. All his efforts were of no avail; the fatal current separated them, and Miss Philpott disappeared with hands raised despairingly above her head. A thick cloud of spray intervened for a moment between the drowning man and his agonized friends on the shore, who were powerless to lend him aid, and when it disappeared Parsons was gone, and the cruel river swept on as though this tragedy had not been.

Officers are in pursuit of Varenus York, of Sandwich, who is accused of trying to poison his mother-in-law, Mrs. Varney, with corrosive sublimate, administered in cough syrup. Mrs. Moulton, York's adopted daughter, her little boy and Miss Huldah Hoag, a Quaker lady, tasted the syrup, but did not eat enough to seriously injure them. Mrs. Moulton says that she has been asked to poison Mrs. Varney, but refuses to tell by whom. York is 70 years old.

Harry Mainjoy, aged 79 years, lives at Exeter. He was born in Africa, and, captured by slave catchers of his own color, and sold to Capt. Emery of Exeter, for $25. He was brought to this country and "retained in easy service" till he was twenty.

A singular case is reported from Brentwood. It appears that some two or three years ago Mr. James Hoyt sustained an injury to his back which was called a partial dislocation of the spinal column. In consequence the young man was paralyzed in the lower extremities, being unable to walk or stand. He was seen by all the doctors around, who pronounced it an incurable case, and held out to the patient a very gloomy prospect for life. Some few weeks since Hoyt had a dream in which he fell, the pain from the fall almost killing him, but in his dream the result was a perfect cure. Strange enough a few days subsequent to the dream he actually had a fall which came near apparently proving fatal, but after recovering from the shock it was ascertained that he could use his limbs, and can now walk a mile. He is now engaged at different kind of work and is gaining every day. Probably the fall replaced the dislodged fragment without injury to the spinal marrow, which danger would deter surgeons from the attempt.

The private watchman, Mr. Edward Newell, at Cheney's paper mill in Amoskeag, found a man in the yard, who on being questioned as to his business there, drew a knife and struck at the watchman, cutting through his clothing, at which they both clinched, the watchman throwing his assailant upon the ground; but he immediately gained his feet and made good his escape.

Biddeford is to have a grand fireman's muster this Fall—perhaps.

The Winnipesaukee Paper Company, of Franklin, has bought of a company of which Hon. John G. Sinclair, of Bethlehem, and others, are members, 1000 acres of land covered with poplar wood, situated at the base of Mt. Washington, being a part of the tract of 10,000 acres, known as the Crawford purchase. The price was $30,000. The wood is to be used in the manufacture of paper.

Gold has been discovered in Wolfeboro on Whitten's Neck. Jones and Johnson of Farmington have bonded several acres of the land from the owner, Deacon Samuel Tetherly, and will begin work at once.

A small wooden dam at Searsville, Mass., one mile and a half above Williamsburg, gave way at eleven o'clock, Thursday night, and another Mill River horror was anticipated. The fine new bridge at Skinnersville was carried away and the streets flooded. The people of the town and Leeds rushed to the hills for safety, but the waters subsided and at daylight they returned to their homes.

The sea-serpent is making a tour of the New England coast. On Thursday, he was seen off Cape Cod Light.

The War Department, to which the question was referred by the President and cabinet, have decided that the case of Fitz John Porter cannot be reopened. A review of the case failed to develop the slightest irregularity in the proceedings.

Duncan, Sherman & Co. do not show up very well. Their liabilities are $4,872,129.-20; assets $2,112,740.61; they owe depositors $2,512,139.75; travellers' credits, $237,-974.00; foreign correspondence, $774,387.

Gen. Martinez Campos, in a despatch dated Seo d' Urgel, Spain, announces that the troops under his command, after desperate fighting, entered the Olsana tower. He lost 100 killed. The Carlist loss is still heavier, and many of the garrison were taken prisoners. The explosion of a magazine in the citadel made a large breach in the walls.

At an annual meeting of the Metropolitan Fountain and Cattle Trough association there were reported 276 fountains, 72 large cattle troughs and 199 small troughs for dogs and sheep in London. The committee are doing their best to further the movement in provincial towns. Cardinal Manning expressed satisfaction that the association had done three-fold more during the last year than in any previous twelve months. A lady sent in an anonymous contribution of £1000.

Rev. B. F. McDaniel, pastor of the Exeter Unitarian church, and party started on Tuesday, the 10th, for a fortnight's tramp through the Mountains. They went by rail and boat to Centre Harbor and from there commence their pedestrian tour. They will lunch and lodge at the farm-houses on the way.

A snow storm was reported at Pike's Peak, Thursday afternoon.

The Secretary of the Treasury has decided not to remit the fine incurred by the owners of the steamer Plymouth Rock by carrying thereon passengers from Fall River largely in excess of the number allowed by law.

The work of demolishing the hulk of the Government screw steamer Nipsic, formerly in the North Atlantic fleet, is progressing rapidly at the Washington navy yard.

A letter from Havana states that the passenger forcibly taken from the British mail steamer Eider at Porto Rico by the Spanish authorities proved to be a colonel in the Spanish army. He was carried ashore and soon afterward shot. All the foreign consuls protested.

Notice of trial has been given in the Brooklyn City Court of Theodore Tilton vs Brooklyn Eagle and Thomas Kinsella for libel. The damages are laid at $100,000.

The North Carolina democrats ,surprised at the republican gain of 25,000 to 30,000 votes, have resorted to a process of counting out enough republicans to ensure them a majority of delegates to the Constitutional convention. These frauds will be exposed and the men who were elected will probably be seated with the aid of a few honest delegates chosen from the mountain districts.

The Treatment of Tramps.

Col. John B. Clarke of the Manchester Mirror is passing the season at his Summer residence at Straw's Point, and has been followed there by the tramp nuisances, who will get a dose from the Colonel's shot gun some dark night while endeavoring to break and enter, if their nefarious operations are continued. The Mirror says:

We are not a shooting people—not one man in twenty can, by daylight, when perfectly calm, hit a foot circle a hundred feet off with a common revolver once in three trials, and the men who can tumble out of bed half asleep and shoot a dodging burglar in the dark are as scarce as any kind of men we ever heard of. We can all bang away at him, but he stands about as much chance of getting hit by our bullets as he does by the shooting stars. It is his business to understand this and he does it. Doubtless he would prefer not to be shot at, because he never wants to kick up a fuss, but as for any fears that his dirty hide will get damaged by bullet holes, he hasn't any. It is safe to say that the common revolver is as good, either as a preventive or as a cure. It neither scares nor shoots a tramp. A dog is better,—a big one, able and willing to take a burglar by the throat and hold him until morning or help comes, or even a small one, whose honest bark will warn you of the approach of tramping thieves and warn them that they had best not come too near. Upon either of these we should place more reliance than upon a dozen revolvers like those in common use. If a pistol is needed, too, it needs to be a different one from those which have been sold for this purpose. A breech-loading shot-pistol, which will carry a heavy charge and scatter at a distance of twenty feet be of some service. With such an one a cool man, though shooting by sound rather than by sight, would be very likely to plant shot enough in a tramp's carcass to keep him busy some time picking them out. At any rate, the chances of success as compared with a common revolver would be as twenty to one. It is a characteristic of a tramp that he is "all over the lot," and especially so when dodging out of a house into which he has never been invited; and a weapon to wing him must shoot "all over the lot." A shot-pistol is what the community needs now, breech-loading, single-barrel, of about navy size. One of them loaded with buckshot, or even birdshot, and fired at a tramp would "make him roost low," if he was within a decent distance. If it did not stop him on the spot it would put him in a condition to be detected; he would be found at every halting place picking out shot!

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

Philip DeNormandie, son of Rev. James DeNormandie, recently broke his collar bone by falling from the stair railing at the Wentworth while sliding down.

Carl Schurz is to open the S. P. C. A. lyceum course.

Temperance meeting to-morrow morning at the Pearl street church at nine o'clock. Open air meeting on Market Square at six o'clock in the afternoon.

Base ball games between the young guests of the Sea View and Farragut Houses, Rye Beach, have been attracting much attention. A closely contested game on Monday, the 9th, resulted in a victory for the Farraguts by a score of 15 to 11. We noticed among the victorious nine the two sons of Col. John B. Clarke of the Manchester Mirror. The Farraguts have challenged the Granite State nine of this city to a friendly game.

John Parker, a section hand employed on the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad, was struck by the engine of the train due here at 11.30, Friday, about two miles from the depot in this city, and had a leg broken and a severe gash cut in the head. His injuries are not serious. Dr. Potter attended him.

Appledore Island has for several years been claimed as a part of the town of Kittery, the Laighton Bros. being taxed by that town. They have never yet voted.

A young son of Mr. L. V. Newell, six years old, walked overboard from Rollins' wharf, Thursday afternoon, and was sinking the third time when he was seized by the cheek by Thomas Lynch, a boy of eleven years, and saved from drowning.

The guests at Hampton Beach have been engaged for two days in catching young mackerel. Not more than one hundred feet from the Boar's Head promontory is stationed a yacht belonging to Mr. Dumas, and on this can be seen from fifty to one hundred people, at any time of the day, "hauling in." The guests are perfectly enamored of the spot. Ex-Governor Noyes of Ohio and party caught over 1000 in less than two hours.

Rev. Dr. Davies having been called to Philadelphia to attend the funeral of one of his oldest parishioners will be unable to officiate at St. John's Church to-morrow.

Sport at the Appledore.

Amusement is the order of the day at the Appledore, and the Laightons daily invent new comforts and entertainments for their guests. On Wednesday, the 11th, a race came off for purses of $15, $10, and $5 between the sloop Ada and the five whaleboats Foam, Kelpie, Ripple, Wave and Spray. The distance sailed was about six miles, an allowance of eight minutes being made to the whaleboats. The veteran skippers who sail the Appledore boats, and for whose benefit the race was arranged, drew lots for choice of boats.

The whaleboat Foam was the first in, sloop Ada being next, followed by the Kelpie, Ripple, Wave and Spray. The judges, Messrs. Christopher E. Rymes, Isador Eichberg and William Mason awarded the first prize to the Foam, Julius Ingerbretsen, skipper; the second to the Kelpie, Jud. Randall, skipper; and the third to the Ripple, Emil Ingerbretsen, skipper.

The following is the official time of each boat:

	h.	m.	s.
Ada, sloop,		54	29
Foam, whaleboat,		54	27
Kelpie, "		56	55
Ripple, "	1	0	30
Wave, "	1	2	0
Spray, "	1	6	47

On Thursday, a tub race came off in the enclosed pond where the visitors bathe in front of the Appledore, some of the guests being participants. There was much fun, the contestants being cheered on by their numerous friends.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, the petition of the police force for a vacation was referred to the Mayor and City Marshal with power.

The petition of John F. Marden and others for the location of three naphtha gas lights on South street was referred.

The petition of the Selectmen of Ward 4 for a suitable place for holding the September election was referred to the Mayor and Alderman Stimson.

The Common Council gave notice that they had concurred in the passage of a bill entitled "An Ordinance relating to the Cemetery on Green street," and "A Joint Resolution relating to the sale of a part of the City Farm."

Voted, That the Mayor and the Committee on Streets be empowered to expend the sum appropriated for "laying out lots and constructing streets at City Farm" in constructing said streets as may seem to them most expedient.

Voted, That Pitt street be called Burkett street.

Voted, That the committee on school houses be instructed to provide suitable accommodations for the primary schools, and to confer with the select committee on school houses respecting the subject.

The committee appointed to establish the north westerly line of Middle street, between Cass street and land of C. H. Mendum and others, reported a joint resolution relating to the same, which was passed under suspension of the rules.

A recommendation from the Chief Engineer for the purchase of new hose was referred.

The committee on fire department were instructed to inquire into the expediency and probable cost of attaching a fire alarm to the North church bell.

Voted, That the officers of the city be requested to comply with the ordinance relating to the South Mill Pond,—and that the Health Officers be requested to notify all persons violating the ordinance to cease under the penalty of immediate prosecution —and that a committee be appointed to remove the nuisance.

The Mayor and Aldermen Hatch and Sise were appointed that committee.

Adjourned for two weeks.

Sail Boats and Fishermen.

From Union wharf to the first Newcastle bridge a fleet of boats from one to two hundred in number, are moored. On a pleasant evening between six and eight o'clock a lively scene is presented. The return of picnic parties whose voices fill the air with songs of "Home Again," "Home, Sweet Home" and other favorite melodies; the return of the fishermen, whose boats glide noiselessly and gracefully to their moorings; the hootings of the noisy urchins who are skimming over the quiet water in every conceivable style of float, from a tub to a worn-out whaleboat; the blending tints of the Summer sunset reflected in the mirrored stream,—make an attractive view to those who can appreciate anything outside of themselves. Among the pleasure boats is the schooner yacht William H. Russell, fitted up with every convenience for pleasure parties, owned and commanded by Capt. Charles W. Drown, son of one of Portsmouth's favorite pilots; and its petite companion, the Una, with its skillful juvenile captain, Drown, jr.; the Tina, owned by Thomas H. Odion; Truant, by George W. Heaton; Nymph and Lydia, by George W. Hall; Emma, by Thomas Freeman; Maud, by Thomas J. Varrell; Annie, by Samuel Warren; and others not distinguished by names belonging to Messrs. William Augustus Pierce, George Mudge and Plumer D. Norton, besides several two masted boats used for pleasure purposes. The whaleboats form one of the prominent features of the scene, moored in a line like soldiers ready for battle, with their 'coat of dark green looking as fresh as if painted daily by the sea.

There is probably no class of men who are as little known as the fisherman and few who merit more admiration. A successful fisherman requires nerve, hardihood, daring, in fact every qualification which makes a good General. Not many years ago, cod were caught from our wharves and around the rocks at the entrance of the harbor; now it is necessary to go miles out to sea, and the sudden change of the weather often places the bold fishers in dangerous and critical positions. The cause of the scarcity of fish in our immediate vicinity is well known. If one will take a walk to the wharves early in the Spring he will see fish brought in whose weight will average from twenty-five to eighty pounds. These are the mother fish, who come in to spawn and would lay around the rocks during the summer, yielding a rich harvest to those fishing with hand lines; but the trollers have gathered them in, and the fishermen who live along the coast have now to search the ocean, going from one ground to another until they strike some stray school. If the fish commissioners had gone down to the seaside and talked with some of these "Toilers of the Sea," instead of to those who bought the fish, some of whom were perhaps never twenty miles from shore, they would have received information, the result of which might have benefited a large number of worthy men.

Among those who brave old Neptune and seize his subjects are the following, some of whom will be familiar in the memories of the past: David and James Burke, William Jenkins, John Harvey and John Harvey, Jr., Enos Gray, Oliver Adams, Benjamin Maloon, Henry Hennefield, William Holmes, Charles Wallace, and others who go out daily in dories. The rest of the fleet is composed of every variety of sail and row-boats with capacities for carrying one to thirty persons—and the purchaser or pleasure seeker can be accommodated to whatever his fancy dictates.

The Sea-View.

A correspondent of the Post writes as follows: Saturday evening is the one selected for the hops here at the Sea View House, and delightful affairs they are. The ladies dress just enough to combine comfort with a tasteful appearance usually, but on stated occasions hops are given for which greater preparations are made, and the elegant dresses come forth from their hiding-places of trunk or wardrobe. The ball-room is large and convenient, with a finely-waxed floor, which makes dancing a perfect luxury, and good music is always furnished. This hotel is also patronized to such a liberal degree this season that every one connected therewith is in the best of spirits. It is a little removed from the beach, thereby commanding the advantages and beauties of scenery of both country and ocean—a pleasant walk through the fields or by the road bringing one upon the beach. Every day, at the time fixed for bathing, a coach is run to the beach and back for the accommodation of the bathers, and a jolly set they are who pile in and fill it up, with bundles, pails, etc., to fill in all the little spaces. Those who spend the season here are fortunate, for the rooms are all well arranged and furnished, the bill of fare well supplied with edibles of the best, the attendance generally satisfactory, and Mr. Lougee, the proprietor, as well as his son who presides in the office, always genial and accommodating.

A Family Cat Cared For.

A gentleman's family are off on a long visit and the house is closed. Elsewhere the dogs are wistfully sniffing friendly heels. The canaries are hung in other windows. The mice, if such there be, rule rampant in cellar and hall. But the family cat, whose face not even the winds of heaven had visited too roughly, what has become of her? Left to the tender mercies of the street? Left to forage on the uncertain and contested plunder of neighboring kitchens? Left to the pitiless "scat" of unsympathizing Bridgets? Left to the predatory sport of her natural foes, curs, both quadruped and biped? Left, with no door ajar, no roof to shelter? Left to endure "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," with what philosophy a homeless cat can muster? Ah, the dumb questionings of such a lot! Not so! each cat has her tail. Every morning a man appears on the green. He calls and calls again. Puss, responsive, marches up to her daily rations, a pound of beef and a quart of milk, the best fed cat of all the town.

A friend suggests that a demoralized flower bed and a much played upon patch of string beans is, of course, no index of her generous vicinage. H. C. K.

A Triumph over Humbug.

The constant gain in popularity of the national remedy and preventive, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the rapid decline of the fermented and nauseous rubbish feebly bolstered up by a false temperance cry, exemplifies a grand triumph of genuine merit over rampant humbug, at which honest folks rejoice. And well they may; for each accession of popularity to a remedy which cures and prevents intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, urinary troubles, uterine weakness and general debility, widens the field of its beneficent operations and is a direct gain to humanity, while every falling off in public favor of a pernicious compound, powerless for good but powerful for evil, is a blessing quite as unmistakable, but for a reason very different. Let humbug for once hide its diminished head. Would it were always as unsuccessful as in the present instance.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited in such notice; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or to be placed that offensive nuisances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

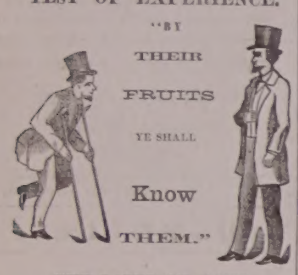
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquillin and Barruel.—Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is

A BLESSING TO MANKIND,

and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

ZERO REFRIGERATOR

ZERO.

Why the Improved Zero Refrigerator has taken premiums over all others:

It requires less than one half the ice to run it. It dispenses with the nuisance of having a drip pan under it. It is a refrigerator and water cooler combined. It has the dryest provision chamber. It is built in the best manner and style of design. It is the cheapest to buy and it is a perfect Meat, Fish, Fruit and Ice preserver. Pulmocine Cordial.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the Hunnish trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

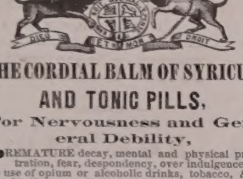
An English Remedy



THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, NOV. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JAMES MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Nervous Tonic Pills, for Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainte who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

WARNER AND KEARSARCE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery an

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse." CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

"Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and can be had in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

Rochefort-Cassagnac.

[Paris Figaro, July 30.]

Yesterday we referred to a challenge sent by a Communist in Geneva to Mr. Paul de Cassagnac. All the documents of this affair are in our hands, and we are the first to give them to the public of Figaro. We present them without and comment, leaving our readers to judge of the conduct of the parties concerned. These documents are, first, the challenge of Rochefort, the answer of Mr. Paul de Cassagnac, and the official record of the seconds, Prince Alexander de Wagram, Comte d'Herisson, and Messrs. Georges Perin and Ordinaire. They are as follows in the order of date:

JULY 10, 1875.

TO MR. PAUL DE CASSAGNAC—After fruitless searches, I have at last laid my hand upon several numbers of the Pays. That of the 7th of November, 1872, contains over your signature this phrase addressed to me:

It was he who sent forward the hordes of the Commune, while he concealed himself and afterwards ran away. That is a man who is a great scoundrel.

In the number of the 18th of the same month I read this instructive, but insulting, paragraph:

When the brave and energetic Flourens wanted to hurl upon Paris the hordes who carried the coffin of Victor Noir, you found a pretext to faint off in good time; and it was for you that Victor Noir lost his life.

This article closes as follows:

If ever you are pardoned you will have on your return a splendid, an immense choice, M. Henri Rochefort, if it should be agreeable to you to hunt up those who court the honor of killing you like the mad dog that you are.

The insults for which I demand satisfaction contain at the same time an engagement on your part from which it is impossible for you to free yourself. Therefore, be good enough to set out immediately for Geneva with your seconds. Mine are awaiting you. You must not plead proscription as you have done in the case of M. Clemenceau. I have not been pardoned, pardon extending itself only to those who solicit it; but I am free, and I demand the reparation which you in advance declared that you were ready to give me; and, moreover, I entreat you to hinder your honorable father from giving notice to the Prefect of Polite. My two friends, Puissant and Bouvier, who will give you this letter, will transmit to me your answer.

HENRI ROCHEFORT.
5 Rue des Alpes, Geneva."

To this letter Paul de Cassagnac replied as follows:

TO M. HENRI ROCHEFORT—You are perfectly right, sir. In signing the article which you remind me of, I signed a promissory note. It is true that you have not been in any hurry to present it, and that you have let a year and a half go by before presenting yourself to the teller; but as it is my practice to pay always and under all circumstances when I have debts, you may rest assured that I will discharge this debt with ready money. Permit me, however, to remind you under what circumstances I addressed to you the few words which have taken so long a time to move you. This may be useful in establishing the fact that the quarrel comes from you and from you alone, and that I have had nothing to do with it. On the 16th of November, 1872, and not the 7th as you say, you stated in a letter published in the Evenement and alluding to me personally:

"I am convinced that those who insult me, now that I am between four walls, will be the first to offer me their most abject apologies if ever I am free."

It was to this presumptuous and swaggering boast that I replied in the manner you have seen. Well, you are free; you give me your invitation, and I accept. And when I accept even your invitation, while I have refused the sub-communists of the Republique Francaise, it is because, while I owe them nothing, I do owe you. You are not pardoned, it is true, and I might retire behind the technicality; but I do not like to squabble over mere terms, and with you republicans one must not be over scrupulous. If one were to refuse as adversaries all those who have been condemned to death or to the galleys, there would be none of you left. Moreover, you are a conspicuous personage, sir; you have been everything that a republican can become with good luck and protection. You have been successively and in the line of advancement, first deputy, then member of the Government of the 4th of September, and then a convict. Therefore, you must see that you are regarded as a man most difficult to hold in. This is another reason why I do not hesitate; and now—see how generous I am!—in order to give you a chance to get back to the galley, and to escape again, I give you without discussion the choice of arms. If you had been a well bred man you would not have said anything about the police or my father. I can understand how the police must be foremost in the mind of an escaped convict like you, whose departure was saluted by the cannon that the echo of Brest and Toulon knows so well, and which permits you on gala days to stick a yellow feather in your green convict's cap; but what is the necessity of mixing father in a quarrel with which he has nothing to do? He has over me the inappreciable advantage of not knowing you; and in former days he in no way prevented me from lodging a ball in your side. You ought to have the honesty to acknowledge that if any body risks an unpleasant intervention in all this business, it is certainly not you who find yourself abroad and outside of all chance of legal prosecution. But it is I who must go to find you out in your lair, which has now become the refuge of all the thieves, the assassins and incendiaries of the Commune.

But since you have the kindness to give me advice, you will permit me, with a view not to be behind you, to give you, too, a piece of advice. First of all, don't wear any more medals. That was well once, but it won't do for a second time. (In the former duel, Rochefort's life was saved by Cassagnac's bullet striking a concealed medal.) I don't care about perpetuating a rendezvous of this kind, and I greatly wish that in this comfortable manner a cuirass should not save your life once more as it did before. In the second place, don't forget your flask of smelling salts. Your capacity for fainting is quite celebrated, and I would feel humiliated if I had to go all the way to Switzerland for the purpose of undoing your corset and making you inhale a refreshing perfume. You are so nervous! And then how you press me. Quick! quick! You require me to take the first train. Be a little calm; you won't lose anything, and I shall in any case arrive too early. Besides, you ought to know that danger may be quickly swallowed like a medicine. One week more or one week less will not sensibly increase the seventy weeks which you have used, not for looking out for documents which were close at hand, but to fortify your arm and your heart—a precaution for which I can't blame you. My seconds are Prince Alexander of Wagram and Count Maurice d'Herisson. I ask only one concession from you, but I claim it imperatively, and that is that you should delegate two of your friends to come over to Paris. That would be more business like, more proper, and the least you could do for me, since I consent to put myself to trouble; for it is the only chance I have for securing to my friends some honorable parties to deal with, instead of exposing them to the danger of having to transact business with another couple of fellows who dare not put their feet on French soil. Indeed there is quite enough of scoundrel in the affair, since you are in it.

PAUL DE CASSAGNAC.

In consequence of two articles published in the Pays on the 7th and 16th of November, 1872, during the incarceration of M. Henri Rochefort, that gentleman has challenged M. Paul de Cassagnac in a letter dated July 10, 1875, to give him a reparation by means of arms. M. Paul de Cassagnac having accepted by letter dated the 13th of the same month, Messrs. Perin and Ordinaire, members of the National Assembly, representing M. Rochefort, and Prince Alexander, of Wagram, and Count d'Herrison representing M. de Cassagnac having abandoned the choice of arms to M. Rochefort, the deliberations of the seconds referred exclusively to the conditions of the combat. The seconds of M. Rochefort, held that their client being the insulted party, had as such not only the right to select the arms, but also to dictate the terms of the duel, and they demanded that it should be fought with rifled pistols, at a distance of five paces, and at the word. The seconds of M. de Cassagnac answered that a combat of this sort would be a butchery, for the arms being extended would bring the muzzles of the pistols almost against the breasts of the combatants. They added that, in case even their client accepted such unusual conditions, they would retire, being unwilling as they were to assist in an encounter which of necessity would result in the death of both parties. They would not have any objection to firing at the word, if this manner of firing did not present the danger of escaping in its application the control of the seconds, while firing at will gives the adversaries a chance of avoiding all surprise, and permits them to take their time. The seconds of M. Rochefort declared that they did not see in the duel they proposed any of the difficulties which the seconds of M. de Cassagnac discovered, and that as far as firing at the word is concerned—a mode of firing equally in usage with the other—they thought that the seconds could prevent the combatants from firing before the word "fire" and after the "three." They added, besides, that M. Rochefort had selected these conditions in order that the affair might be particularly serious. The seconds of M. de Cassagnac replied that the gravity of the affair consisted not in the means, but in the end. This end they desire to be equally grave, and here are the conditions that they offer to M. Rochefort in the name of M. de Cassagnac: A duel with rifled pistols at thirty paces, the combatants being permitted to advance five paces, fire at will, and continue firing till one or the other falls; or a duel with swords. The seconds of M. Rochefort replied that they would not accept these conditions, considering that their principal had the right to dictate his own. In faith whereof, they have drawn up the present official record, and signed with their names.

News and Notes.

Of the thirty million dollars appropriated by Congress for payment of pensions during the fiscal year, 1875, over nine hundred thousand dollars remain unpaid, and have been saved by decrease in the pension rolls.

One of Col. Waterman Smith's daughters, Mrs. J. C. Currier, is living at San Francisco, Cal., and early in the morning on the Sunday on which his house on Wilson Hill was burned, and hours before the dispatch which told the news could reach her, she awoke from a dream in which she had seen her father's house destroyed by men who wore masks, and whom she saw in the library setting a fire with chemicals. She went to sleep but woke from a similar dream. She was greatly troubled about it and feared that it was a premonition of reality, and her fears were proved true by the dispatch which reached her afterward.—Manchester Mirror.

Ex-Governor Scott of South Carolina is taking a part in the Ohio campaign, in support of Governor Allen, democracy and inflation. In a speech at Youngstown, he declared that it was the duty of the government to pay for the slaves emancipated in the war.

A. W. Sleeper, the missing paymaster at the Lowell Machine Shops, has returned. He left a week ago, wearied with overwork and fretted because his accounts would not balance by quite a large sum. He has no recollection of what transpired after reaching Boston. It seems he went to Maine on the night train and roamed about in the woods and fields till his brother-in-law found him in Aroostook county. He was still out of his head, and being armed with a revolver, threatened to shoot, but was persuaded upon to go home. The discrepancy in his figures proved to have been caused by clerical errors, and his integrity is in nowise affected. His mind is much clearer, but protracted rest is what he needs.

The Boston correspondent of the Providence Journal says Gov. Gaston is a Brownbred man.

A terrible stench for several days about house 194 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, has led to the discovery of a dead body. Its owner, Gustave Richter, was sitting in a chair, with a discharged pistol in his hand, and in a disgusting state of decay. He had not been seen for three weeks, and it is supposed that he committed suicide from grief at the loss of his wife and business difficulties. He is reported to have been rich and was childless.

Kate Taggart, an insane woman aged 30 years, suicided by drowning in Merrimack river at Suncook, on Friday.

His name is Clarence Fifield, a hostler in Plymouth, who picks up one thousand dollars, besides other valuable papers, and returns them to the owner, and refuses to be rewarded, having; as he says, only done his duty.

Enfield parties are buying up wool in that place for forty cents per pound.

Secretary Bristow has accumulated nearly $20,000,000 with which to commence silver resumption. All the fractional currency denominations under fifty cents are to be first called in.

The summary incarceration of all tramps who enter Keene has caused them to give that city a wide berth and not one has been reported at the station-house for a week.

Geo. Storrs Blanchard has been expelled from the Merrimac County Bar for illegal and usurious practice.

Elbridge P. Jones of Milford went on a spree Friday night, went home next morning at daylight, called his wife to the door and asked her if she wanted to see him shoot himself, which he did near the left nipple, the ball passing through the lungs, and lodging in the back. When told the wound was fatal, he threatened to do it again if it wasn't. He says rum did it.

The Protestants beat the Catholic democrats in a nominating convention at Wilmington, Del., by a heavy majority.

An Intelligent Voter.

[Montgomery Advertiser.]

On election day a well satisfied old darkey—the very counterpart in the matter of mouth and color of old Aunt Aggy, whose photograph was sent the Geneva abortionist—went to Rockford in great glee to "wote agin the conwenshun." In this glee the Rockford boys captured him and had his photograph taken. But after the votes were counted and the "Conwenshun" was found to be ahead, the old fellow's mouth grew six inches smaller, and his under lip hung down sullenly over part of his chin.
